

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

History of the Class of 1903

YALE COLLEGE

TRIENNIAL

MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

THE CAMPUS (LOOKING SOUTH).

HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF 1903

YALE COLLEGE

Edited by
ZIEGLER SARGENT
Class Secretary

TRIENNIAL

YALE UNIVERSITY
NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT
1906

THE TUTTLE, MOREHOUSE & TAYLOR PRESS.

PREFACE.

---

The material for the following pages has been gathered in leisure moments during the past three years, most of it since November 1905, when the Class was formally notified of what was required. The response to the editor's calls has been generous and prompt, and the letters, too numerous for individual acknowledgment, expressing appreciation of the work in hand have lightened a burden that might easily have become irksome. Where possible a man's own account of his doings since undergraduate days has been quoted from his class letter. The editor has tried to exercise care in these citations and asks you to be charitable about errors of judgment. Thanks are here extended to the authors of the contributed articles and obituary sketches. Outside of the Class, much assistance has been rendered by Mr. Clarence S. Day, Jr., Secretary of the Class of '96, and by Mr. Everard J. Thompson, of the Yale Alumni Weekly, who besides other courtesies loaned the cut of Connecticut Hall. In the selection of illustrations the endeavor has been made to recall a few familiar scenes and to indicate some of Yale's outward changes since the graduation of 1903. The double page Triennial pictures were made by Mr. Robert Keep Clark. An asterisk (*) before a name denotes decease.

August 31, 1906.

CONTENTS.

---

	Page.
Suggestions for Letters.....	1
Undergraduate Years .....	2
Graduation .....	4
Class Poem .....	6
Class Oration .....	9
Ivy Ode .....	12
Yale since 1903.....	15
The Triennial Reunion.....	19
Triennial Songs .....	26
The Class Boy.....	27
Biography .....	29
The New York Dinners:
The First Dinner .....	318
The Second Dinner .....	319
The Third Dinner .....	321
The Class of 1492.....	323
Yale Alumni University Fund.....	325
Class Secretary's Financial Report.....	326
Financial Report 1903 Triennial Committee.....	327
Class Bibliography .....	328
Necrology .....	330
Statistics .....	331
Locality Index .....	340
Addenda .....	346

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

---

The Campus (looking south).....	Frontispiece
Class Day, June 22, 1903.....	facing page 10
Connecticut Hall (old South Middle).....	“ “ 16
Triennial Group .....	“ “ 20
Daniel Edwards Kennedy, Jr., the Class Boy.....	“ “ 27
Yale Field, June 26, 1906.....	“ “ 56
Triennial Pictures .....	between pages 96, 97
Vanderbilt Hall .....	facing page 136
The Campus (looking north).....	“ “ 168
New buildings .....	between pages 224, 225
Thomas Edward Wilde.....	facing page 306

SUGGESTIONS FOR LETTERS.

---

[Many of the letters refer by number to these suggestions, so they are inserted here for convenience of reference.]

1. Residence and occupation since leaving college (give date of leaving college). Dates and places of entering business or profession, names of firms or partners, together with kind of business.
2. Married? Date and place of wedding; maiden name of wife in full; her father's name, occupation and residence; names in full of children, if any, with dates and places of birth; also give dates and places of deaths of any children.
3. Post-graduate work, or studies in other institutions after leaving Yale. Where? How long in each institution; if professional or technical, the line of study pursued (i. e. law, electricity, etc.); degrees, honorary or in course, received and expected; from what institutions, giving date.
4. Books, pamphlets, or articles published, with exact titles and dates and places of publication.
5. Membership or affiliation with organizations; social, religious, political. Work done in politics; what position of honor, trust, or profit have you held? Give dates of appointment or election to the same and term or tenure.
6. Journeys in this or foreign countries.
7. Your permanent address, where letters, etc., may be sent with the certainty of their being forwarded to you.
8. Any other circumstances in your career of interest to the Class. Don't be afraid to write too much. Any information about any other fellows in the Class, which you think the Class would like to know, but which modesty, etc., prevents these fellows from telling.
9. Any plans you may have, involving important changes for you in the future.

UNDERGRADUATE YEARS.

---

The Class of 1903 entered Yale September 28, 1899, and finished the course Commencement Day, June 24, 1903. According to the college catalogues it had 337 men in Freshman year, 313 in Sophomore, 299 in Junior and 313 in Senior year. The increase in Senior year was due to the admission of 22 graduates of other colleges. Five men died during the course: Maurice Fitch Hawks, Charles Tracy Brown, Henry Ide Root, Thomas Edward Wilde and Edward Warren Dorman.

The chief event of the four years was the Bicentennial Celebration in October of Junior year. Nineteen Hundred and Three was the first freshman class to enter under President Hadley's administration and witnessed the erection of University (Dining), Memorial, Woolsey, Woodbridge, Fayerweather, University Clinic and Byers halls. In the summer of 1901 North College, Lyceum and the Treasury building were removed, leaving South Middle the only building within the quadrangle. The Forest School was established in March 1900. The Class witnessed the expansion of the elective system. Opportunities were given to academic seniors to take five hours of law studies and later courses in the Scientific School and Medical School. Senior year was made entirely elective and 1903 was the first class to have electives in Sophomore year and the first to enjoy a wholly elective Junior year. The Sophomore Faculty as a separate faculty ended with the Class of 1902. The scheme of grading in A, B and C courses was introduced and the consequent classifying of courses in a few large groups in order to oblige a man to take advanced courses and to prevent him from confining himself to a narrow group of subjects. The services of morning prayers were first conducted by faculty chaplains during our Freshman year. Prof. J. Willard Gibbs died just before our graduation.

The sophomore societies were abolished with the Class and the junior fraternities extended to Sophomore year. The Elihu Club was founded by members of 1903 in the winter of Senior year and the Pundits were revived in the Class. The Dramatic Association was successfully launched during Freshman year. Fence rushing was stopped, or at least limited to a short snow-ball fight between the lower classes on Washington's Birthday. The "2.25" athletic rule was abolished. The college politics which had entered into the election of the athletic managers was overcome indirectly by the abolishing of the sophomore societies and directly by choosing at the University meeting an assistant manager from the two men selected by the sophomore class. The retirement of bicycle racing as an intercollegiate sport occurred in 1902. In the four main branches of athletics there were four crew victories and four seasons of defeat in baseball. Yale defeated Harvard in two out of the four football games and tied a third, and won three times from Princeton. Two of these teams will go down in Yale history as unusually remarkable. In track athletics we won the Intercollegiates twice and defeated Harvard twice.

Nineteen Hundred and Three was the second Yale class to graduate more than three hundred men, and except for 1900 is the largest ever graduated.

GRADUATION.

---

BY C. J. WADDELL.

The peroration of the Class of 1903—Commencement week—was in keeping with the all too brief four years during which the class had been addressing the Yale world: first from the tables in "Billy's"; later inaugurating President Hadley, and, as a finale, announcing the number of boat lengths between the Yale sterns and the Harvard bows at New London on June twenty-fifth. Yet as the four years were ending even the innate modesty of the class would claim that 1903's contribution to Yale had not been entirely vocal. Hard work well done briefly summarizes the life of the class. And Commencement week was a time of retrospection which blended through those June days into eager anticipation of the future.

As the week had approached there had been an increasing appreciation of the fact that it would probably be the last time that the entire class should ever be together. It was to be the parting of the ways when the members of the class should leave the campus as alumni. "Alumni"—the word sounded venerable and almost impossible. A gradual transition was desired: Seniors; then young grads., and when the hair should be silvered with gray or gone—alumni. The class was knowing the regret of which should be born the joy of class reunions. And so Commencement week came with its contrasts—gala colors in the high lights of the picture; mellow tones of pathos in the shadows. The reunion classes contributed revelry to the week; the Class of 1903 felt the minor chord of the closing days and inclined more towards revery. Yet there was little opportunity for the gratification of that desire while every man was tacking for a safe exit between the Scylla of furniture packers and the Charybdis of Commencement week, with its continuous performance of events.

The record of 1903's Commencement week is printed in its entirety only in the memory of every member of the class.

With ink and paper there can be given but an index to that better and life-enduring record. The programme here sketched outlines the picture; the soft brush of memory will fill in the colors.

The annual Commencement exercises of the University began on Friday afternoon, June 19, with the Townsend prize oratorical contest in Battell Chapel, in competition for the DeForest Prize Medal. The speakers and their subjects were:

- DAVID BENJAMIN UPDEGRAFF, Mt. Pleasant, Ohio—"The Moriscoes."
HAROLD TERRY CLARK, New Haven, Conn.—"Japan Among the Nations."
DOUGLAS MAXWELL MOFFAT, Scranton, Penn.—"Mormonism."
HARRY ROOT STERN, New York City—"Tolstoi's Russians."
JOSEPH FAIRBANKS, St. Johnsbury, Vt.—"The United States in European Politics."
ALLEN CLEVELAND BRAGAW, Hartford, Conn.—"Japan Among the Nations."

Harry Root Stern was awarded the medal.

The Senior Class supper was held at Branford Point on Friday evening. The Supper Committee consisted of: Henry C. Holt, Chairman; William Frew, E. P. Townsend, W. B. Weston and W. O. White.

At 8 o'clock, Saturday evening, June 20, the dedication exercises of Woolsey Hall and the Newberry Organ were held.

The Baccalaureate Address was delivered at 10.30 A. M., Sunday, June 21, in Woolsey Hall, by President Hadley.

At 5 P. M., Sunday, June 21, in Woolsey Hall, Professor Harry B. Jepson gave a recital with the Newberry Organ.

The Presentation Exercises of the class were held at 11 A. M., Monday, June 22, in Battell Chapel, President Hadley presiding. The Class Poem was given by Howard Albert Plummer of New York City, and the Class Oration by Robert Hall Ewell of Washington, D. C.

CLASS POEM.

LUX YALENSIS.

Let memory's voiceless song ring back its chimes
 To ages past and celebrate the day
 Rose-garlanded and decked with wreath of bay—
 Recall anew the times
 When Yale was but a dream for dreamer's play.

Unhewn its porphyry, unrealed its shrine,
 Where thronging worshippers with idle scroll
 Should make their pilgrimage and there unroll
 A parchment bright with sign
 Inscribed to cheer the striver to his goal.

The gray twilight of blending centuries
 Had laid its shadows slowly one by one,
 In vesper offering, and in orison
 That through its presages
 The pathway to the land of truth be won.

The twilight, too, had merged in darker hue
 As midnight spread its sombre conquest wide
 From vale to peak, from shore to mountainside,
 And flaunting gaily flew
 In sable colours far in vaunted pride.

The challenge waved; the gage of battle thrown Defiant on the lists its answer wrest
 When gently, softly gleaming one star pressed
 Its way through clouds, alone,
 And shed its heraldry from east to west.

'Realm of a golden prophecy, awake!
 Birth of a nobler hope and nobler name
 Are thine to-day. Hurl forth thy lance aflame
 With radiancy and break
 Night's shadowy bondage with the dawn's acclaim.'

The heavens respond; a fountain bursts in stream
 And shaft of gold that dart across the gray,
 Gleam, shine, sweep on and joyous win their sway,
 In ecstasy supreme,
 From waving leaf to tossing silver spray.

Graduation.

7

A sheaf of rainbows falls in golden shower
Flashing its crescent splendor from the height
On mission to unveil a vision bright—
'Tis Yale! each wall, each tower,
Each portal burnished in the matin light.

So came the light of truth from heavenly wold
To touch and waken to reality
Brave Yale, the symbol of regality,
And in her templed mould
To trace fair emblems of eternity.

* * * * *

Yon skyward-reaching turrets, coronets
That crown the pinnacle and seem to rise
Aloft and onward through the baffling skies,
Piercing the parapets
Of mist that dim the valiant striver's eyes:

Ye taught us this; no earthly barrier waits
To thwart the loftier deed; the path leads higher;
Each summit gained unmask new crag and spire.
Courage, fling wide the gates!
Mount upward, upward to the stars! Aspire!

Yon sturdy vines that clasp unfailingly
Throughout the wintry storm and summer sun
The courtyard wall, with tendrils interspun,
And so unceasingly
Bid silent token to thy benison:

Thy gift hath been to consecrate the heart
That wreathes its loyalty from friend to friend
In vines of love, seeking no richer end
Than chance to serve, its part
The kingliest bond to guard and to fend.

And thoughts of reverence quietly arise
Before the olden edifice that tells Of grandeur where each crumbling brick but swells
Its majesty, defies
Each stab of time and all unkindness quells.

Nobility may carve its blazonry
In rock that moulders slowly into dust;
But though its legend fade from outward crust
An inner masonry
Aye keeps inviolate its sacred trust.

History of the Class of 1903.

All honor thine, but hallowed deeper yet
 That sanctuary where each pilgrim goes,
 The lowliest and the best, to pluck the rose—
 The crimson calumet
 Of love and all the gladness love bestows.

Old fence! Long may thy sympathy unite
 Thy comradeships in faithful, tender strand,
 Man with man, heart with heart, and hand with hand,
 And grace the distant night
 With echoes from a bygone minstrel band.

The melodies grow soft, the voices fail—
 But ere they break still may a singer raise
 In humble tribute one last song of praise,
 Exalt the name of Yale,
 Her golden memories, her golden days.

* * * * *

Down through the arching aisleways of the past
 The light of Yale still shines and lingers there,
 While hearts with sorrow laden breathe a prayer
 That ever, till the last,
 Its lustre may live on undimmed and fair.

The cup is filled, and ages drain full deep
 Their inspiration and their hope divine
 From chalice brimming o'er with memory's wine—
 'Tis here! Brave hearts, but steep
 Thy manlihood with bounties from this shrine.

The silver clarion rings, the gates are flung!
 The helmet and the scimitar attest
 A hero's grasp—'tis thine. Ride on, thy crest
 A-wave through lands unsung,
 A golden light to guide thee on thy quest.

CLASS ORATION.

THE CLASS OF 1903 IN ITS RELATION TO THE YALE SPIRIT.

We are prone to regard the completion of our college course as a graduation from Yale, when in reality it is the occasion of our acceptance into full membership in Yale. The relation to our college throughout the remainder of our lives is to be that of membership. This carries with it certain responsibilities. To meet these we must be true to the teachings and influences which have surrounded us in our undergraduate life. The influence of our college life which we most deeply cherish is that which, for want of a more comprehensive term, we call Yale Spirit. It is our duty to remain faithful to this; the responsibility is the greater because we now enjoy the privilege of full membership in Yale. Perhaps no two would define this feature of our college in the same words, but we all know that it exists and has been the inspiration of our class throughout the four years. By Yale spirit we certainly do not mean a few rough and tumble fights between the classes, such as occur between Sophomores and Freshmen on Washington's Birthday; nor the gathering of the classes at the fence; nor pandemoniac shouting at athletic meets; although all these doubtless strengthen this feeling. In its essence it is a spirit of altruism. Incorporated in this characteristic of Yale life are both negative and positive virtues; virtues of omission and commission. It does not eliminate personal ambition. It recognizes that personal ambition is a necessary element in the world's progress. But it demands that ambition shall not degenerate into selfishness, and so come to conflict with the interests of class and college. It is this spirit, the traditional Yale spirit, which is so much needed in the outside world. Probably there never was a time in the history of the country when a practical application of this spirit was more needed than the present. In the first half of our nation's history we proceeded along the lines laid down by so great spirited yet conservative statesmen as Washington and Jefferson, Hamilton, Madison, and Marshall. Our progress was slow and normal, but there was no sacrifice of high motive and principle. In the past fifty years we have changed. The age in which we live is primarily the age of commercialism. The vast and rapid development of the nation has to a considerable extent meant the domination of material prosperity over the higher virtues.

Yale has at the same time evolved. Had she not, we would all unite to condemn her. For to meet the demands upon her, Yale must adapt herself to the rapid development of the nation. In this adaptation to the new conditions, we look with regret upon certain changes, but we must accept them because they have been inherent to this growth. The Old Brick Row has almost disappeared and with it some features dearly cherished by earlier graduates. No longer the President knows all the members of a class by face and name. No longer can all the members of a class associate so intimately or be bound so closely together. The life of simplicity and democracy, and the intense class feeling, so characteristic of older Yale, has suffered through the increased numbers, the more complex and varied interests in the newer Yale. But have the evils so manifest in our country's development secured sovereignty over the Yale spirit? I believe not. This spirit is not simply a tradition to be resurrected at Bicentennials. It lives in the Yale of to-day as it lived in the Yale of our fathers. We do not for a moment overlook the evils in our college life. We admit that for the sake of conservatism there is too often a suppression of individuality. We admit that there is too much indiscriminate criticism. We admit that there is too much seeking for social prestige, that too many men destroy the better part of themselves in striving for social recognition. We admit that at times we lack a feeling of responsibility; that we pay too little heed to culture and intellectual pursuits. These evils may seem great, but they are almost entirely on the surface. They form but a trifling part of the Yale life. We had not been long in Freshman year before we learned that Yale had no place for the selfish man; that Yale had no place for the man who proposed to elevate himself at the expense of his fellows. We quickly discovered that Yale demanded an equal chance for all without discrimination. Personal ambition was recognized and furthered, but it was not allowed to run rampant; it was not given free license to do as it pleased. It is true that Yale has changed; it is equally true that the essence of the Yale traditional spirit remains a power in the undergraduate life of to-day. The Yale spirit is needed in the activities in which we shall engage. It is needed in business, in the professions, in the religious, social and political life of the nation. Outside men are striving in bitter rivalry to obtain social recognition, political prominence, and to add a few more dollars to their bank account. We need to revert to a Puritan sturdiness of character. We may smile at their crudeness; we may scoff at their bigotry; but we are not men if we fail to appreciate and admire their tenacity of purpose and the boldness with which they clung to their ideals and convictions. We are not men if we fail to honor those little bands of immigrants which landed at Jamestown in 1607 and at Plymouth Rock in 1620. They were men of high principle; men of "faith and works." They had a true love of country, a deep devotion to God.

In the outside world in which we are about to take an active part, the Yale spirit demands that we do nothing to antagonize the interests of society, and that, in addition, we do all in our ability to aid society in the problems it has to face. If we are true Yale men we shall take the Yale spirit with us and give to others the benefit of its influence.

To the President: The Class of 1903, Mr. President, was the first to enter under your guardianship. To you we are indebted because you have kept the Yale spirit a power in the four years of our undergraduate life; because you have kept before us the true Yale ideals; because you have stood unflinchingly for manliness in Yale. We propose to pay this debt, sir, by taking this influence with us into the life which we now enter.

CLASS DAY, JUNE 22, 1903.

Classmates: It is incumbent upon us to be true to Yale, to be true Yale men. This occasion is not a parting from Yale, but, rather an opportunity and pledge to take Yale with us, and to spread her ideals and influences among our fellow men. We are not now being sent out from Yale, but she is receiving us into full membership. Yale shall not be a remembrance of the past, but a dominating spirit to guide and govern our thoughts and actions so long as we live.

The Class Day exercises were held at 2 P. M., Monday, June 22, in an amphitheatre erected to the north of South Middle. The members of the class were seated in the pit of the amphitheatre and followed the custom of smoking long-stemmed clay pipes during the reading of the histories. Rain caused an adjournment to the Hyperion Theatre for the reading of the last two histories upon the programme, which was as follows:

- Song....."Here's to Good Old Yale, drink her down."
- History.....Carroll J. Waddell, Ottawa, Kansas.
- Song....."Integer Vitae."
- History.....George S. Arnold, New Haven, Conn.
- Song....."Amici."
- History.....Augustus K. Oliver, Pittsburg, Penn.
- Song....."Drinking Song."
- History.....Erastus Corning, Albany, N. Y.
- Song....."Dear Old Yale."

The Committee in charge of the Class Day arrangements consisted of Albert R. Lamb, Chairman; S. Russell Bogue, George B. Chadwick, Stuart B. Sutphin and Frederick W. Wilhelmi.

At the conclusion of these exercises the members of the class formed in line and marched around the campus to the Chittenden Library, where the Class Ivy was planted. The sprig of ivy had been taken from Saybrook, the birthplace of Yale College, and the spot where it was found was as near as possible to the site of the old college. The Ivy Committee was composed of George S. Hurst, Chairman; Arthur M. Collins and Orion J. Willis.

The Ivy ode, written by Herbert C. Kelly, was sung to the air of "Integer Vitae." The ode follows:

IVY ODE.

Parvulam plantam teneram seramus,
 Imbribus terraeque hodie tribuamus,
 Qua calentis solis amica blande
 Lumina rident.

Et futuris murus apertus annis
 Aulaeis pendentibus occuletur,
 Et virens murus foliis struetur
 Murmura lallans.

Huic tenui plantae similes, adornat
 Quae rudes crescens lapides nitore,
 Sic foras nos iam veniamus omnes
 Lumina mundo.

Longum O amplectare, hedera undulata,
 Saxa inexorabilis! O diuque
 Nostri almae matris amoris acris
 Dulcis imago!

The annual Commencement Concert of the University Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs was given in Woolsey Hall at 8.15 Monday evening.

The Senior Promenade of the graduating classes of both the Academic and Sheff. Departments was held in the gymnasium immediately after the concert. The Senior Promenade Committee consisted of Stuart B. Sutphin, Chairman; Brower Hewitt, G. B. Chadwick, D. R. McKee, Jr., W. P. Johnston, H. C. Holt, William Frew, A. M. Collins, and P. F. Mann.

At 10 A. M., Tuesday, June 23, the Commencement alumni meeting was held in Alumni Hall.

Tuesday, June 23, at 3 P. M., about seven thousand people gathered at Yale Field to witness the annual Commencement week base ball game with Harvard. The first six innings of the game were played in a driving rain which had soaked the Field and formed pools upon the diamond. Under the circumstances the game was remarkably free from errors. The game was won by Harvard by a score of 10 to 6.

Commencement Day was Wednesday, June 24. At 10 A. M. a procession of officers, graduates, candidates for degrees and invited guests was formed on the campus and on its arrival at Woolsey Hall, after a march through the Green, the Commencement exercises were held. The order of exercises was as follows:

- I. Prelude Choral and Fugue.....David Stanley Smith.
For Orchestra and Organ, the Organ Part played by Composer.
- II. Prayer.
- III. Psalm LXV.....York Tune.
NOTE.—At the opening of the first college in New Haven, in 1718, the congregation united in singing the first four verses of Psalm LXV, in Sternhold and Hopkins' version.
- IV. Address by the President.
- V. Announcement of Prizes.
- VI. Landkennung .....Edward Grieg.
Male Chorus, Orchestra and Organ. The Baritone
Solo by Mr. Leonard Sanford Tyler.
- VII. Presentation to the President and Fellows by the Deans or Directors of the Respective Faculties of Candidates for Degrees upon Examination; with the Conferring of Degrees, in the following order:

Bachelors of Arts,	Masters of Arts,
Bachelors of Philosophy,	Masters of Laws,
Bachelors of Fine Arts,	Masters of Science,
Bachelors of Music,	Mechanical Engineer,
Bachelors of Laws,	Masters of Forestry,
Bachelors of Divinity,	Doctors of Medicine,
Doctors of Philosophy.
- VIII. Presentation to the President and Fellows by Professor Perrin of Candidates for Honorary Degrees; with the Conferring of Honorary Degrees.
- IX. Ein Feste Burg.....Martin Luther.
- X. Benediction.
- XI. Military March.....Edward Elgar.

Six hundred and ninety-one degrees were conferred.

The Alumni met for their Commencement dinner at 2 P. M., Wednesday, in the University Dining Hall.

From 9 to 11 P. M., Wednesday, President Hadley received the graduates with their families and other invited guests in Memorial Hall.

On Thursday, June 25, at New London, three Yale bows crossed the finish line with more than enough margin to spare. The results of the races were briefly as follows:

Four-oared race—Yale first by three lengths; time 10 minutes  $59\frac{3}{5}$  seconds; Harvard's time, 11 minutes  $10\frac{1}{5}$  seconds.

Freshman eight-oared race—Yale first by two and one-half lengths; time 9 minutes  $43\frac{1}{5}$  seconds; Harvard's time, 9 minutes 52 seconds.

University eight-oared race—Yale first by two and three-quarters lengths; time 20 minutes  $19\frac{4}{5}$  seconds; Harvard's time 20 minutes  $29\frac{3}{5}$  seconds.

Commencement week may be said to have ended when the chimes of Battell Chapel sounded midnight of Thursday. After the evening's celebration at New Haven of the day's victories at New London the class of 1903 adjourned not sine die but until reunions such as this of 1906, when the never-ending thread is taken up again and the Commencement week of 1903 and the four short years which preceded it are reviewed with their wealth of memories.

YALE SINCE 1903.

---

By G. S. ARNOLD.

A Yale Professional School is, to one who has graduated from the college, like a thick soup after a good dinner—to enjoy it one must forget the past. Because I have tried to put aside collegiate activities, doubtless this dissertation will resemble Caspar Whitney's remarks on football by being—to express it mildly—somewhat inaccurate.

Yale, when 1903 had filtered away, was, of course, a ring with the gem gone. This makes it seem incomprehensible that the spirit of improvement and progress, with which the University became imbued on or about September 26, 1899, did not reach its culmination on or about June 23, 1903,—and indeed has not yet done so. More significant changes have taken place in the last ten years than in many preceding, and of these ten the last three have not been in any way the least. Physically, the advance has been manifest to anyone who has cared to read the catalog, or who has been in New Haven. But intellectually and morally the advance, though not so patent, has been just as great.

The material changes are many. South Middle is, through what we must now admit to be the wise and well-timed solicitation of Judge Baldwin and the other alumni who paid for the renovation, no longer the derelict of the campus. As Connecticut Hall it has a simple colonial aspect for which the apology of sentiment is not necessary. Around Chittenden Library there is the San Francisco of a time from which the new Library is soon to rise. Those of us who were Pundits, and most of the rest of us, will regret the certain downfall of the old Library—Yale's greatest claim to architectural glory—but its asterisk is soon due. Over on the Oval stands Lampson Lyceum, and (shades of Stevy!) in front of it is a flower garden. Say ye, men of 1903, would not a mighty harvest of gourds and beans and cucumbers have sprouted up in the night time had it been there in our ribald Senior year?

Over in Sheffdom, one new Vanderbilt dormitory has long since resounded with the good cheer of belated Moryites, and next to Byers Hall another is rising. On Hillhouse Avenue, fair in its brown sandstone, but motorish of odor, stands the new Kirtland Laboratory. The Hammond Laboratory on Mansfield Street is still another witness of the growth of Sheff. and the well-deserved generosity of its patrons. But the greatest addition to the University had been the greater part of Hillhouse square,—now Yale's Park, where men in Lincoln green fussing nursemaids disport themselves on bright days. No small additions, these, for three years.

The size of the classes both in college and in the professional schools, has increased greatly—the growth in Sheff., especially to one who does not consider its practical advantages, is astounding. Then, too, on warm July nights one may see a strange new species of co-ed on the campus flitting from tree to tree and cooing to a strange new species of student—migratories these, in Yale's new Summer School. But in the main there is little froth to blow away before reaching the real growth; it is substantial.

Pride in numbers, to be sure, is a cheap pride. Yet we may have an honest and cherishable pride in the fact that, in spite of increasing numbers in the classes and of the desire for them, the intellectual requirements are higher, and the moral standards even more sanely established and respected than ever before. While this does not mean that Mory's is falling into desuetude, nevertheless excessive drinking is much less common than it once was. The drunkard and the cribber are not yet ostracized, but against these people a steady sentiment is growing. Indeed, it is unfortunate, in reference to the latter, that the classes before whom the question has arisen have been so timid as to refrain from advocating the honor system, and have thereby put upon the College and University a stigma—as they certainly have done by voting that the time is not yet ripe—which in the minds of most faculty members is unjustified.

Because of, rather than in spite of, its increasing size, the University has become more closely welded together. Sheff.

CONNECTICUT HALL (OLD SOUTH MIDDLE).

has extended its influence into what was formerly regarded as the academic circle of activities. Her representation on publications and committees has doubled since 1903, and, considering the probability that there will be more Scientific than Academic Freshmen next year, will be undoubtedly be larger.

The Society system in the Academic department is somewhat changed. Zeta Psi is now upon an equal footing with the three older Junior fraternities. More radical is the proposed system (of which I know only through rumor) of four Freshman societies, to include the entire class, and to be restrained from overboisterousness by their proximity to Dwight Hall, where the odor of sanctity will drown or at least discourage the odor of beer.

Athletically,—I bring coals to Newcastle—Yale has had two championship football teams, two crews, one track team and one baseball team of like degree. Had Yale done more some magazines would surely have exploded. But the interest in athletics, has, it seems to me, declined markedly in the last three years; or, perhaps more accurately, the desire to turn out a winning team is not so all-absorbing. This commentary is made with some hesitation, for it may well be that the writer has been less and less in a position to construe the signs truly. But certainly I am deceived if the enthusiasm is as high, or the disappointment in a defeat as poignant, as it was six, or even three, years ago.

Outside of the undergraduate departments much has been done. Perhaps the most noticeable thing is the drawing together of Town and Gown. True, the impression which one receives from the New York newspapers is decidedly otherwise, but that is due to the custom which certain of the New Haven press have to "yellow" the slightest student disturbance. The two elements have never, in reality, been more in harmony. During the past year many meetings, open to the public, have been held on Sunday afternoons in Woolsey Hall for the discussion of political and economic questions. This courtesy of the University has been received with so thorough and honest appreciation that it seems impossible (though apparently at present it has been decided otherwise) that over-finely drawn religious scruples will be allowed to interfere with an action so manifestly helpful. No university purpose is so strictly a university purpose as the broadcasting of learning, and never have Yale's efforts to this end met with so great success. Approximately the same effect has been produced by the opening of Woolsey Hall, without entrance fee, for the intercollegiate debates. The immense audiences—a large portion of which are workingmen—are a satisfying evidence of New Haven's interest in and appreciation of the University and its work.

Of the changes of personnel in the University only a few can be mentioned. Yale has lost heavily through death—Wayland, Penfield, Beecher and A. S. Wheeler being some of those taken in the last three years. Through resignations, the Philosophy Department has entirely changed. Many of the younger instructors have accepted preceptorships at Princeton. On the administrative side Mr. McClung is now Treasurer of the University.

Financially, the University in 1904 had the unpleasant experience of facing a large deficit, due undoubtedly to abnormal building expenditures. But many gifts, chief of which is that of Mr. Rockefeller, supplemented by an ever-increasing alumni fund, are solving the difficulties.

What has been written is at best a mere category, and it lacks even the merit of completeness. A hundred changes, like the abolition of the entrance requirements in Greek, the formation of the many Senior clubs, and changes in the corporation, either because they have come under no suitable head, or because the writer is ignorant of them, have not been mentioned.

The aims and tendencies of the University are the same, though more pronounced because of the addition of many lecture courses by outside men, as when we were undergraduates. These purposes—perhaps it is trite to mention them—may not be those of other universities, but they certainly are Yale's;—to mould valuable Americans rather than great scholars; to produce for the country large numbers of its best citizens, rather than a few who are preëminent.

THE TRIENNIAL REUNION.

BY THOMAS HOOKER, JR.

"Oh there's Nineteen Two and there's Nineteen Four,
And there's going to be a lot of nineteens more,
But Nineteen Three is the best company
That ever came into the University."

"Until Triennial" we had said with the last handshakes and Triennial was already a great certainty in the vague paths of the future, when the trumpet sounded and with loins well girded we stepped forth from Yale into the great arena outside. Few plans were made, few jobs taken without the thought of getting back to New Haven for the last June days of 1906, and three annual dinners at the Yale Club attended by the fortunate wage-earners of that neighborhood and a few stray mug-hunters who were lured from the west into the race for the long distance cup, only served to whet the appetite of those present and to strengthen the resolve of all others to be on hand in New Haven when the roll was called.

The advance guard of the Triennial band began to gather at the Yale Club Thursday and Friday before Commencement, and by Saturday morning handfuls of 1903 commenced to make an appearance upon Chapel Street and the Campus. A great 1903 banner strung across the front of Osborn Hall bore greeting to the first arrivals and soon the steps underneath showed here and there faces that we all knew well and could still recognize in spite of signs of advancing years, and as increasing numbers bred confidence there was a tuning up of motley voices and the old songs were unburied once more. By boat and train the returning prodigals drifted into town and by late afternoon the Class was present in such numbers that the New Haven Register was already reviving the glories of the Jolly Eight and the Pewees and the mysteries of the Penny Club. With some the first visit was to Louis Linder and the "Temple Bar," others hastened to investigate the heralded changes of Savin Rock and Momauguin, while others were content to stroll up to the Campus to sit and smoke and talk and await the next arrivals. By night small groups were dining at Mory's and discussing the last news from Gales Ferry, or cutting capers at the "White City" which now blossoms at Savin Rock.

Sunday was a day of "Auld Lang Syne"—without chapel—and the salts repaired to the Yacht Club and the harbor, others recollected one Walter Scott and the merits of the Waverly Inn, and for still others the Campus was the seat of attraction, and there were called up the stories and life of those four golden years when we had worked and played together, and grown some under the wing of mother Yale. And there we went over the interests that had come since graduation, and swapped news of those classmates too far away to get back. The Campus was little changed. Old South Middle rehabilitated in approved colonial style at one end of the Campus and appearing under the "nom de plume" of Connecticut Hall, and Durfee at the other end, we found vying with each other in the proud possession of bath tubs, while over by Chittenden ground had already been broken for a section of the new library. Across at the end of Berkeley court a new creature of architectural triumph greeted us in Lampson Hall, where now is housed that mirthless department, the Dean's Office. Beneath this unfamiliar hall flourishes in bold and dazzling array a mighty flower bed that in its short life in the Yale world has proved itself far better acclimated to its surroundings than that ill-starred sun dial which contended with a peevish fate under our unfortunate chaperonage. Over on the Campus beneath the elms that have withstood the ravages of the Forestry School we found patches of that well remembered grass, ill used but still unconquered, which lines the walk that runs from Vanderbilt court to the Fence and the scene of our grandest ball-tossing exhibitions. Stretched at length on the greensward with the old buildings raising their roofs about us and the chapel clock chiming out the quarter hour, it was easy to feel at home again and to dream that the old days had come back. With the old two-rung fence beneath us and the pipes of yore again in commission, the spirit of hidden song was stirred, and Sunday evening, clustered in front of Durfee, a familiar group was singing the good refrains that we had made echo through the rooms at Mory's in the winter and across the Campus on nights in Spring.

TRIENNIAL GROUP.

Triennial had its official opening on Monday, and all morning long the committee kept open house in A 1 Osborn, where convict stripes of latest cut were distributed to a clamorous throng eager to achieve fame, and by noon convicts of every size and degree of depravity were boldly stalking at large in the heart of the city, openly defying the "Zouaves" of 1900, who a few hours earlier had been disastrously routed upon the Campus by the Triennial ball players under the able leadership of Charlie Littlefield. More sails upon the harbor, jaunts into the country, gatherings at Louis' to toy with mutton chops and golden bucks, and more raids upon the White City, where the convicts soon made themselves the center of attraction and elicited riotous applause by their dexterity on the roller skating floor, and other like games of chance, made Monday pass all too soon. And still the stragglers were coming into town. Monday afternoon had come Class day, in the evening the concert of the musical clubs and later the Senior Promenade. Feeling against the convicts seemed to have fermented among the door keepers at the latter function, and stripes we were told would not let us in, so with some excellent harmony at the fence and arousing the echoes of the night with the songs of the chain gang and Sing Sing the Class broke up until the morrow.

With the coming of Tuesday morning the corner from Osborn to the New Haven House was gay and congested with a throng of Zouaves, Buster Browns, Japanese representatives and Convicts and the gala day dawned fair. After the general Alumni Meeting the Class gathered for its business meeting in A 1 Osborn, which was packed to the doors. Reports were read from the Triennial and Alumni Fund committees, and the Secretary reported the deaths of three members: Irving McDonald, Walter Sullivan and Dave Cory. With the election of a Sexennial committee the Class adjourned to Osborn Hall steps, where various photographers did their best to immortalize the 1903 triennial costume.

By half past one the long chain gang had formed upon the Campus under the direction of Oliver and his assistants, and soon after, single file and lock step, each with his hands on the shoulders of the man before, left legs lifted high with the weight of blue balloons that dangled from the ankle, two hundred convicts passed through the Cheney-Ives gateway and, turning into Chapel Street, began the dusty march to the field and the scene of Harvard's coming discomfiture. Broken by numerous halts but accorded rounds of applause from the passing crowds the long march was made, and just before three o'clock ten thousand people on the grandstands and other reunion classes already gathered on the field joined in deafening applause as the Class of 1903, heralded by music and led by Joe Thomas and Bert McCormick back to back on a decrepit white horse with convict trappings on legs and tail, turned the corner of the left field bleacher and its long swinging line of stripes made its triumphal journey to home plate. Two hundred strong, the line advanced unbroken save only where in the center in a large cage borne aloft by four dusky sons of Africa, one "Steve," too dangerous to be allowed entire freedom, supplied with all known instruments for jail breaking, toiled valiantly and fiercely to effect his escape. A temporary halt near third base proved complete disaster, for the scouts of 1900 catching sight of the stripes from the direction of first, charged across the diamond, and rapidly unlimbering a cannon retrieved their baseball defeat of Monday and with one carefully executed shot swept down the convict ranks to a man, amid the tremendous applause of the spectators. But the shattered line soon formed again and once more the march began. Arrived at the center of the grandstand, the prison cage, weakened by the cannonading and Steve's persistent efforts, gave way, and the prisoner darted away to obtain his freedom, but immediately the Class swarmed in wild disorder upon the diamond to cut him off and escape was impossible. His capture made, the chain gang took up its position on the grass and a few vacant seats which no one else seemed to want in deep right field, there to witness the downfall of the sons of Harvard. Chairman "Gus" Oliver showed his accustomed versatility all through the afternoon, slavishly catering to the wants of the band and ministering to the thirsty with untiring zeal and a studied disregard of the affair that was progressing upon the diamond. The afternoon was perfect, and the game a good one, ending to our complete satisfaction in the tenth inning, when Jackson did much to remove the cover from the ball by a long hit in the direction of the track house. Immediately the reunion classes poured out upon the field and 1903 as a body was soon running home runs about the bases in a way that put all previous playing to shame. Leap frog, dancing, spasms of "Omega Lambda Chi" and other mild forms of exercise continued until exhaustion set in, and then with a short wait, to get our second wind, the return march to the city was begun and the dusty road retravelled. Arrived there, the Class fell into lock step again and repaired to the home of President Hadley, who received us with sorrow as a horrible example of what Yale men had come to under his administration.

At seven o'clock the Class proceeded to the Young Men's Republican Club for the Triennial dinner, where headed by the band we made a tour of the hall in lock step and then sat down to a repast well worthy to be chronicled for its high good fellowship and conviviality and withal a certain dignity. There the "Class Boy Cup" was duly and fittingly presented to Dan Kennedy, Jr., who however as well as his father was unfortunately unable to be on hand. Four black-faced artists secured at great expense so worked upon the feelings of those present that more than one "got a feeling in his feet just like St. Vitus dance," and Pete Farnum graciously gave a performance that will go down in the annals of the Class as unsurpassed. The dinner was served expeditiously and well, and to a successful close. After promiscuous waltzing had been indulged in by the Class as a body, the line formed again, and with a final passage of the banquet hall tripped down the stairs to the street at an early hour, and heavily laden with sticks of red fire and roman candles marched up to the Campus in brilliant array, the first class to appear. There we found a huge bonfire only waiting to be touched off and soon the flames were shooting skyward and 1903 was celebrating the first Commencement baseball victory over Harvard it had witnessed as a class. The mass of flames shortly assumed such proportions that trees began to burn in a number of places and later firemen were called to protect them. Little by little the other reunion classes, proclaimed by music and illuminated by red fire, joined us in the work of celebration and the Campus became a scene of much festivity and brilliancy. The presence of a refreshment wagon served to keep up the spirits of the drooping ones and the jollification continued on until a late hour, and it was in quite the wee small hours when the dying embers were finally deserted and the last convicts slipped off the fence and sought their borrowed beds.

Wednesday morning the Class had dwindled perceptibly, and all costumes had been laid aside, but quite a number of the fellows gathered at noon for the Alumni Dinner that followed the Commencement exercises and the next day even more made the journey to New London to see the heartbreaking race that was lost to Harvard. Triennial was over,—Triennial that had been dreamed of so long had come and gone in a moment. It was a great testimony to the spirit of 1903 that at the reunion in New Haven in June 1906 208 men were back, the largest attendance that any triennial class has yet mustered. Men came veritably from the ends of the earth to be present in New Haven those precious days, and those who could not come were missed and will be doubly welcome in 1909. Doctors, lawyers, teachers, kings of finance, all were counted present and came from every corner of the map. Freeman travelled 5000 miles from Portugal to be present those few June days; Melcer in California found at the last moment he could come for a few hours, and arriving too late for the ball game we were able to welcome him when we sat down to dinner that night; while McCormick and Porter hazarded the very existence of the political and social structure of Illinois to join the ranks in New Haven. Surpassing the rosiest dreams of anticipation, substantiating to the letter the accredited spirit and good fellowship of 1903, Triennial will long remain a bright spot in the memory of those who were there and resolve all who were absent to be on hand when the roll is called in 1909.

The following were present:—Alsop, Anderson, Archbald, G. S. Arnold, Atwater, C. R. Auchincloss, Bacon, Baldwin, Barber, Beardsley, Bennethum, Benton, Berman, Bill, Bishop, Black, Bloomer, Blount, Bogue, Bond, Bowers, Brady, Brereton, Bristol, Burdett, Cameron, Campbell, Carter, Chadwick, H. T. Clark, R. K. Clark, Clement, Cochran, Coffey, Coleman, Conant, Condict, Corning, Cowling, Crowe, Cushman, C. O. Day, Jr., Denno, Dodge, Donohoe, Draper, Dreisbach, Dunham, DuPuy, DuVal, Ellsworth, Everts, Fairbank, Fairbanks, Farnum, Farrel, Ferguson, Ferry, Fitch, Fitzgerald, Foster, Fox, Freeman, Frew, Frisbie, Fulton, Furst, Gaines, Gans, F. C. Gilbert, G. B. Gilbert, Gleason, Goodwin, Goss, Granniss, Green, Greene, Haas, Hackett, Hamlin, Hart, Hartjen, Hartridge, Hazard, Hedges, Hess, Hileman, C. Hitchcock, Jr., Hooker, Howard, Hurst, Hyatt, Irvine, H. James, D. K. Johnston, W. P. Johnston, N. R. Jones, Kelly, Kent, Kingman, Kirtland, Lamb, Lane, Langley, Leach, Leonard, Lewis, L'Hommedieu, Littlefield, Lyon, Lyons, McCormick, McKesson, MacLane, MacLean, Mann, J. Marshall, M. Mason, Melcer, Mills, Minor, Moffat, C. A. Moore, Jr., F. W. Moore, Moulton, Mulford, Mullen, Munson, Nesmith, Ney, Ogden, Oliver, Ostby, Parsons, Peckham, Perkins, Pierce, Plummer, Pomeroy, Porter, Pratt, Rankin, Reynolds, S. W. Rhoads, Richards, Richardson, Roberts, Robinson, Roraback, Rosenthal, Sanford, Sargent, Sawyer, Schley, B. M. Smith, G. A. Smith, W. B. W. Smith, Somers, Stauffer, Stern, Stevens, Stevenson, Stillman, Stuart, J. B. Sullivan, Sutphin, Sweet, Sykes, Terriberry, Terrill, Thacher, J. B. Thomas, Jr., E. V. Thompson, G. J. Thomson, Thorstenberg, Townsend, Trenholm, Tulin, Tyler, Utley, VanderPoel, Van Deventer, Van Dyke, Van Tassel, Vestling, Waddell, Wait, Wakefield, Waldron, R. W. Walker, W. B. Walker, H. M. Wallace, Waring, A. W. Warner, Washington, E. F. Webster, Wescott, Whitcomb, H. S. White, J. R. White, W. O. White, Wickwire, Wilhelmi, Williams, Willis, Winch, Wing and Woodbine.

Seventy-eight were present at the Alumni Dinner on June 27: Anderson, G. S. Arnold, Bacon, Baldwin, Bennethum, Black, Bond, Brereton, Bristol, Burdett, Cameron, Campbell, H. T. Clark, Coleman, Corning, Cowling, Cushman, C. O. Day, Jr., Donohoe, Dunham, Farnum, Ferry, Freeman, Gans, Gleason, H. G. Greene, Haas, Hackett, Hamlin, Hart, Hazard, Hedges, Hileman, Howard, Irvine, D. K. Johnston, N. R. Jones, Kent, Kingman, Kirtland, Leonard, Lewis, L'Hommedieu, Lyon, McKesson, D. B. MacLane, Mann, Melcer, Moffat, Nesmith, Ogden, Pratt, Rankin, Reynolds, Richardson, Roraback, Sanford, Sargent, Schley, W. B. W. Smith, Somers, Stauffer, Stevenson, Sutphin, Sweet, Terriberry, Thorstenberg, Tulin, Van Dyke, Waddell, W. B. Walker, H. M. Wallace, Waring, Washington, J. R. White, Williams, Willis and Woodbine.

TRIENNIAL SONGS. ·

Everybody works but the convicts
 And we're in jail all day;
 We live on bread and water
 Just to pass the time away;
 We walk in chains and lockstep
 In stripes of blue and white,
 But they won't see us in Sing Sing.
 We're out of sight!
 The d—d old convicts!

Plummer.

Take me back to Sing Sing,
 Bring my ball and chain,
 Call the prison barber;
 Give, O, give me back my stripes again.

Put me in my little cell,
 Bolt and bar the door,
 As you used to do when I was in before,
 When I was in before.

DANIEL EDWARDS KENNEDY, JR.
Aged 2 Years.

THE CLASS BOY.

---

To the Members of Yale 1903:

With the class baby, his mother and father extend to each and every member of the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Three their deepest thanks for the cup voted to Daniel Edwards Kennedy, Junior, at the Triennial banquet. In return we wish to repeat to all, what we have at different times told to the few whom we have seen since graduation, that beside the hearth in the home of the Class Boy there will always be a seat reserved for those of 1903 who wish to partake of the hospitality that we can give them. Come as informally as you would drop into a room on the campus, do not wait for the specific invitation, and we will talk over the old four years and all that they contained, and with a little curly-headed fellow for the most attentive listener we will try and tie up the old broken threads of good fellowship.

As is quite natural, you are probably anxious to hear something about the young man whom you have honored. In keeping with the lucky star under which he was born he very early learned to prefer Yale to any other University. He has a liking for the blue and his eyes follow his liking. His first athletic exercise of note was a low tackle—but unfortunately he mistook a toy for a ball and an asphalt walk for the gridiron. But then he has the right spirit. Whatever his defects may be, and we hope he has some, he is probably going to be more or less of a diplomat in the periodic Yale-Harvard arbitrations, which we deduce from the fact that his doctor was a Harvard College and Harvard Medical graduate. The doctor will live to regret the day if he ever sees the Class Boy of 1903 one of the men to defeat old Harvard.

It was our intention to send a few words of greeting to the Class to be read at the banquet, but not being sure that it would be the proper thing to do and being ignorant of the presentation ceremonies, we did not do so. Our class secretary has given us this opportunity to make up for our omission and we sincerely hope that you all will feel that we have done so.

In closing we can only repeat our invitation to you all. We hope you will some day see the Boy and judge for yourself whether or not he is worthy of our class. With best of wishes for the health and prosperity of you all, we are Very sincerely yours,

MR. AND MRS. DANIEL EDWARDS KENNEDY.

BIOGRAPHY.

---

Charles Roberts Aldrich (B.A. 1903) was born in Fort Wayne, Ind., March 5, 1877, prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered Yale with the Class of 1902 in the fall of 1898. He was taken ill while travelling in Europe in the summer of 1899 and remained abroad for a year, returning in 1900 to join the Class of 1903 at the beginning of Sophomore year.

His father, Charles H. Aldrich, a lawyer of Evanston, Ill., and Solicitor-General of the United States during President Harrison's administration, is the son of Hamilton Aldrich and Margaret (Sherwood) Aldrich, and received his B.A. from the University of Michigan in 1875.

His mother, whose maiden name was Helen Urania Roberts, is the daughter of D. H. Roberts and Clarissa (Twitchell) Roberts.

In college Aldrich was successively Secretary and Treasurer, Vice President and President of the Cercle Français, was a member of the Pundits and of Psi Upsilon. He received special two-year Senior honors in English and held a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

Shortly after graduation he published with L. S. Kirtland as co-editor, Thomas Deloney: his Thomas of Reading and Three Ballads on the Spanish Armada.

He writes from Keith Smith's (Yale 1902) Ranch, Linwood, Uintah County, Utah, under date of March 20th: "Here is the information you wish, or at least part of it. I am sorry I have no better account of myself to give; but I have been ill practically ever since graduation. We all took our Senior years differently, you know: I dissipated in English literature to the tune of forty-two hundred pages a week; and the result was more disastrous than ever an overdose of Wein, Weib, Gesang could have been. I started in studying law at Northwestern, but broke down with strain of the optic nerves and nervous prostration. About half a year later, down on a ranch in Texas, just as I was getting to feel a little fit once more, my broncho turned a somersault and lit on me. Ever since then I have been endeavoring to recover from this accident."

His address he gives as 618 Home Insurance Building, Chicago, Ill.

Francis Johonnot Oliver Alsop (B.A. 1903) was born in Middletown, Conn., May 6, 1881, prepared at the Groton (Mass.) School, and entered college in 1899.

His father, Joseph Wright Alsop, M.D., who died in June 1891, was born in New York City, August 30, 1838, was a member of the Class of 1858, S.S.S., was Connecticut State Senator and Representative, and Lieutenant Governor in 1890. He was the son of Joseph Wright Alsop, of New York, of the firm of Alsop & Co., merchants of Valparaiso, San Francisco and New York, and of Mary Alsop (Oliver) Alsop.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Winthrop Beach, died in 1889. She was the daughter of Hunn Carington Beach and Mary Charlotte (deKoven) Beach.

Two brothers preceded Alsop at Yale: Joseph W. Alsop (1898 S.) and John deK. Alsop (1902). Hon. Samuel W. Dana (Yale 1775) was a great-great-uncle.

In college he was pitcher on the Freshman Baseball Nine, played on the University Golf team, and was a member of Hé Boulé, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Scroll and Key societies. He held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: "In September, 1903, I started on a trip around the world with A. D. Dodge and B. M. Smith, both of our class. We crossed the continent by way of the Canadian Pacific Railway and after a few weeks spent in Southern California, sailed for the Orient. In crossing the Pacific we touched at Honolulu, and then went to and through Japan, to Shanghai, Hong Kong and neighboring Chinese ports, and to Manila, when we took a trip in the Island of Luzon. From the Philippines we went to Singapore, to and through Java, back to Singapore, and on to Calcutta, stopping en route at Penang. From Calcutta we crossed India to Bombay stopping at many places on the way, and from Bombay we sailed through Suez to Cairo, whence we went to Italy, where I left Smith (Dodge having already left us and gone to Borneo with G. A. Goss, '03), and returned to the United States via England, getting here in the summer of 1904. I wrote a few articles about my trip which appeared in the Springfield Republican, Los Angeles Weekly Times, Outing, and the Metropolitan Magazine. In August 1904, I went to Santa Barbara, Cal., where I was engaged in helping a relative with his business affairs, and in working in the Santa Barbara County National Bank. I returned east in the spring of 1905 and a month later started to work in Boston for the firm of S. D. Bush & Co., brokers and dealers in cotton, where I am still (January 1906) occupied. My business address is 71 Kilby St., Boston, Mass., and my home address is 2 Brimmer St."

Luther Anderson (B.A. Bethany Coll. 1899, B.A. Yale 1903, M.A. Yale 1904) was born in Lindsborg, Kan., March 20, 1880, prepared for college at Bethany Academy, Lindsborg, Kan., and after graduating from Bethany College entered the Class at the beginning of the Senior year.

His father, John Israel Anderson, a farmer of Lindsborg, was born in Upland, Sweden, December 23, 1852, the son of John Anderson, a Swedish merchant who came to America in 1867, and of Margreta Helena (Phersdotter) Anderson.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ida Carolina Hultman, is the daughter of John Hultman, a Swedish farmer who came to America in 1868, and of Brita Katrina (Nilsson) Hultman.

Anderson held a High Oration Senior appointment in college, and since graduation has been studying history in the Yale Graduate School.

His present address is 254 Crown St., New Haven, Conn. His home address is Lindsborg, Kan.

Charles Tubbs Andrews (B.A. 1903) was born in Penn Yan, N. Y., March 12, 1881, prepared at the Penn Yan Academy and entered college in September 1899.

His father, John Tuttle Andrews (Union 1864), a lawyer and one time postmaster of Penn Yan, was born in North Reading, Schuyler County, N. Y., March 9, 1842, the son of Edwin C. Andrews of Dundee, N. Y., and of Luzetta (Ward) Andrews.

His mother, whose maiden name was Arvilla Raplee, died August 5, 1902, and was the daughter of Ira Raplee, a Penn Yan merchant, and of Polly (Smith) Raplee.

A brother, Edwin C. Andrews, graduated from Yale in 1900.

In college Andrews was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, held a High Oration Junior appointment and an Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "Have been with John T. Andrews & Company, paper manufacturers, since graduation. Am now in charge of the mill."

His address is Penn Yan, N. Y.

Theodore Andrews (B.A. 1903) was born November 29, 1882, in Albany, N. Y., prepared for college at the Albany Academy, and entered with the Class.

His father, Horace Andrews, Jr., a civil engineer residing in Albany, was born March 19, 1852, in New Haven, Conn., graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School in 1871, received his civil engineer's degree in 1872, and was from 1886 to 1889 City Engineer of Albany. He is the son of Horace Andrews (Yale 1841) and Julia Russell (Johnson) Andrews.

His mother, whose maiden name was Adeline Louise Downer, died December 8, 1893, and was the daughter of Samuel Robertson Downer, of New Haven, and Charlotte Root (Forbes) Downer.

Besides his father and grandfather, Andrews' great-grandfather, Prof. Ethan Allen Andrews, graduated from Yale in 1810, and an uncle, Ethan A. Andrews, from the Sheffield Scientific School in 1881.

In college he held an Oration Junior and Oration Senior appointment, and received a first grade Berkeley premium in Latin composition Freshman year.

He writes: "For the first two years since June 1903 I have lived at 125 Lancaster St., Albany, when at home; and that is still my 'fixed and permanent' address. I was, however, studying architecture at Columbia, with considerable vim perhaps, but not enough enthusiasm. A year ago I decided that there were more men who were willing to work wanted in the ministry than in architecture, so I became a candidate for Holy Orders under the Episcopal Bishop of New York. Last fall I entered the General Theological Seminary of the Episcopal Church, in

New York, with the class graduating in 1908. I have not definitely committed my mind to the foreign or any other mission field as a sphere of work, but it is probable that I will not stay in this vicinity after ordination.

"During the summers I have done a little office work in architecture, as well as some field work with my father in surveying. In the summer of 1904 my father and I were abroad two months, visiting England, France, Belgium and Holland in a more or less Bohemian fashion! The only work I seem to have done in politics has been to vote."

His present address is care General Theological Seminary, 175 9th Ave., New York City. His home address is 125 Lancaster St., Albany, N. Y.

Hugh Archbald (B.A. 1903) was born in Scranton, Pa., October 30, 1880, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class.

His father, Robert Woodrow Archbald, presiding judge of the 45th Judicial District of Pennsylvania, was born in Carbondale, Pa., September 10, 1848, graduated from Yale in 1871, and resides in Scranton. He is the son of James Archbald, for many years civil engineer for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, and of Elizabeth (Frothingham) Archbald.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Baldwin Cannon, is the daughter of J. B. Cannon and Anna (Miller) Cannon.

Besides his father Archbald numbers among his Yale relatives a brother, Robert W. Archbald, Jr., (1898); and James Archbald, Jr., (1887), Joseph A. Archbald (1888 S.), and Rev. Thomas F. Archbald (1896), first cousins.

He graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment, "and since leaving New Haven I have done nothing but study more or less faithfully at the School of Mines at Columbia. I expect to get through the course some time next summer (1906) and will then look for a job, where I may draw some of the worldly wherewithal according to the principles of success which I am now learning. The summer after graduating I worked for Stevenson and Knight, mining engineers at Scranton, Pa., in order to see what mining was actually like. I am not engaged nor have I been in the past, but am heart-whole and ready to be plucked."

Permanent address: 236 Monroe Ave., Scranton, Pa.

George Stanleigh Arnold (B.A. 1903, LL.B. 1906) was born in New Haven, Conn., April 3, 1881, prepared at the Hillhouse High School, New Haven, and at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, George Sumner Arnold, a merchant of New Haven, died November 7, 1888. He was born at New Haven, Conn., April 16, 1846, the son of Ebenezer Arnold, a merchant of New Haven, and of Ann Eliza (Sears) Arnold.

His mother, whose maiden name was Evelyn Greenwood Thomson, was the daughter of Amos H. Thomson, a farmer of Bethlehem, Conn., and of Lucinda (Harrison) Thomson.

Arnold's Yale relatives include a brother, Harold S. Arnold (1900), and four cousins: Joseph H. Townsend (1885), E. S. Lewis (1899 S. and 1902), Dudley P. Lewis (1903) and A. L. Hull (1905).

In college he was financial editor of the Yale Literary Magazine, Secretary of the University Football Association, a Class Historian, member of the Pundits and of Chi Delta Theta and Zeta Psi societies. He took Honors in English Composition Sophomore year, and held an Oration Junior appointment and a First Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "I have been leading a double life—Dr. Jekylling as a student in the Yale Law School, Mr. Hydeing as an Instructor of English in Sheff. Now it might be supposed that staying in New Haven is a continuation of the joys of college, especially when one is intimately connected with two ancient and honorable branches of the University. Be disillusioned. It is a continuation analogous to arising at six o'clock on a foggy winter morning and beholding steins broken or half-filled, to remind one of the night before. Or again, it is like eating yesterday's Welsh rarebit warmed over.

"I was about to pass over suggestion two, but on second thoughts I feel it necessary to justify myself in the eyes of Teddy and the Class. I admit that, although 'a Miss is good—once in a while,' I have let my naturally timid disposition lead me away from the broad and wide way leading to fussing. Moreover love's labor costs, and hard food for Midas will have none of me. Further, it is a settled maxim of the habitues of the Graduates Club that 'Where there's a wife there's a rope,' and though I realize that 'Good game is she who hath great riches' to one who frets at living on faith, hope and charity—(mostly charity)—still I feel that I am not quite ready to enjoy a happy home, even if by some accident I should find a maiden so foolish as to accept. Still, you will see by the deep thought conveyed in the above maxims that I have given the matter much thought.

"I have been studying law and know the difference between a demurrer and a referendum. The Harvard Graduates Magazine to the contrary notwithstanding, I wish to recommend the Yale Law School as one of the most satisfactory institutions for the study of law that I can imagine. I shall be glad to honor it by accepting an LL.B. from it in June. Joking aside, I think that we of the Academic Department habitually underrate the advantages of the Yale Law School. If there were space I should be tempted to enter into a rather long eulogy of it.

"I have published nothing except six sets of examination papers. I have, however, been Chairman of the editorial board of the Yale Law Journal. My journeys have been confined to two trips to the Hudson Bay regions, and one to Cambridge.

"This, I think, is a complete account of my doings up to date. I am undecided as to my future residence, oscillating between Hoboken, the Philippines, Walla Walla, Seattle and Oshkosh. I hope that I shall not allow my aesthetic desire for euphony to interfere with my professional prospects. Letters sent to 36 Dwight Street, New Haven, Conn., will reach me. If not, address care Pluto."

August 20, 1906, Arnold entered the law office of Talcott H. Russell, 42 Church St., New Haven, Conn.

Stanfield Nichols Arnold (M.E. Columbia 1905) was born July 26, 1882, in New York City, prepared for college at the Berkeley School, New York, and entered with the Class.

His father, John Harvey Vincent Arnold, who died March 30, 1901, was a lawyer, one time President of the Board of Aldermen, also Surrogate of New York City and County. He was born in New York, July 28, 1838, the son of John Arnold, a shipowner and trader with the far East, and Maria Teresa (Harvey) Arnold.

His mother, whose maiden name was Josephine Augusta

Ormsby, died May 11, 1905. She was the daughter of Leonard Ormsby, a New York merchant, and Gertrude (Roberts) Ormsby.

In college Arnold was a member of the Freshman Basketball team, was Captain of the Fencing team in Freshman and Sophomore years and held a Second Dispute Junior appointment. He left college at the end of Sophomore year. Of his career since leaving Yale he writes:

"As you know I left Yale at the end of Sophomore year, my father's death determining me to strike out at once into the line I had intended to follow,—therefore in the fall of 1901 I entered the School of Mines at Columbia. I should have finished the four years course in three years but for an attack of typhoid which laid me up half a year. So, instead of graduating with the class of 1904 I received my degree of Mechanical Engineer in February 1905 and am registered with that class. While in Columbia I joined the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. So I entered the world two years later than my real class, all of whom were, doubtless, earning princely salaries while I was looking for a job. I found that 'job' with the Stirling Boiler Company of New York and began my education with the ultimate object of being employed in their tropical trade. Firstly it was necessary to learn thoroughly the process of sugar manufacture, so on February 4th (1905) I went to Porto Rico and spent six months at the Sucherie Central Coloso. I shall not enlarge on the experience since this is a polite letter, and an expurgated account of those six months would fail to convey my sentiments. There were two other white men at the Central—the sugar boiler who was fat, uneducated and quoted Shakespeare, and the Chief Engineer who was from Brooklyn—need I say more? The first three months, not recognizing my analogy to the man who tried to hustle the East, I nearly had apoplexy trying to make the unhappy natives work. Thereafter, perceiving that the wiley Porto Rican was sitting down, watching me hustle, I subsided, took to pajamas and cigarillos and eventually became the laziest man on the plantation. During this time I assert that I did not have one square meal—there was a grill room in San Juan which I owned while waiting for my return steamer. My first meal there is a matter of history. At any rate from a chronic weight of a hundred and thirty pounds on the island I jumped to a hundred and fifty before reaching New York—the trip consumed five days. Can you figure where most of my time on board was spent? I then entered the services of the Stirling Company in earnest and have since installed somewhat over seven thousand horse power of their boilers all over the country bounded by New York, Boston, Cleveland, Columbus and Pittsburg. This is, of course, merely the dog-work of engineering, but valuable as independent experience and, on the whole, amusing in its variety. When one has learned to handle a gang of ‘hunkies’ who neither talk or understand English without losing his temper—well—something has been accomplished. I do not expect to remain long with this company, only until I have gained such knowledge as their class of work affords, then I am going into railroading in Canada or Oregon. My one hope is that I shall be near enough to New Haven next spring to join the old class at its reunion. I only spent two years at Yale and took a degree at Columbia, but there is never a question as to which is my college. In view of possible change of business my surest address will be the Yale Club (30 West 44th St.), New York.”

William Brown Arvine (B.A. 1903) was born at South Manchester, Conn., November 24, 1879, prepared at Hopkins Grammar School and Hillhouse High School, New Haven, Conn., and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Earlliss Porter Arvine (B.A. Yale 1869, LL.B. 1871), a lawyer and at one time Assistant City Attorney of New Haven, was born at Woonsocket, R. I., April 19, 1846, the son of the Rev. Kazlitt Arvine, a graduate of Wesleyan University, and of Mary A. (Porter) Arvine. He resides at 1169 Chapel St., New Haven, Conn.

His mother, whose maiden name was Alice Jane Strong, was the daughter of Artemas Strong and Jane (Brown) Strong of South Manchester, Conn.

Arvine numbers among his Yale relatives besides his father a brother, Earlliss Palmer Arvine ('99 Law School), and another brother, Edward Kazlitt Arvine (1903 S.).

In college he was a member of Chi Delta Theta and graduated with a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "After taking my B.A. in 1903 I taught Greek and English for a year at the Military School in Norwalk, Conn. After that I entered my father's law office in New Haven as a student. In the fall of 1904 I took exams. at the Yale Law School and was admitted to the middle (second year) class. After completing that year of study I was taken ill and was not able to return to the law school to graduate. This last year 1905-6 I have worked for my father and plugged law as much as my eyes would let me. This coming fall I may take the Connecticut bar exams. or I may settle with friends in California. That question the condition of my health this fall will decide."

His business address is care E. P. Arvine, First National Bank Building, New Haven, Conn. His residence is 1169 Chapel St., New Haven.

Morton Atwater (B.A. 1903) was born at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., January 11, 1882, prepared for college at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and Riverview Academy, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and entered with the Class.

His father, Edward Storrs Atwater (Yale 1875), was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, April 10, 1853, the son of John Phelps Atwater (Yale 1834) and of Jane (Phelps) Atwater. He is President of the Farmers and Manufacturers National Bank of Poughkeepsie.

His mother, whose maiden name was Caroline Park Swift, was the daughter of Charles Warner Swift and Mary S. (Messler) Swift.

Beside his father and paternal grandfather, Atwater's Yale relatives include his great-great-grandfather Eleazar Storrs (1762), a great-grandfather, Jeremiah Atwater (1793), and a great-grandfather, Henry Swift (1804).

He graduated with an Oration Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment.

He is now with the firm of Shearson, Hammill & Co., brokers, 71 Broadway, New York City. His residence is 74 Madison Ave. His home address is Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Douglass Henry Atwill (B.A. 1903) was born in Burlington, Vt., June 4, 1881, prepared at the Central High School, Kansas City, Mo., and entered with the Class.

His father, the Right Reverend Edward Robert Atwill, Bishop of Kansas City (Columbia 1863, D.D. University of Vermont), is the son of Robert Edward Atwill and Margaret Elizabeth (Bonesteel) Atwill. He resides at 1709 Linwood Boulevard, Kansas City, Mo.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Whiting, is the daughter of William Whiting and Mary (Christian) Whiting.

Atwill graduated with a Second Dispute Junior and the same Senior appointment.

He writes in November 1905: "My life since college days has been a quiet and uneventful one with no facts of interest. The first year out, partly for the experience and partly to relieve financial stress, I worked in Kansas City, Mo., with the Kansas City Gas Company for nine months, and then in line with my former purpose came to Cambridge to prepare for the ministry in the Protestant Episcopal Church. I have now spent a year and a half here and have one year yet after this one is past, before I begin active practical work. I have done very little outside work unless you would count as such my work here among the missions of Cambridge. My permanent address is 1709 Linwood Boulevard, Kansas City, Mo."

His address in Cambridge, Mass., is 8 Lawrence Hall.

Charles Crooke Auchincloss (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born September 24, 1881, in New York City, prepared for college under a private tutor and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Edgar Stirling Auchincloss, who died March 13, 1892, graduated from New York University in 1867 and was the son of John Auchincloss, a New York merchant, and of Elizabeth (Buck) Auchincloss.

His mother, whose maiden name was Maria La Grange Sloan, was the daughter of Samuel Sloan and Mary (Elmendorf) Sloan.

Besides his cousin, Charles Russell Auchincloss of our Class, his Yale relatives include four brothers: Edgar S. (1896), Hugh (1901), Gordon (1908), and James C. (1908); three uncles: Frederick L. Auchincloss (1871), John W. Auchincloss (1873 S.), and Hugh D. Auchincloss (1879); and another cousin, J. Howland Auchincloss (1908).

In college Auchincloss was substitute on the Freshman crew, an accident taking him out of the boat a week before the Harvard race, a member of the College crew in 1901 and of the winning University Four-oar in 1903. He was an editor of the Pot-Pourri and was a member of Hé Boulé, Psi Upsilon and Scroll and Key societies. He graduated with a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He was married in Boston, Mass., on Tuesday, June 19, 1906, to Miss Rosamond Saltonstall, sister of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Rantoul of Boston. He went abroad for his wedding trip and expects to start the practice of his profession in New York in the fall.

He writes: "Since graduation I've been here at the Harvard Law School. This is my last year. The summer after graduation I travelled abroad for a time with Russell [Auchincloss] and on his going home, with Harry Potter. The summer after my first year here I travelled abroad with G. Auchincloss, 1908, and four others here in my class at the school. Last summer I worked six weeks in the law firm of Strong & Cadwalader, 40 Wall St., New York City, and then went to Murray Bay, Canada, for about a month."

His home address is 24 East 48th St., New York City.

Charles Russell Auchincloss (B.A. 1903) was born November 24, 1881, in New York City, prepared for college at the Cutler School in New York and entered in September 1899.

His father, John Winthrop Auchincloss (Yale 1873 S.), is a member of the firm of Auchincloss Brothers, New York merchants. He was born in New York, April 12, 1853, the son of John Auchincloss and Elizabeth (Buck) Auchincloss.

His mother, whose maiden name was Joanna Howe Russell, is the daughter of Charles Handy Russell, a New York merchant, and of Caroline (Howland) Russell.

Numerous Auchincloss relatives have attended Yale: a brother, J. Howland (1908); two uncles, Frederic L. (1871) and Hugh D. (1879); and five first cousins, Edgar S. (1896), Hugh (1901), Charles C. (1903), Gordon (1908), and James C. (1908).

In college Auchincloss was Secretary and Treasurer of the Freshman Navy, a member of the Sophomore German Committee and Junior Promenade Committee, a member of Hé Boulé and on its Campaign Committee, Chairman of the Psi Upsilon Campaign Committee and a member of Scroll and Key. He held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He was married May 25, 1905, in Middletown, Conn., to Miss Helen Pickering Russell, daughter of Samuel Russell.

He writes: "After graduation I went abroad for two months, travelling in England and on the Continent, and going as far north as Sweden. Upon my return, about October 1st, 1903, I entered the office of the then North American Trust Company as one of the receiving teller's assistants and continued with them for about six months. I then entered the office of a Stock Exchange house, and after being with them in various capacities for about six months more, I bought a seat on the New York Stock Exchange, and have been engaged in active business as a broker ever since, not being connected with any firm as a partner, but doing business for other brokers and firms on the floor of the Exchange."

His address is 20 Broad St., New York City.

Ernest Fairbanks Bacon (B.A. 1903) was born in Oberlin, Ohio, August 6, 1879, and entered Yale in Sophomore year from Gates College, Neligh, Neb.

His father, Rev. Joseph Fletcher Bacon, was born in Colebrook, Pa., June 19, 1850, received his B.D. degree (Congregational) from Oberlin in 1881 and at present resides in Mendon, Ill. He is the son of Ebenezer Bacon.

His mother, whose maiden name was Margaret Eliza Shaw, was the daughter of Abram Shaw and Rachel (McCandless) Shaw.

Bacon was married on November 24, 1904, in Yankton, S. D., to Miss Grace Esther Felber, a graduate of Yankton College in 1903, daughter of James J. Felber, now deceased, of Yankton, S. D.

He writes: "July 1, 1903, saw me at work for the Cable Co., piano manufacturers of Chicago, in their factory at St. Charles, Ill., learning the business. September 1, 1904, they moved me to the Chicago factory of the company to become familiar with the construction of a better grade of pianos. February 1, 1906, they sent me to the factory of the Mason & Hamlin Co. to learn how the best pianos are made. In learning I have had to take my place in the factories and learn by actually making the piano myself. My object is to become a superintendent of a piano factory.

"November 24, 1904, I was happily married and the happiness continues.

"The only organization with which I have become affiliated since graduation is the Masons.

"The most permanent address I know of is care Mason & Hamlin Piano Co., Cambridgeport, Mass."

Thorne Baker (B.A. 1903) was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, June 20, 1881, prepared at the Woodward High School, Cincinnati, and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Charles W. Baker, a lawyer and a graduate of the University of Pacific, was born in Cincinnati, the son of Rev. Greenbury Ross Baker and Maria C. (McCracken) Baker.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Helen Thorne, was the daughter of William F. Thorne, a merchant of Cincinnati, and of Sarah (Collins) Thorne.

In college Baker was Secretary and Treasurer of the Yale Union and held a First Dispute Junior and First Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "I have been attending regularly at the Cincinnati Law School, passed the State bar examinations in December, was sworn in as attorney and am waiting for the course at the Law School to end in May before beginning the practice of law in my father's office. I have been dabbling in business and politics on the side."

In November 1905 he was an unsuccessful candidate on the Republican ticket for the Ohio General Assembly. His business address is 1516 Union Trust Building, Cincinnati, Ohio. He lives at Reading Road and Oak St.

Burton John Baldwin (B.A. Wesleyan 1902, B.A. Yale 1903) was born in Woodbridge, Conn., April 5, 1875, prepared at the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, Conn., and at the Mt. Hermon (Mass.) School and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, John Jeremiah Baldwin, a farmer of Woodbridge, was born in Woodbridge September 28, 1852, the son of Abner Spencer Baldwin and Mary Ann (Camp) Baldwin.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ellen Frances Baldwin, was the daughter of Parsons Baldwin and Mary Jane (Crofton) Baldwin.

Baldwin graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment. During the summer of 1906 he was preaching in the Sixth Presbyterian Church, Newark, N. J.

He writes, November 1905: "The year after graduation was spent at the Yale Divinity School; after that I came here to Union Seminary and roomed with Dick Edwards, Yale 1901. Needless to say the year was pleasantly spent. I have also been taking work at Columbia in Sociology under Prof. Giddings and may take an A.M. this year. Am sorry, indeed, not to be able to report favorably along the matrimonial lines. But have not as yet given up hope!

"Spent the summer of 1903 in Northfield, 1904 working for the Home Missionary Society in Minnesota and in travel in the middle west, 1905 preaching near Burlington, Vt. Preceding the last election in New York I went on the stump for Jerome.

"Any mail address to Union Seminary, 700 Park Ave., New York City, will be forwarded to me. I graduate next May from Union and expect to enter the ministry of the Congregational church. Have been thinking of late of the Yale Mission in China as a possible field of work."

Walter Lewis Barber, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born January 21, 1881, in Waterbury, Conn., prepared at the Waterbury High School and entered Yale in the fall of 1899.

His father, Walter Lewis Barber, M.D., who resides in Waterbury, is the son of Benham Barber and Alice (Wilson) Barber. He was born in Harrington, Conn., June 26, 1851.

His mother, whose maiden name was Fannie Maria Gaylord Hart, died January 30, 1881, and was the daughter of Albert H. Hart and Fannie Maria (Gaylord) Hart.

In college Barber was a member of Zeta Psi. Since leaving Yale he has been studying medicine at Johns Hopkins Medical School. His present address is 1705 Fairmount Ave., Baltimore, Md. His home address is Waterbury, Conn.

Perley Ernest Barbour was born October 7, 1879, in Haverhill, Mass., prepared for Yale at Thayer Academy, South Braintree, Mass., and entered with the Class, leaving college at the end of Sophomore year.

His father, John Barbour, was born in Windsor, Vt., April 24, 1845, is the senior member of the Brockton, Rand Co., leather supply manufacturers, residing at Braintree, Mass. He is the son of Charles H. Barbour and Orilla (Lamphere) Barbour.

His mother, whose maiden name was Malissa Ann Hanson, was the daughter of Edmund Hanson and Rebecca (Emery) Hanson.

In college Barbour was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Zeta Psi, and held a High Oration Junior appointment.

He was married October 14, 1901, at Quincy, Mass., to Miss Mary Augusta Graham, daughter of John R. Graham, General Manager of the Public Works Company of Bangor, Me. He is now superintendent of the Brockton, Rand Co., leather supply manufacturers of Brockton, Mass. His residence is 8 Bigelow St., Quincy, Mass.

Will Tilden Barker (B.A. 1904) was born November 16, 1877, in Farmington, N. H., prepared at Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., and entered college in the fall of 1899. He left the Class in January 1903, to finish the course with the Class of 1904.

His father, Hiram Hayes Barker, was born December 2, 1851, in Farmington, N. H., where he now resides, a retired shoe manufacturer. He is the son of Hiram Barker and Maria (Hayes) Barker of Farmington, N. H.

His mother, whose maiden name was May Ella Pearey, is the daughter of Robert Knight Pearey, a shoe manufacturer and Civil War veteran who died in 1882, and of Mary Amanda (Beals) Pearey.

Barker was substitute catcher on the Freshman Baseball team.

His present address is 42 Abbott St., Worcester, Mass. His home address is Farmington, N. H.

Glover Beardsley (B.A. 1903) was born August 19, 1881, in Auburn, N. Y., prepared for college at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, William Porter Beardsley (Yale 1874), a banker, was born August 4, 1852, the son of Alonzo Glover Beardsley and Anna Phillips (Porter) Beardsley.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Weld Porter, is the daughter of Samuel Quincy Porter of Unionville, Conn., and Maria (Hulbert) Porter.

Beardsley's Yale relatives besides his father include two uncles, A. G. Beardsley, Jr., (1875) and Porter Beardsley (1886), and numerous cousins. In college Beardsley was Business Manager of the Yale Daily News, and a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Elihu Club.

He writes: "On leaving New Haven I entered the shops of the Otis Elevator Company at Yonkers, N. Y. I spent two years in the shops and engineering department of that company and am now with the same company at their New York office, 17 Battery Place. I am endeavoring to get a business education."

His present address is care the Yale Club, 30 West 44th St., New York City. His home address is 102 South St., Auburn, N. Y.

Arthur Charles Becker (B.A. 1903) was born September 25, 1880, in Belleville, Ill., prepared for college at Smith Academy, St. Louis, Mo., and entered with the Class.

His father, Charles Becker, a retired stove manufacturer and banker, Treasurer of Illinois 1888-90, was born in Rockenhäusen, Bavaria, June 24, 1840. He is the son of Urban Becker and Anna (Spross) Becker.

His mother, whose maiden name was Louise Fleischbein, died December 4, 1905, and was the daughter of Jacob Fleischbein, and Louise (Lutz) Fleischbein.

In college Becker was Manager of the University Gymnastic Association.

He writes: "After leaving New Haven in June 1903 I spent the summer in fishing and hunting in northern Wisconsin. Late in September I entered the St. Louis Law School, but was obliged to leave after a few weeks there owing to an injury received playing football, and remained at home in Belleville, Ill., until my recovery from the injury. In January 1904 I entered the employ of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., Chicago, Ill., wholesale hardware merchants. I remained with the above firm until October 1904, when my brother and myself purchased the Osceola Hardware Company, which we are at present conducting with a fair measure of success and lots of hard work. Socially I am a member of the Elks and politically a Republican but have held no office."

His present address is Osceola, Iowa, His home address is 513 East B St., Belleville, Ill.

Joseph Lewi Bendell (B.A. 1903) was born in Albany, N. Y., April 19, 1880, prepared for college at the Albany Academy and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Herman Bendell, M.D. (Albany Medical College 1862), was born October 28, 1843, in Albany, the son of Edward Bendell and Hannah (Stern) Bendell. Dr. Bendell is an ear and eye specialist, has been President of the Medical Society of the County of Albany and of the State of New York and is a professor in the Albany Medical College. He was one time President of the Board of Public Instruction of the city of Albany and was a surgeon in the Union army in the Civil war.

His mother, whose maiden name was Wilhelmina Lewi, is the daughter of Joseph Lewi and Bertha (Schwarz) Lewi.

Bendell graduated with a First Colloquy Senior appointment and has since been attending the Albany Medical College, from which institution he expects to graduate in 1907. He was one of the assistant prosectors in anatomy, session of 1904-5, and President of the Freshman class in the Medical College. His address is 178 State St., Albany, N. Y.

Claude Garfield Bennethum (B.A. 1903) was born January 14, 1881, in Harrisburg, Pa., prepared at the Harrisburg High School and St. Stephen's Rectory of Harrisburg, and entered with the Class.

His father, William H. Bennethum, of the firm of Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, merchants of Harrisburg, was born September 24, 1856, in Reading, Pa., the son of William H. Bennethum and Mary (Kerns) Bennethum.

His mother, whose maiden name was Eugenia Haliday Bainbridge, was the daughter of John Bainbridge and Jane (Haliday) Bainbridge.

In college Bennethum was a member of Phi Gamma Delta, held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment. Since leaving college he has been in the retail dry goods business with William Donaldson & Co. of Minneapolis, Minn., and since Triennial with the advertising department of Dives, Pomeroy and Stewart. His address is 2009 North 3d St., Harrisburg, Pa.

Josiah Henry Benton (B.A. 1903) was born February 10, 1881, in Branford, Conn., prepared at Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, Conn., and entered college with the Class.

His father, George Talcott Benton, a farmer of Branford, was born in New York City October 13, 1846, the son of Orsmer Benton and Mary C. (DeRevere) Benton.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ellen Foote Stedman, was the daughter of Harry R. Stedman and Betsey (Foote) Stedman.

Benton held in college an Oration Junior and the same Senior appointment. He is now with The Royale Glass Jar and Bottle Company (merchants), 11 Broadway, New York City.

He writes: "I put in a year and a half at the Colorado School of Mines at Golden, working in the mines for two summers. Came home a year ago in March and after running a farm last summer, started in the glass jar business first of the year."

His home address is Branford, Conn.

Martin Henry Bergen (B.A. 1903) was born June 2, 1879, in Hartford, Conn., prepared at the Hartford Public High School and entered college with the Class of 1902, joining 1903 at the beginning of Sophomore year. He is the son of Jeremiah Patrick Bergen, who died December 27, 1887, and of Maria Louise (Tynan) Bergen.

In college Bergen was a member of the track team. Since graduating he has been with the National Biscuit Company and is now foreman in their Nabisco Works, 409 West 15th St., New York City. He is living at 328 West 22d St., New York. His home address is 84 Hudson St., Hartford, Conn.

Pemberton Berman (B.A. 1903) was born in Baltimore, Md., June 23, 1882, prepared at the Berkeley School, New York City, and entered with the Class.

His father, J. Berman, M.D., resides in Washington, D. C.

His mother, whose maiden name was Patty Pemberton, was the daughter of John Clifford Pemberton and Martha Ogle (Thompson) Pemberton.

In college Berman was an editor of the Yale Literary Magazine and won the Lit. medal in 1902 with an essay entitled "The Prose of Heinrich Heine." He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Chi Delta Theta, won the John Hubbard Curtis prize in Senior year and held a Philosophical Oration Junior appointment and a High Oration Senior appointment.

He is now in the trust department of the Bowling Green Trust Company, 26 Broadway, New York City. He lives at 226 West 78th St., New York.

James Milton Betts (B.A. 1903, LL.B. 1905) was born April 9, 1878, in Newtown, Conn., prepared for college at the Newtown Academy, Bridgeport High School and St. Johnsbury Academy, and entered Yale in 1899.

His father, Dr. Ralph Nathaniel Betts, Jr., was born in Woodbury, Conn., in 1842, resides in Sandy Hook, Conn., is a dentist and also a merchant of the firm of Betts & Betts. He is the son of Dr. Ralph Nathaniel Betts, Sr., also a dentist, and Anna (Plowman) Betts.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Jane Elizabeth Hough, was the daughter of Gustavus Adolphus Hough, of Sandy Hook, and of Jane (Daniels) Hough.

In college Betts held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a first Dispute Senior appointment. Henry Bristol (Yale 1874) is a distant cousin.

He writes: "Since I left Yale 1903, I went for two years to the Yale Law School, graduating in 1905. In September 1905 I became associated with Marsh, Winslow & Wever, lawyers at 111 Broadway, New York City. My permanent address would be Sandy Hook, Conn., where my father lives, and from there mail would be forwarded to whatever place I happened to be.

"Really, that is about all there is to tell except that I eat, drink and sleep the same as others."

His present address is 79 Winthrop St., Brooklyn, N. Y., or care Marsh, Winslow & Wever, 111 Broadway, New York City.

Alfred Hoyt Bill (B.A. 1903) was born May 5, 1879, in Rochester, N. Y., prepared at the Faribault (Minn.) High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Edward Clark Bill, who died May 11, 1892, was born July 11, 1846, in Brooklyn, graduated from St. Stephen's College, Annandale, N. Y., in 1870, and the Seabury Divinity School (Episcopal) of Faribault in 1873. He was a professor of Homiletics and Liturgics in the Seabury Divinity School and resided in Faribault, Minn. He was the son of Charles E. Bill, of Brooklyn, and Mary (Treadway) Bill.

His mother, whose maiden name was Eliza H. Hoyt, died September 23, 1900, and was the daughter of Alfred Hoyt, of Rochester, N. Y., and Sarah (Rogers) Hoyt.

In college Bill was a member of Zeta Psi and held a First Dispute Senior appointment. He was married June 30, 1903, in Plainfield, N. J., to Miss Florence Dorothy Reid, daughter of Samuel Reid, a retired tobacco manufacturer. A son, Alfred Reid Bill, was born March 5, 1906.

He writes: "Since leaving college I have followed no regular occupation or business. I have done quite a bit of studying on literary and historical lines and striven without success at literary labor. My legal residence has been 528 Fifth St., Faribault, Minn., altho I lived last year in Plainfield, New Jersey.

"As to my marriage the statistical sheet enclosed herewith gives the necessary information. It also states that I am doing non-resident work for the degree of M.A. in English at Yale.

"I have published nothing, being restrained by unenthusiastic publishers. I am a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church and a member of the Vestry of the Parish here in Faribault, by virtue of which office I belong to the Smaller Chapter of the Cathedral of Our Merciful Saviour. The Board of Directors of the Faribault Public Library claims me as its own. My term as vestryman began in 1901 and expires at Easter this year. As a director of the Library I was appointed in December last and serve until 1908.

"As to journeys, I have been once to Canada, made three little journeys into the south and penetrated the Mediterranean as far as Cairo.

"My permanent address is Faribault, Minn. Letters will also be forwarded to me from the Yale Club (30 West 44th St.), in New York.

"I can foresee small likelihood of change. Even the wild idea of a sudden capture of the Muse of Prose Fiction brings with it no desire to change my way of life, which suits me as well as that of the next man or the next hundred men I know of. For such a boast the Fates ought surely to bring disaster if they know their business."

Avard Longley Bishop (B.A. Acadia College, Nova Scotia, 1901, B.A. Yale 1903, M.A. 1904, Ph.D. 1906) was born March 4, 1875, in South Williamston, Nova Scotia, prepared for college at the Lawrencetown (Nova Scotia) Academy and entered Yale 1903 at the beginning of the Senior year.

His father, William Bishop, who died in October 1898, was born in November 1828 in Williamston, Annapolis County, Nova Scotia, and was a farmer. He was the son of George Bishop, a farmer of South Williamston, and Diadama (Longley) Bishop.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Ann Morse, is the daughter of Abner Morse, a farmer of Nictaux West, Annapolis County, Nova Scotia, and Margaret (Hicks) Morse.

In Yale Bishop was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and graduated with a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment, being the 17th in rank in the Class.

He writes (December 1905): "Since graduating with '03 I have been pursuing graduate work in the Department of Economics, at Yale, leading toward the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. I have fulfilled all requirements for the degree excepting the thesis, upon which I am now working and in case I get it completed I shall hope to get the degree in June '06. Took the M.A. in course in 1904.

"In June 1904 I was fortunate enough to be appointed an Instructor in the Department of Economics while still carrying on my studies as a graduate student, and this year my appointment was renewed.

"Being still single, my conjugal condition is the same as at graduation, nor have any books, pamphlets, etc., gone to press from my pen to swell the deluge of yearly issues, of which few deserve the title of literature.

"I presume the above contains all you require to know about my doings since leaving college. As I was with the Class but one year, and met comparatively few of the fellows of '03, anything further I might add would not be of general interest.

"Mail addressed to Yale Station is sure to reach me promptly."

And later:

"In reply to your letter of Jan. 31st I would say that the article you referred to as being in the Register on December 20, 1905, re Commercial Museum is correct in every particular. As regards my connection with this valuable collection, I would say that I was appointed by the University to confer with the U. S. Government re getting commercial materials to illustrate the courses in Commercial Geography, etc. We expected then (summer of 1905) that the process would be a slow one. The idea of trying to secure the exhibit of the Agricultural Department at the Lewis & Clark Exposition at Portland, Ore., was entirely my own. I thought of it on one of my trips to Washington last August and when I referred the scheme to the University they backed me up in it. I went ahead, and in spite of numerous applications for it, I eventually 'landed' it for Yale. It is a very valuable collection of materials; besides we got about $4000 worth of display cases with it—all free of charge. I hope this may give you all the information you require.

"Perhaps you may have noticed that I am to give a course of lectures in the Yale Summer School on Commercial Geography; also that I have been recently elected as a member of the Yale Chapter of the Sigma Xi."

His present address is Herrick Hall, Yale University, or 120 York St., New Haven, Conn. His home address is Lawrence-town, Annapolis County, Nova Scotia.

Robert Lounsbury Black (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born September 15, 1881, in Cincinnati, Ohio, prepared for college at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Lewis Cass Black (Delaware 1874), a lawyer of Cincinnati, was born in Lancaster, Ohio, September 9, 1847, the son of Benjamin Black and Susan (Himes) Black.

His mother, whose maiden name was Abigail Lounsbury, was the daughter of the Rev. D. W. Lounsbury and Emeline (Wood) Lounsbury.

In college Black was an editor of the Yale Literary Magazine, was a member of Chi Delta Theta and of the Pundits. In Sophomore year he won the C. Wyllys Betts Prize and received honors in English Composition. He held a Dissertation Junior appointment and graduated with a Dissertation Senior appointment.

He writes (Jan. 16, 1906): "Since graduation I have been engaged in the study of the law. The first year I spent at the Cincinnati Law School and these last two I have been in Cambridge at the Harvard Law School. I hope to get an LL.B. here next spring.

"During the summer after Senior year I went to California as a member of the Federal Bureau of Forestry, where I worked on the Eucalyptus groves for three months. Last summer I lived on a ranch in North Dakota, in pursuit of health.

"The Outlook published an article of mine on 'The Forest Service' in the September (1905) monthly number. McClure's Magazine has recently accepted a short story, but the time of publication and the title I know not. It was last known to me under an alias of 'The Reckoning' but it will probably suffer a re-christening.

"I expect to settle down in Cincinnati, Ohio, after I have graduated here. My address will be 1603 Union Trust Building, where I shall practice law as much as possible."

His residence is Baker Place, Madison Road, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Arthur George Blaisdell (B.A. 1903) was born April 29, 1880, in Goffstown, N. H., prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., and entered with the Class.

His father, Frank Blaisdell, M.D., was born in Goffstown in 1852, graduated from Dartmouth College in 1876 and is at present a physician and surgeon residing in Goffstown. He is the son of Stephen Blaisdell and Amanda (Marshall) Blaisdell, a granddaughter of Chief Justice Marshall.

His mother, whose maiden name was Anna Isabel White, is the daughter of George N. White, a descendant of Peregrine White, the first white child born in New England, and of Mary H. (Chandler) White.

In college Blaisdell held a Dissertation Junior and Senior appointment. Since graduating he has reported for the Boston Journal, has been with the Mutual Life Insurance Company at their New York office, and is now office manager for an advertising and publishing house: Benjamin Lillard & Co.

His present address is care Benjamin Lillard & Co., 108 Fulton St., New York City. His home address is Goffstown, N. H., where he asks that all communications be sent.

Howard Jasper Bloomer (LL.B. 1903) was born October 3, 1872, in Burlington, Iowa, prepared for college at the Hopkins Grammar School of New Haven and at the University School of Norwalk, Conn., and entered with the Class, leaving at the end of Freshman year to enter the Yale Law School.

His father, Edgar Bloomer, a carpenter and builder of Norwalk, was born in Marlborough, N. Y., July 29, 1846, the son of Edgar Bloomer and Catherine (Osborn) Bloomer.

His mother, whose maiden name was Clementine Benedict, was the daughter of Benjamin Benedict and Emily (Palmer) Benedict.

He writes: "Answering your questions in accordance with the circular enclosed I will say—I left the Class of 1903 at the close of the Freshman year. I then entered the Yale Law School and graduated in 1903. In September 1903 I entered the law offices of A. C. Shenstone, 11 Broadway, New York City, and remained there until October 1904, when I entered the legal department of the Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn. I remained with that company until June 1st, 1905, when I entered the general practice of law, entering the firm of Bryant, Case & Bloomer—I being the junior partner of the same.

"I hold membership in the following organizations: Phi Delta Phi and Corbey Court, Y.L.S.; St. John's Lodge, No. 4, F. and A. M. of Hartford; United Spanish War Veterans; The Naval and Military Order of Spanish American War; The Military Order of Foreign Wars; The Navy League of the United States; The Hartford Club; Lieutenant Commanding 2nd Division, C. N. G.; The Hartford Yale Alumni Association.

"Probably some of the above mentioned organizations are immaterial, in which case strike them out. I send as complete a list as possible, as I understand that is what you want."

His business address is 904 Main St., and his residence 171 Warrenton Ave., Hartford, Conn.

William Alexander Blount, Jr., (B.A. 1903, LL.B. University of Alabama 1904) was born May 23, 1879, in Pensacola, Fla., prepared at St. Paul School, Garden City, L. I., and entered with the Class.

His father, William Alexander Blount, a graduate of the University of Georgia, Class of 1872, LL.B. 1873, is a lawyer of the firm of Blount & Blount and is now a State Senator of Florida. He is the son of Alexander Clement Blount and Julia Elizabeth (Washington) Blount.

His mother, whose maiden name was Cora Nellie Moreno, is the daughter of Fernando James Moreno and Maria Louise (Tattine) Moreno.

A brother, Fernando Moreno Blount, was a member of the Class of 1904 Yale.

In college Blount was quarterback of the Freshman Football team, right fielder of the Freshman nine, substitute on the University nine, a member of the Apollo Glee Club, University Glee Club and Dramatic Association. He was a member of Hé Boulé, Alpha Delta Phi and the Elihu Club and held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment. In Senior year he coached the 1906 Freshman eleven.

After graduation he entered the law department of the University of Alabama, also acting as coach of their football team. He is now a partner of his father and brother in the law firm of Blount & Blount, 7½ South Palafax St., Pensacola, Fla. His residence is 28 East Wright St.

Samuel Russell Bogue (B.A. 1903) was born July 18, 1879, in Truxillo, Peru, prepared for college at the North Division High School, Chicago, Ill., and at the Polytechnic Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Virgil Gay Bogue, was born July 19, 1846, in Canton, N. Y., is a graduate in the class of '69 of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute of Troy, N. Y. He is a civil engineer and Vice President of the Western Pacific Railway, residing at 440 West End Ave., New York City. He is the son of George C. Bogue of Canton, N. Y. (wholesale dairy supplies), and Mary (Perry) Bogue.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sybil Estelle Russell, is the daughter of John Leslie Russell, a lawyer of Canton, N. Y., and of Mary (Clark) Russell.

In college Bogue was stroke of the Freshman crew, rowed number four in the University crew in 1901, and stroked the University crew in Junior and Senior years. He was a member of the Dramatic Association, Alpha Delta Phi and the Class Day Committee. After graduation he studied law in the New York Law School and is now practising with the firm of Russell & Hartridge, 149 Broadway, New York City. His residence is 440 West End Ave., New York City.

Robert Elias Bond (B.A. 1903) was born February 15, 1880, in Kohala, Hawaiian Islands, prepared for college at the Lawrenceville (N. J.) School and entered with the Class.

His father, Elias Cornelius Bond, was born May 21, 1846, in Kohala, is a graduate of Oahu College of Honolulu, and is a retired sugar planter and manufacturer. He is the son of the Rev. Elias Bond, D.D., a graduate of Bowdoin and an early missionary to Hawaii, and of Ellen (Howell) Bond.

His mother, whose maiden name was Alice Roll Moyle, is the daughter of James W. Moyle, a California "forty-niner," and of Angeline S. (Hughes) Moyle.

William L. Bond (Yale 1875) is an uncle.

In college Bond was Chairman of the Courant, substitute coxswain of the Freshman crew, a member of the Freshman Glee Club and of the College Choir.

He writes: "Two days after Commencement, 1903, I started in business in New York City as office boy and general goat of the Cardinal Company, manufacturing stationers, formerly at 156 Fifth Ave. At about the same time I entered 'The House of Mirth' and saw it from attic to cellar, more as a spectator than as one of its characters, though, of course, one cannot entirely eliminate himself from any true story of which he is such an active spectator.

"During that first summer I moved up a peg to be bookkeeper and cashier and then treasurer of the company. The following spring, 1904, I was made general manager of the company. It was a small affair—a sub-company of one of the largest manufacturing concerns of its kind in the country. With my duties as treasurer I was brought into the most intimate knowledge of the finances both of the parent company and of the owner of both companies.

"During the reign of terror, frenzied finance and consequent ruin, a year and a half later, of their owner and his companies, I had much valuable experience and got hold of much invaluable information. Before the crash came, I had spotted a golden nugget of opportunity to be snatched by the right person from among the ruins, and during the summer of 1905 I got the option on sufficient treasury stock and minority stock combined to give me control of the Essex Paper Company of Holyoke, Mass., a corporation under the laws of the state of Massachusetts, incorporated in 1895 for the manufacturing of writing tablets, pads, etc., and all kinds of stationery. To go back: In February 1905 I moved with the Cardinal Company from New York City to Watertown, N. Y., where I resigned my office in August 1905. Thereafter, until October 9th, 1905, when I started in here, I was hustling to put through my deal here in Holyoke and getting my capital for the deal. I am now apparently settled at last in my own factory for an indefinite time to come. I like the paper business and particularly the financial end of it. Since I took charge here our financial rating has been raised from 'TD' to 'SC' Bradstreet. My permanent address is care Essex Paper Company, Holyoke, Mass.

"In New York City I joined the Yale Club and the Brick Presbyterian Church."

His business address is care Essex Paper Company, and his residence 315 Maple St., Holyoke, Mass.

Edward Charles Bowers (B.A. 1903) was born June 10, 1881, in Westfield, Mass., prepared for college at the Westfield High School and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, George R. Bowers, was born January 1, 1856, in Westfield, is with the Eastern Cigar Company, manufacturers, and is the son of George Bowers and Mary (Welch) Bowers.

His mother, whose maiden name was Annie Cecilia Keefe, is the daughter of James Keefe and Mary (Cotter) Keefe.

He writes: "I started with Huyler's in Albany immediately after graduation and left them after about a year to go with Acker, Merrall & Condit Co., but came back here last June

YALE FIELD, JUNE 26, 1906.
(After the slaughter of the "Convicts.")

(1905) and will undoubtedly remain in this business for some time."

His address is care Huyler's, 508 Fifth Ave., or 56 West 37th St., New York City. His home address is Westfield, Mass.

Charles Arnold Brady (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1905) was born in Norwich, Conn., January 29, 1882, prepared at the Norwich Free Academy and entered college with the Class.

His father, John Arnold Brady of Brady and Saxton, retail merchants of Norwich, Conn., was born in St. Armand, Province of Quebec, Canada, the son of Patrick Brady, a farmer of Canada, and of Margaret (Quinlan) Brady.

His mother, whose maiden name was Jane Corcoran Gordon, was the daughter of Michael Gordon, a farmer, and of Margaret (Moore) Gordon.

In college Brady was a member of Beta Theta Pi and graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes, August 1906: "After receiving my degree at the New York Law School and passing the bar examinations in June 1905, I obtained a position (really a job) as examiner with the Lawyers Title Company of New York and stayed with them until March of the present year. Since then I have been out for myself and have managed to support myself. About the first of August I was beginning to feel quite respectable when I was forced to come home because of illness. Expect to go back on September 1 to try again. Just after our graduation in 1903 I spent a little over three months in Europe. Spent my time in England, Holland, Belgium, France, Switzerland and Italy, sailing from Naples about the 20th of September 1903."

His business address is 132 Nassau St., Suite 604, New York City. His home address is P. O. Box 84, Norwich Town, Conn.

Allen Cleveland Bragaw (B.A. 1903) was born October 31, 1881, in Hartford, Conn., prepared at the Hartford Public High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Isaac Bragaw, was born in Orange, N. J., March 18, 1857, resides at 343 Windsor Ave., Hartford, and is in real estate and brokerage. He is the son of Isaac A. Bragaw and Elizabeth (Way) Bragaw.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Adelaide King, is the daughter of Charles King of Hartford and Maria Allen (Olmsted) King, a descendant of John Adams and Ethan Allen.

In college Bragaw won a Henry James Ten Eyck third prize in Junior year, won a Townsend Premium Senior year, and held a First Colloquy Junior and Senior appointment.

He writes: "I did not get my LL.B. After a year at Harvard Law School and one at Columbia, I passed my New York Bar examination in June last (1905) and was admitted at the fall term of the Court. I decided to accept this position (Law Department, Title Guarantee and Trust Co. of Brooklyn) I now hold, in preference to a third year at law school and took up my work here October 3, 1905. Have been fortunate and things look pretty well."

His residence is 20 East 94th St., New York City.

Samuel Mason Brereton (B.A. 1903, M.A. 1904) was born May 6, 1877, in Dundalk, Ireland, prepared for college at the Mt. Hermon (Mass.) School and entered college with the Class.

His father, George Brereton, was born in Croghan, Kings County, Ireland, in 1849, resides at 8 Baldwin Place, New Haven, and is in the furniture business with H. F. Blogg. He is the son of John Brereton and Sarah (Hanlon) Brereton.

His mother, whose maiden name was Maria Smallman, is the daughter of James Smallman and Alicia (Furney) Smallman.

In college Brereton won a first grade Berkeley premium in Latin Composition Freshman year and a Lucius F. Robinson third prize in Latin Senior year. He held an Oration Junior and an Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "In the fall of 1903 I returned to college and took up special work in Classics in the Graduate School, receiving the M.A. degree in June 1904. In the fall of 1904 I came to Mercersburg Academy to teach under a three-year contract."

His present address is Box 25, Mercersburg, Pa. His home address is 8 Baldwin Place, New Haven, Conn.

Raymond Paul Brinkman was born December 20, 1880, at Great Bend, Kansas, prepared for college at the Kansas City (Mo.) Central High School and entered in the fall of 1899, leaving in the middle of Junior year.

His father, George Lewis Brinkman, who died July 23, 1902, was born in Boliver, Ohio, November 7, 1843, was a member of the class of 1865 of the State University of Ohio and at one time was a member of Congress from Kansas. He was with the Kansas City Milling Company. He was the son of Joseph Brinkman, a farmer, and a German by birth, who came to this country when nine years old, settling in Ohio, moving to Kansas in 1874, and of Mary (Zutavern) Brinkman.

His mother, whose maiden name was Alice Prescott, is the daughter of the Rev. William Prescott, first of Massachusetts and later of Iowa, and of Mary (Harris) Prescott.

He writes: "Replying to yours with sheet to be filled out, wish to say that I haven't much to tell. When I got the news that my father was very sick, I left college and started home. I left dear old Yale on the 13th of February, 1902, and reached home on the 15th, went to work in this business, which was my father's business, and have been at it ever since. In January 1903 the Board of Directors made me secretary, which position I have held ever since. I have been thinking of changing and going in the cattle business somewhere further west, and expect to carry my plans out in the near future."

And later, August 1906: "I have about completed arrangements to go in with S. W. Noggle Wholesale and Manufacturing Company, a firm that manufactures grocers' and bakers' supplies. At any rate I will get out of the Kansas City Milling Company, as we have sold out and I am closing up this concern.

"My address for the present will be 323 West Armour Boulevard, Kansas City, Mo."

Ralph Bristol (B.A. 1903) was born in Ansonia, Conn., August 23, 1881, prepared for college at the Taft School, Watertown, Conn., and Holbrook's Military Academy, entering with the Class.

His father, Charles Edward Bristol, of the Bristol Drug Company, and formerly postmaster of Ansonia, was born in Derby, Conn., October 21, 1847, the son of Charles Bristol, a manufacturer of Derby, and Harriet (Bradley) Bristol. He resides in Ansonia.

His mother, whose maiden name was Frances Ellen Bartholomew, is the daughter of Jeremiah H. Bartholomew, a manufacturer of Ansonia, and Polly H. (Root) Bartholomew.

A brother, Theodore Louis Bristol, graduated from Yale in 1893, and another brother, Charles Edward Bristol, was a member of the Class of 1896.

In college Bristol was a member of Psi Upsilon, Wolf's Head, and of the Cap and Gown Committee.

He writes: "During July after graduation I attended the life insurance class of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, immediately after which I left for the West to spend a couple of months on the ranch of Smith Bros. & Field in Utah, the firm being composed of two Yale men and a Harvard man. The ranch life proved too attractive and my stay in the west was extended until the following March.

"Very soon after returning east I went into the employ of the Waterbury Farrel Foundry & Machine Co. and am still with this concern. Letters addressed to me at Waterbury, Conn., in care of this concern will reach me."

His residence is 45 Prospect St., Waterbury, Conn.

John Shaw Broeksmit (B.A. Coe College 1901, B.A. Yale 1904) was born February 12, 1881, in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and prepared for college at the Coe Academy of Cedar Rapids.

Broeksmit entered the Class in Junior year. He was forced by illness to leave college, returning to take his degree with the Class of 1904, holding a dissertation Senior appointment.

His father, John Cornelius Broeksmit, was born in Zeirikzee, Holland, January 25, 1825, was formerly General Auditor of the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern Railway, and now resides at Cedar Rapids. He is the son of Adrian Broeksmit and Gertrude (Switzer) Broeksmit.

His mother, whose maiden name was Laura Shaw, is the daughter of John Shaw and Sophia (Fisk) Shaw.

He writes: "At once on graduating from Yale in 1904, I went down to New Mexico, where I remained on a sheep ranch for seven months. This post graduate course did a whole lot for me in more ways than one. It furnished me experience of a new and novel nature, such as is not included in the curriculum at college. It was interesting business, but poor living for any long period.

"Last February (1905) I came up to Cedar Rapids, my home, and went to work for the Merchants National Bank. I began at the bottom of the pile, by washing windows and scrubbing floors. All the money that fell on the floor went to me, and for a while it was pretty poor picking. However, the bank and I have been getting along very nicely, and there is every prospect of our signing a lease for another year of partnership.

"I have not been able to see many of the College fellows, for they are not numerous in these parts. Last February I got into Chicago for the Yale shindig when President Hadley came out, together with Judge Howland, and gave us a most interesting time. I certainly hope that a similar deal will be pulled off this winter, and I will surely attend.

"I can only say that the Class of 1903 has my best wishes, wherever they are, and I hope that your work of getting up a Triennial Record will be thoroughly successful."

His address is Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

* Charles Tracy Brown was born March 4, 1882, in New York City, and died July 21, 1900, in Quogue, L. I., of typhoid fever.

His father, Francis Gordon Brown, who died December 21, 1905, was born in New York City, November 17, 1846, the son of Francis Brown and Eliza (Tracy) Brown, graduated from the Columbia School of Mines in 1867, and was by occupation a merchant.

His mother, whose maiden name was Julia Noyes Tracy, is the daughter of Charles Tracy (Yale 1832) and Louisa (Kirkland) Tracy.

A brother, Francis Gordon Brown, Jr., graduated from Yale in 1901.

Charlie Brown started his preparation for Yale at Groton School. He came into the school in the fourth form, entering thus as a stranger into a class that had been together for three years. But his enthusiasm for both work and play and his simple straightforwardness of character soon won a leading place for him among his companions.

By his sixth form year he had risen high in his studies, had become a promising athlete, and had gained a prefectship, a coveted honor and one seldom conferred upon a boy who had been so short a time in the school.

He entered Yale without a condition, and immediately took a leading place in the Class of 1903 by being made one of its marshals at the inauguration of President Hadley. His reputation as a football player had gone before him, and he lived up to it by staying on the 'Varsity squad the greater part of the season and playing with his class team in its more important games. And as the year went on he maintained his prominence in athletics by gaining a seat in the Freshman crew. Yet with all his devotion to sports, his studies were not neglected, for throughout the year he kept a stand that bordered on Phi Beta Kappa. At Dwight Hall too he was an interested worker and was one of the leaders of 1903's Y. M. C. A.

Though he achieved so much in that one year and sprang so soon to a place of such prominence at Yale, he maintained throughout a simplicity of character and sweetness of disposition that won him friends wherever he turned. There was scarce a man in his class who had not a good word for Brown, and there were many men, whose good fortune it was to be closely related with him, who considered him the one man in the Class to whom they could look for an example and from whom they might receive words of sincere praise in their achievements, and of equally sincere sympathy in their failures. Taken all in all, we may well say that while Charlie Brown was with us, he was the best loved man among us.

To-day as we call up our memories of him, and remember the pang that we all felt at his death in the summer of our Freshman year, we still feel that our appreciation of his character is best expressed now, as it was upon the day that we drew up our resolutions on his death by these words:

"E'en as he trod that day to God,
So walked he from his birth,
In simpleness and gentleness
And honor and clean mirth."

F. J. O. Alsop.

Thomas Marshall Howe Brown was born in Pittsburg, Pa., August 5, 1881, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and at the Shadyside Academy, Pittsburg, and entered with the Class, leaving in the winter of Senior year. He is the son of James W. Brown of Pittsburg. A brother, Charles Marshall Brown, graduated from Yale in 1891.

In college Brown was a member of the Apollo Glee Club. Ill health caused him to leave college in the winter of Senior year. Since then he has been trying to regain his health and, except for the summer of 1903, which he spent at the Muskoka Lakes, Canada, he has been at Burn Brae, Clifton Heights, Delaware County, Pa.

Ralph Willis Bumstead (B.A. 1903) was born in Atlanta, Ga., April 24, 1881, prepared for college at the Boston (Mass.) Public Latin School and entered Yale with the Class.

His father, Rev. Horace Bumstead, D.D., (Yale 1863) was born September 29, 1841, in Boston, was Major of the 43d Regiment of U. S. Colored troops in the Civil War and is now President of Atlanta University. He is a son of Josiah Freeman Bumstead and Lucy Douglas (Willis) Bumstead.

His mother, whose maiden name was Anna M. Hoit, is the daughter of Albert Gallatin Hoit and Susan Ann (Hanson) Hoit.

Bumstead's Yale relatives include an uncle, N. Willis Bumstead (1855), two great uncles, Nathaniel P. Willis (1827), the poet and author, and Richard Storrs Willis (1841), and a brother, Arthur Bumstead (1895). Professor Henry A. Bumstead of Yale is a distant cousin.

In college Bumstead was a member of the Cross Country team, and the track team, winning third place in the two-mile run in the Harvard games in Junior year. He held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "I began my business career in the field of finance under the employ of G. H. Nolte, of Boston, a State St. broker and officer of a few small corporations such as the Alvan Clark & Sons Corporation (makers of astronomical instruments). My experience in that office for somewhat less than two years was of a fairly instructive sort, inasmuch as it involved the handling of a considerable variety of clerical work and book-keeping; but it didn't seem to offer suitable prospects for advancement and therefore led me to make a change during last summer which proved to be still more instructive but far less permanent. I took a position with Pettigrew, Bright & Co., members of the Boston Stock Exchange. Up to this time I had a constantly intensified interest in work of a very different nature, viz., mechanical and electrical engineering and invention, and had carried this interest far enough to secure the protection of a 'U. S. patent pending' with over fifty claims allowed for the invention of an automatic stock quotation board to be operated by means of the 'tickers' now used in brokers' offices.

"The start that I had made in the field of finance, modest tho it was, coupled with my lack of training and experience in engineering pursuits, deterred me from recognizing my aptitude for the latter as I did after comparing it with my work in the stock business. The critical moment came, however, when I ceased to regard the bird in the hand as worth two in the bush. I simply pulled up stakes and came to California with the idea that here there would be good opportunities for making a new start and here I wanted to live for various reasons. A few days after my arrival, the field had been scanned and I had accepted what has since proved to be a most desirable position for my new career in the field of engineering. While my work as a draughtsman is already recognized as valuable to the California Gas and Electric Corporation, I hope soon to put into play the technical knowledge I am acquiring by outside study as well as by close observation of the work I have in hand."

His residence is 109 13th St., Oakland, Cal.

Ralph Howard Burdett was born February 27, 1880, in Hartford, Conn., prepared at the Hartford Public High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Charles L. Burdett, who died February 22, 1902, was a patent attorney, born in Nantucket, Mass., in 1848, the son of Thomas Burdett and Charlotte (Prescott) Burdett.

His mother, whose maiden name was Lucy Weeks Stockbridge, died September 28, 1896, and was the daughter of John Stockbridge and Emily (Weeks) Stockbridge.

Since leaving college he has been with the Factory Insurance Association of Hartford and now he holds the position of Inspector.

His address is care Factory Insurance Association, Hartford, Conn.

Robert Grey Bushong (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Columbia 1906) was born in Reading, Pa., June 10, 1883, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class.

His father, Jacob Bushong, died September 24, 1896, and was the treasurer and general manager of the Reading Paper Company. He was born in Reamstown, Lancaster County, Pa., October 26, 1823, the son of Philip Bushong and Elizabeth (Grey) Bushong.

His mother, whose maiden name was Lillie Roberts, was the daughter of Anthony Ellmaker Roberts and Emma (Bushong) Roberts. Mrs. Roberts was a first cousin of our classmate's paternal grandfather.

A brother, John Roberts Bushong, graduated from Yale in 1900.

In college Bushong was Manager of the University band, held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Dispute Senior appointment. Since graduation he has studied law at Columbia and has been editor of the Law Review. His address is 232 North 5th St., Reading, Pa.

Erwin Minsel Calmer (B.A. 1903) was born in Joliet, Ill., March 31, 1880, prepared for college at the Joliet High School and entered with the Class.

His father, Michael Calmer, who died April 1, 1903, was born in Stuttgart, Germany, in 1841, was a merchant and mill operator, also interested in real estate, with the firms of M. Calmer Dry Goods Company and Joliet Tin Plate Mill.

His mother's maiden name was Therese Minsel.

In college Calmer was a member of the Fencing team, also its captain, and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment.

He was married in Chicago, Ill., July 24, 1905, to Miss Florence Briggs Terhune, a graduate of Smith and daughter of the late Richard Terhune, a mining engineer and a graduate of Columbia in 1870.

He writes: "Am at present in the store here, The M. Calmer Dry Goods Company, of which I have one-quarter interest. On leaving college I travelled through our west, British Columbia and Mexico, then went to Golden, Colo., School of Mines. Left there on account of bad health at Christmas and went to Wyoming hunting and doing any old thing. In some way I joined the Pinkerton Detective agency after a month there and became a 'frontier detective' working through Wyoming, Utah and Nevada. I stayed with them until January 10, 1905, at which time I was freezing to death, or nearly so, in Nevada. At that time the death of my wife's father called me east again and I decided to learn the dry goods business. Married—settled down—that's all."

His address is Joliet, Ill.

Edward Herbert Cameron (B.A. Acadia 1900, B.A. Yale 1903, M.A. 1904, Ph.D. 1906) was born in Yarmouth, N. S., January 24, 1875, prepared at the Milton High School, Yarmouth, and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, William Jack Cameron, of the Geo. S. Taylor and Company, tailors of Yarmouth, was born at River John, Nova Scotia, in 1848, the son of Hugh Cameron and Elizabeth (Brown) Cameron.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Elizabeth Allen, was the daughter of Herbert Allen and Mary (Valentine) Allen.

In college Cameron was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi. He held a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment, graduating fifteenth in rank.

He writes: "Since graduation in 1903 I have been pursuing a post graduate course at Yale in the department of philosophy. I expect to take Ph.D. degree in June. Published an article in Yale Psychological Studies, Volume I, New Series, in collaboration with W. M. Steele, 1903.

"My permanent address is Yarmouth, N. S."

James Noël Howard Campbell (B.A. 1903, LL.B. 1906) was born December 25, 1881, in Hartford, Conn., prepared at the Hartford Public High School and entered college in September 1899.

His father, James Campbell (M.D. University of Vermont 1871), who died in 1899, was a professor in the Yale Medical School from 1886 to 1899 and was for a time President of the Board of Health of Hartford. He received the honorary degree of M.A. from Yale in 1891. He was born in 1846, the son of James Campbell and Esther C. (Griswold) Campbell.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Cornelia Petibone, was the daughter of William F. Petibone and Augusta E. (Fenton) Petibone.

Several cousins have attended Yale: Ernest W. Campbell (1893 L.S.), Frederick W. Campbell (1902), James L. Goodwin (1902) and Howard Goodwin (1906).

In college Campbell was a member of Phi Gamma Delta and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes November 1905: "There is very little that I can record as accomplished since graduation that could be of any interest to the class, but I will try to answer the suggestions you enclosed seriatim:

"1. Residence since leaving college—333 York Street, New Haven, Conn. No business.

"2. Not married.

"3. Post graduate work—I am taking the prescribed course in the Yale Law School leading to the degree of LL.B. I was so fortunate as to receive Second Year Honors. I expect to graduate in 1906.

"4. No publications.

"5. Hartford Golf Club, Hartford, Conn.

"6. No journeys.

"7. Permanent address: 2 Congress Street, Hartford, Conn."

And later (June 30, 1906): "I was yesterday admitted to the bar of Hartford County and am now permanently located in Hartford, where I expect to enter on the practice of law in the fall. My home address is unchanged, viz:—2 Congress Street, Hartford, Conn."

Loren Russell Carter (B.A. 1903) was born in Waterbury, Conn., July 9, 1880, prepared at the Waterbury High School and entered with the Class.

His father, Loren Russell Carter, who is in the real estate and investment business, was born in Warren, Conn., in October 1854, the son of Russell Carter, a farmer, and of Laura L. (Hill) Carter.

His mother's maiden name was Irene E. Hendrick.

Earle B. Carter (Yale 1907 S.) is a brother.

Since graduation Carter has studied law at Harvard. He expects to take the Connecticut bar examinations in December 1906 and to practice in Waterbury. His address is 11 East Main St., Waterbury, Conn.

George Brewster Chadwick (B.A. 1903) was born June 11, 1880, in Brooklyn, N. Y., prepared for college at the Brooklyn Latin School and at the Brooklyn High School and entered with the Class.

His father, Charles Noyes Chadwick (Yale 1870), was born June 18, 1849, in Lyme, Conn., is President of the C. N. Chadwick Co., manufacturers of children's underwaists and boys' shirtwaists. He is chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Froebel Academy of Brooklyn, was a member of the Brooklyn Board of Education from 1886 to 1899 and a director of the Brooklyn Public Library from 1897 to 1899. He was Water Commissioner of New York City in 1905. He is a son of Daniel Chadwick (Yale 1845), United States District Attorney for Connecticut, and of Ellen (Noyes) Chadwick.

His mother, whose maiden name was Alice Ann Caruth, is the daughter of James Caruth and Mary Ann (Meeke) Caruth.

Chadwick numbers among his Yale relatives, besides his father and grandfather, a brother, Charles (1897), an uncle, Ernest Chadwick (1891), and two cousins, Chief Justice Waite (1837) and Judge Richard Waite (1853).

In college Chadwick played half back on the University Football team for four years, being captain in Senior year of one of the strongest teams which ever represented Yale, was a member of the Freshman Glee Club, Apollo Glee Club, University Glee Club, Senior Promenade Committee, and Class Day Committee. He was a member of Hé Boulé, Psi Upsilon and Skull and Bones societies.

He writes: "After I graduated from Yale in June 1903 I spent the summer at the country home of my father, Lyme, Conn., recuperating from the strenuousness of Senior year. That fall I went on to New Haven and was field coach for the football team. After Thanksgiving I left the east and entered the employ of the Southern Railroad Company, St. Louis and Louisville Division. I spent about a month in the Superintendent's office, Princeton, Ind., and from there about the middle of January 1904 I was transferred to the local office, East St. Louis, Ill. After spending about eight months there, in which I was transferred around in the different departments, I decided that it was wisest for me to leave the railroad.

"In August 1904 I came with the Simmons Hardware Company, St. Louis. I took a preparatory course through stock, and through several of the different departments, such as the Sales Department. Then I went down to Texas and travelled with another of Simmons' salesmen for about two months. On my return to St. Louis in March 1905 I was put in the Administrative Department as assistant to the General Manager and the General Superintendent. I have since remained in that position.

"My plans are now such that I intend to remain with the Simmons Hardware Company. My permanent address will be Simmons Hardware Company, St. Louis, Mo. Nothing very exciting has happened to me. It has simply been hard work from the time I began business right on. I am not married nor engaged, and there seems to be no immediate prospects of either."

His present residence is 3707 Westminster Place, St. Louis, Mo.

Carl Mattison Chapin (B.A. 1904) was born July 30, 1879, in Waterbury, Conn., prepared for college at the Taft School, Watertown, Conn., and entered with the Class. He left college at Christmas, 1899, returning to complete the course with the Class of 1904.

His father, Charles Frederic Chapin (Yale 1877), is the editor of the Waterbury American, and was born August 3, 1852, at South Hadley Falls, Mass. He is the son of Enoch Cooley Chapin and Harriet (Abbe) Chapin.

His mother, whose maiden name was Katharine Mattison, died July 10, 1905. She was the daughter of William P. Mattison and Sarah (Stickle) Mattison.

In college Chapin was Chairman of the Courant and editor of the Record, playing first base on the 1904 Freshman nine, was a member of the Second Baseball team in his Junior year and coached the 1907 Freshman team. He was a member of Alpha Delta Phi.

He was married June 29, 1904, at Woodmont, Conn., to Miss Edith DeMaris Adams, daughter of the late Warren A. Adams of Manchester, Vt. He is at present in newspaper work with the New England office of the Associated Press, 293 Washington St., Boston, Mass. He resides at 101 Elm St., Somerville, Mass. His home address is 35 Fairview St., Waterbury, Conn.

Eliot Round Clark (B.A. 1903) was born November 13, 1881, at Shelburne, Mass., prepared at the Hartford (Conn.) Public High School and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Rev. George Larken Clark (Amherst 1872), is a graduate of the Union (Congregational) Theological Seminary, and was born in Tewksbury, Mass., in 1849, the son of John Clark, a farmer of Tewksbury.

His mother's maiden name was Emma Frances Kimball.

In college Clark won a DeForest Mathematical prize and a second grade Berkeley premium in Latin Composition Freshman year, the Lucius F. Robinson Latin second prize in Sophomore year, was a Woolsey scholar, also Daniel Lord scholar. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi and Phi Kappa Epsilon, and held a Philosophical Oration Junior and the same Senior appointment, graduating third in the Class.

He writes: "Expect degree of M.D. in 1907 from Johns Hopkins. Have studied medicine since leaving college. Permanent address, Wethersfield, Conn. Expect to be a dispenser of pills."

His present address is Johns Hopkins Medical School, Baltimore, Md.

Harold Terry Clark (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard Law School 1906) was born in Derby, Conn., September 4, 1882, prepared at the Ansonia (Conn.) High School and at the Hillhouse High School, New Haven, Conn., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, William Jared Clark, is General Manager of the Foreign Department of the General Electric Company of New York. He was born July 20, 1854, in Derby, Conn., the son of Merritt Clark (coal business) and of Mary Anne (Hodge) Clark.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Josephine Terry, was the daughter of William Terry, M.D., a Civil War veteran, and of Maria Roxanna (Slocomb) Terry.

Clark's Yale relatives include two brothers, William Merritt Clark (1901 S.) and Robert Lincoln Clark (1906), and two first cousins, George Clark Bryant (1895) and Ralph Hodge Clark (1909).

In college he played left tackle on the Freshman eleven, was a Class Deacon and President of the Y. M. C. A. He won a Townsend Premium and was on the Class Picture Committee. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Alpha Delta Phi and Skull and Bones societies. He held a Philosophical Oration Junior appointment and a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment, graduating seventh in rank.

He writes, January 1906: "The years since graduation have been busy, pleasant and uneventful. Upon leaving Yale I went to Europe, expecting to spend some time there studying languages and then start in business in New York. The summer of 1903 was spent in traveling. In September I settled down in Dresden and for several weeks worked very hard on German. I went to Berlin, intending to make a long stay. While there I suddenly decided to study law, caught the first steamer home and went at once to the Harvard Law School. The greater part of the past three years has therefore been spent in Cambridge. The summer of 1904 was spent in traveling about this country, to Maine, the Berkshires, Adirondacks, Vermont, Detroit, St. Louis, etc. The summer of 1905 I spent in Europe, Scotland, Norway, England, France, Switzerland, Italy, Sicily. On the 1903 trip to Europe I visited Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Sicily, Greece, Turkey, Austria, Hungary.

"At the Harvard Law School I have been elected a member of the Choate Chapter of the legal fraternity of Phi Delta Phi. Am also president of the Alpha Delta Phi Alumni Association in the graduate schools of Harvard University. This consists of Alpha Delta Phi men from all the different colleges. I hope to receive the degree of LL.B. from Harvard this June. I am also a candidate for a non-resident M.A. from Yale in German but have done nothing toward that thus far (save paying twenty-five dollars).

"My only work in a political way has been looking up a few candidates for city offices in Cambridge on behalf of the Good Government Association and acting as volunteer watcher at the polls in Boston on election day. Neither of these items amount to anything.

"A permanent address to which mail can be sent is 12 South Cliff St., Ansonia, Conn."

And later: "It has become finally settled that next year I shall be with the law firm of Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, Cleveland, Ohio. I am to start work on August first."

Harry Henderson Clark (B.A. 1903) was born in Winchester, Tenn., August 6, 1880, prepared at the Winchester Normal College and entered Yale at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Rufus Anthony Clark, is the President of Winchester Normal College, is Vice President of a bank and also a farmer of Winchester, Tenn. He was born in Pelham, Tenn., November 20, 1846, the son of James Anthony Clark, a farmer of Pelham.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ellen Elizabeth Henderson, died May 21, 1892, and was a daughter of Mark Henderson, a merchant of Winchester, Tenn.

Orion J. Willis (1903) is a cousin.

In college Clark won a Henry James Ten Eyck second prize in Junior year, the Thacher prize in Junior and Senior years, was a member of the Interclass Debating team in 1900 and of the Interdepartment team of 1901. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Zeta Psi, was President of the Yale Union and a Class Historian. He held a Philosophical Oration Junior appointment and a High Oration Senior appointment.

Since leaving college he has had several occupations, including insurance, private tutoring and working in a broker's office. He is Secretary of the Louisiana Yale Alumni Association. His present address is care Round Table Club, Jackson Ave., New Orleans, La. His home address is Winchester, Tenn.

Kilburn Dickinson Clark (B.A. 1903) was born in Detroit, Mich., April 17, 1878, prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class.

His father, William Wallace Clark, of Syracuse, N. Y., was born May 6, 1851, in Mendon, Rutland County, Vt., the son of Anson Giffin Clark and Abigail (Kilburn) Clark.

His mother, whose maiden name was Helen Mar Slocum, died October 10, 1881, and was the daughter of Volney Peleg Slocum and Helen Mar (Almy) Slocum.

A brother, William W. Clark, Jr., graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School in 1903.

In college Clark was an editor of the Yale Daily News, a member of the Freshman Glee Club and Chairman of the Zeta Psi Campaign Committee.

Of his career since he writes: "I went with the Harbison-

Walker Refractories Company early in January 1904, and after a brief period at one of our Pennsylvania works went on the road selling (?) fire bricks in Indiana, Michigan, the copper country, and in Ontario. In the early summer of 1905 I came to Portsmouth as assistant to Sales Manager of the Portsmouth Harbison-Walker Co., which is part of the Refractories Company, and have been here since except for occasional trips in Virginia, West Virginia and Ohio.

"My permanent address is care of the Portsmouth Harbison-Walker Co., Portsmouth, Ohio."

Robert Keep Clark (B.A. 1903, S.B. Massachusetts Institute of Technology 1905) was born in Chicago, Ill., July 1, 1879, prepared at the Chicago University School and entered college in September 1900.

His father, George Mark Clark, of the George M. Clark & Co., manufacturers of stoves, was born in Westminster, Vt., June 10, 1841, the son of Mark Clark and Sarah (Hall) Clark.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Elizabeth Keep, is the daughter of Rev. Theodore John Keep (Yale 1832) and Mary Anne (Thompson) Keep.

Besides his maternal grandfather, Clark's Yale relatives include a great-grandfather, Rev. John Keep (1802), a great-great-grandfather, Judge Nathan Hale (1769), and a first cousin, Robert P. Keep (1903).

Clark entered college Sophomore year and held a First Dispute Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "I had two very satisfactory years at the Boston Tech. The summer of 1904 my sister and I were abroad for four months, spending most of our time in Italy and Greece."

His address is 460 Dearborn Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Stephen Carlton Clark (B.A. 1903) was born in Cooperstown, N. Y., August 29, 1882, prepared at the Cutler School, New York City, and entered with the Class.

His father, Alfred Corning Clark, died April 6, 1896. He was born in 1849, resided at Cooperstown and was the son of Edward Clark and Caroline (Jordan) Clark.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Scriven, married October 4, 1902, Bishop Henry Codman Potter of New York.

Clark graduated from college with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment. Since graduation he has studied law, first at Harvard and more recently at Columbia. He was in 1906 admitted to the bar in New York City. His business address is 2381 Broadway, New York City, and his residence is Cooperstown, N. Y.

Allen Thomas Clement (B.A. 1903) was born in Rutland, Vt., January 23, 1881, prepared for college at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered in the fall of Freshman year.

His father, Waldo Park Clement (B.S. Norwich University 1872), is a banker and broker of the firm of Clement & Smith, New York. He was born July 21, 1851, in Rutland, Vt., the son of Charles Clement, a marble producer and banker, and of Elizabeth (Wood) Clement.

His mother, whose maiden name was Hannah Allen Thomas, was the daughter of Allen Mason Thomas, a merchant of Wickford, R. I., and Charlotte Proctor (Smith) Thomas.

Four uncles preceded Clement at Yale: Elisha S. Thomas (1859), Nathaniel P. S. Thomas (1868), Aaron S. Thomas (1869), and Allen Mason Thomas (1877 S.).

In college Clement was a member of the Apollo and University Banjo and Mandolin clubs. He was a member of Alpha Delta Phi.

He writes: "After convincing the Faculty to affix a B.A. to my name in June 1903, I went direct to Westhampton, L. I. But the strain of this honor was too great and I had been there but a few weeks when I came down with typhoid. Nine weeks in bed left me in a condition which required about two years to completely recover health.

"On November 11, 1903, I started out on a trip through the west, in company with five other men. We were gone six weeks, during which time we visited all the boundary states, with one or two exceptions. Returning to New York, I stayed here a few weeks, and then went south with my family to spend the remainder of the winter on an orange grove at Georgiana, Fla.

"In the early fall of 1904 I started in business in the cashier's department of Strong, Sturgis & Co., stock brokers. I remained with the above firm until August 31st, 1905. On that day my father started a new firm, 'Clement & Smith', taking me in as junior partner. I have managed to keep this position to date.

"Permanent address—143 West 71st St., New York City."

George Franklin Coard was born in Chittenango, N. Y., October 3, 1880, prepared for college at the Military Academy, Montclair, N. J., and entered with the Class, leaving in Freshman year.

He is the son of John J. K. Coard, manager of the A. C. Yates & Co., clothiers of Philadelphia, who was born in Berlin, Md., in 1845, and of Emily (Phillips) Coard.

He writes from Shanghai, China, under date of December 22, 1905: "As the English are the predominant power here, we always get the telegraphic reports about the English games but never any of the good game of American football, and I can assure you that I am more than pleased to have the clippings you have been so good as to send, especially when they bring the good news of Yale's victories. It is still the same old 'Yale spirit' that teaches us never to give up that has brought Yale through successes and reverses and made her the greatest university in the world.

"If the Class of 1903 follows your 'Suggestions for Letters' I am sure we will have some very interesting reading matter. I wish that I had anything of interest about myself to tell you, but as it is I haven't, so I shall be brief.

"I regret very much that I was unable to stay and finish the course at Yale but such was the case, and, after six months at Amherst, I entered business in New York with the firm of Smith, Gray & Co. Later I entered the employ of E. J. McMichan & Co., New York, but left there in the beginning of the year 1902 to go out to Honolulu on my own account. The prospects there were not the best, so I went through Japan, China and Hongkong to Manila, where I entered the service of the Philippine Civil Government as Property Clerk for the Department of City Schools. After seven months I was forced to leave Manila on account of illness and have been in Shanghai since that time. Entered the employ of the Standard Oil Company here in August 1903 and stayed with them until going into business for myself in the fall of 1904. At that time I went into partnership with a Belgian named Rene del Arbre, but sold out to him this last summer, and have been conducting my business alone since that time.

"I was married at the Consulate General of the United States in Shanghai on June 29th, 1904, to Florence Edna Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Smith of San Francisco, Cal.

"This is about all the news I can give you and will leave it to your discretion to use such portions as you may need. I am endeavoring to settle my affairs here sufficiently to be able to return to America this spring, if not for good at least for a long enough time to get my lungs filled once more with some good American ozone; and as my headquarters will doubtless be New York, I hope I may have the pleasure of dropping in on you at New Haven and having a good 'look see.' I am going to try and time it that I may be there for the Triennial, as I should like to be there when the other fellows are back again.

"I am going to add one more line in the name of humanity to young men, and that is if you know of or hear of any fellows who have the foolish and deluded idea of coming out to this country for business, use all your influence to keep them in God's country. Our own country is big and good enough and fine enough for all our young men to work and expand in without their having to come out here, where all is a delusion and a snare. 'Go west, young man' may be an excellent motto, but 'don't go so far west that you get to the Far East,' ought to be added."

His present address is care U. S. P. O., Shanghai, China. His permanent address is care Mrs. H. F. Johnson, Plainfield, N. J.

Nathaniel Haviland Cobb was born in Walden, Vt., October 11, 1879, prepared for college at the St. Johnsbury (Vt.) Academy and at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered with the Class.

His father, George Whitefield Cobb, a farmer of Danville, Vt., is the son of Luke Cobb and Lucy (Bailey) Cobb.

His mother, whose maiden name was Caroline Weeks, is the daughter of Peasley Weeks, a Vermont farmer.

In college Cobb was a member of the Dramatic Association and of Beta Theta Pi. He divided with MacLane and Howard the Winston Trowbridge Townsend prize in Freshman year. He left college in February 1901 to go abroad to study art. Three of his pictures have recently been accepted by the Paris Salon des Beaux Arts.

He writes: "There is little to tell of myself since leaving New Haven. I left about the middle of Sophomore year and have since been painting in Paris, Florence, Venice, Rome, Capri, and in Tunis. At present I am again established in Paris, where I shall remain indefinitely."

His address is 122 Rue d'Assas, Paris, France.

Gifford Alexander Cochran (B.A. 1903) was born in Yonkers, N. Y., December 12, 1880, prepared for college at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, William Francis Cochran, was with Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company of Yonkers, and was born in New York City, October 29, 1833, the son of Alexander Gifford Cochran, a merchant of New York City and Amsterdam, N. Y., and of Sarah (Phillips) Cochran.

His mother, whose maiden name was Eva Smith, was the daughter of Alexander Smith, a carpet manufacturer of Yonkers, and of Jane (Baldwin) Smith.

Two brothers, Alexander S. Cochran (1896) and William F. Cochran (1898 S.), and a first cousin, John Sanford (1874), preceded Cochran at Yale.

In college he was a member of the Freshman, Apollo and University glee clubs, and was a member of Hé Boulé, Alpha Delta Phi and Wolf's Head societies.

He was married February 14, 1906, to Miss Mabel Heyward Taylor, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Madison Taylor of Philadelphia.

He writes in January 1906: "I think the statistical blank covers most of the news I can give you of myself. I have been living in Yonkers and New York since graduation. Have been in business with the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company and expect this will be my business for life. Nothing of much interest to report beyond this. No journeys, no literary work, no positions of trust or political influence. A few class weddings with the accompanying celebrations, etc. I expect to make my permanent home in New York, 12 East 55th St., but letters addressed to Yonkers, N. Y., will always reach me."

James Ryle Coffey (B.A. 1903) was born in New Haven, Conn., July 11, 1881, prepared at the Hillhouse High School of New Haven and entered with the Class.

His father, Lawrence John Coffey, a mason contractor, was born in New Haven in 1851, the son of James Coffey and Bridget (Flannigan) Coffey.

His mother, whose maiden name was Jennie Holloran, was the daughter of John Holloran, a painter, and Ellen (Costello) Holloran.

He writes under date of January 8, 1906: "In reply to your letter asking for information regarding my actions since leaving college will say as follows. The following year I entered the Yale Medical School as a Freshman. I have since completed two years at that school and am now in the midst of my third year. At the completion of my second year I spent two months as interne on the Boston Floating Hospital. I have just spent three weeks in the Society of Lying-in Hospital of New York. This comprises all my doings since leaving Yale. Sorry that I have nothing more of interest."

His address is 17 Autumn St., New Haven, Conn.

Louis Garfield Coleman (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Springfield, Ill., August 6, 1881, prepared at the Springfield (Ill.) High School and at the Lawrenceville (N. J.) School and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Louis Harrison Coleman, a loan and investment banker of Springfield, was born in Hopkinsville, Ky., September 2, 1842, the son of Hardin H. Coleman and Barbara Ann (Hopper) Coleman.

His mother, whose maiden name was Jennie Bush Logan, died May 19, 1891, and was the daughter of Judge Stephen T. Logan, a partner of Abraham Lincoln from 1841 to 1844, and of America T. (Bush) Logan.

Coleman's Yale relatives include a brother, Christopher B. Coleman (1896), and a first cousin, Logan Hay (1893).

In college he was Assignment Editor of the Yale Daily News,

Treasurer of the Christian Association, Chairman of the Class Picture Committee and won a Berkeley premium in Latin Composition, second grade, in Freshman year. He was a member of Hé Boulé and Delta Kappa Epsilon societies, and held an Oration Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment.

Since graduation he has been studying law at Harvard, graduating last June. In the summer of 1906 he entered the law office of Brown, Wheeler, Brown and Hay, 309-311 South 6th St., Springfield, Ill.

Arthur Morris Collens (B.A. 1903) was born in Cleveland, Ohio, November 4, 1880, prepared for college at the Hillhouse High School of New Haven, Conn., and at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered with the Class.

His father, the Rev. Charles Terry Collins, who died December 21, 1883, graduated from Yale in 1867, took his B.D. degree at Andover Theological Seminary, and at the time of his death lived in Cleveland, Ohio. He was born in Hartford, Conn., October 14, 1845, the son of Charles Collins and Mary (Terry) Collins.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Abby Wood, was the daughter of Moses H. Wood and Abby Sawyer (Wesson) Wood.

Besides his father, Collens' Yale relatives include two brothers, Charles (1896) and Clarence L. (1896 S.), also a cousin, Atwood Collins (1874). He also claims "a great something uncle in 1761, David or Timothy Collens, I forget which." He may refer to the Rev. Timothy (1718).

In college he was an editor of the Yale Daily News, Treasurer of the Senior Promenade Committee, played on the University Tennis team in the spring of Senior year and on the Class Hockey team. He was a member of Psi Upsilon. He was Secretary and Treasurer and later President of the German Club and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "After graduation in 1903 I started work immediately with my uncle, William Allen Butler, Jr., being placed by him for the experience in the brokerage firm of Geo. P. Butler & Bro. until October 1st, 1903, from which date until January 15th, 1905, I assisted Mr. W. A. Butler, Jr., in the management of trust estates and funds, with offices at 54 Wall St., New York City. While in New York roomed with Ralph Melcer at 33 West 45th St. and with Melcer and 'Dud' Lewis at the Spring Street Presbyterian Church Neighborhood House at 239 Spring St.

"January 16th, 1905, I accepted the position of Secretary and Assistant Sales Manager of the International Acheson Graphite Company of Niagara Falls, N. Y. Last fall I resigned my position in Niagara Falls to accept an assistantship to the Inspector of the New York Life Insurance Company's Agencies in New York City, with office at 42 Broadway, and Hugh Rankin as a roommate at 415 Lexington Ave.

"In February resigned from the New York Life, not however at the request of the Insurance Investigation Committee, but to take my present position as one of the two Pittsburg managers of the Fulton and Bessemer office buildings, Phipps Power Plant and other Phipps properties in Pittsburg. Am living at 9 Dunmoyle Place with a Lehigh 1901 man, a Beloit graduate, Berne Evans, '99, E. T. Noble, '99, George Lyon, 1900, and Ralph H. Schneelock, '01 Mus."

Address: Bessemer Building, Pittsburg, Pa.

Walter Guthrie Collins (B.A. 1903) was born in Leadville, Col., February 17, 1880, prepared for college at the New York Military Academy, Cornwall, N. Y., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Samuel Guthrie Collins (mining), who resides in Denver, was born in Yazoo County, Miss., February 6, 1846, the son of Lemuel P. Collins, a planter, and of Phoebe (White) Collins.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emilie Browning, is the daughter of Rev. William Garretson Browning, a Methodist minister of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Sussana Rebecca (Webb) Browning.

Two uncles preceded Collins at Yale, Dr. William W. Browning (1872) and Professor Philip E. Browning (1889).

In college Collins was an editor of the Record and a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon. He held a Second Dispute Junior and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: "My life since leaving college in 1903 has been devoid of pyrotechnics. For the first few months after graduation I wasted considerable time pondering on how best to set the world on fire, but like many others I surmise, I encountered so many wet blankets lying around in convenient places that my attempts at arson were soon abandoned. I discovered that a degree of B.A. from Yale alone did not enable a very ordinary individual like myself to create much of a conflagration. And so in due time emerging from my house of dreams, I started out in search of experience and a meal ticket. I have also been attempting to find out wherein my talents lie,—if indeed I have any,—and thereby to plot my future course. In all these I have been only partially successful. So far I have managed to consume three commonplace meals a day, and I believe I have accumulated considerable experience,—but as to my future I must confess I am very much at sea.

“The first year after leaving New Haven I spent in the law offices of Wells & Chiles, in the hope (or rather, it was the hope of my father) that I might become so infatuated with the spirit of the law that I would be willing to put in three more years of earnest study and emerge with a LL.B. attached to my name. However, lack of sufficient enthusiasm for the legal profession coupled with a desire to be independent financially as well as mentally and physically, prompted me to turn my energies into another channel.

“I became afflicted with the germ of journalism, and for a year past I have been connected with the editorial department of the Rocky Mountain News,—one of our morning daily publications, a democratic organ owned by Senator Thomas M. Patterson, one of Colorado’s chief trouble-makers, and a man whose strenuous and pugnacious personality has, I believe, made him a national character. I have done a little of everything on the paper and several encouraging advancements make me, modest as you know I am, believe that I have made good. And while I have not been dining daily on small birds and large cold bottles, I have subsisted comfortably on simple fare and an occasional good cigar.

“I have been in the newspaper business just long enough to feel its fatal fascination, and at the same time to realize that the game is not worth the candle. Gruelling work, uncivilized hours (from 3 P. M. to 3 A. M.) and disproportionate pay, with the continual uncertainty of the security of one's position and the tramp life,—moving from one place to another, which is necessary for one to get far ahead,—all these and more combine to make one with my tastes and inclinations wish to seek new fields of activity.

“And so I feel that I am on the eve of another change,—but what it will be I cannot now say. It may not come, at least not for some time, and again it may come to-morrow, for in this business one hardly knows what a day may bring forth. A change of management, or a change of city editors, frequently means a change of the entire personnel of the staff. At the present writing I am filled with a desire to try my luck in the northwest, and am hoping to get an opportunity to enter the employ of a firm dealing in municipal and corporation bonds, but more definite information on that point I cannot give at present.

“No, I am not married, nor have I any prospects of being compelled to purchase meal tickets for some other man's daughter. I have taken no post-graduate work, have written no books, have not journeyed in foreign lands, have taken no active part in social, religious, or political organizations, and have no information about other members of the Class which they would not confide to our worthy secretary.

“What I believe would be called my permanent address is care Howard B. Collins, Leadville, Col., but unless I should make violent changes in my plans a letter would reach me addressed to the Cornwall Apartments, Denver.”

His business address is care News-Times Publishing Company, and his residence, 921 East 13th Ave., Denver, Col.

George Kimball Conant (B.A. 1903) was born in St. Louis, Mo., June 29, 1881, prepared at the Smith Academy, St. Louis, and entered college with the Class.

His father, Theodore Pearson Conant of the Sligo Iron Store Company, importers and jobbers in iron, steel, heavy hardware, etc., in St. Louis, was born August 5, 1850, in Irasburg, Vt., the son of Samuel Davis Conant, now of La Crosse, Wis., and Louisa Ann (Pearson) Conant.

His mother, whose maiden name was Josie May Kimball, died April 7, 1884, and was the daughter of the late George Washington Kimball and Helen Rachel (Hager) Kimball of St. Louis.

In college Conant was Leader of the Apollo Banjo and Mandolin Club and a member of the University Banjo and Mandolin Club. He was a member of Alpha Delta Phi.

He writes: "Since leaving college in 1903 have been living with my father at 4479 Washington Ave., St. Louis, and have been working for the Sligo Iron Store Company. I worked in the stock for about a year and since that time have been in the office. Question 2—Am still a member of the Bachelor's Club with no signs of removal. 3—No P. G. work. 4—No publications. 5—No connection with any social, religious or political. 6—No journeys. Three weeks vacation at Lake Geneva. 7—Permanent address, care Sligo Iron Store Company, or 4479 Washington Ave., St. Louis, Mo. 8 and 9—Nothing doing."

Philip King Condict (B.A. 1903) was born in Newark, N. J., October 20, 1880, prepared at The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Stephen Albert Condict, is a retired manufacturer, has been Vice President of the Orange Valley Building and Loan Association and a member of the Newark Board of Trade. He was born in Newark October 22, 1849, the son of Stephen Hayes Condict, leather merchant and banker of Newark, and of Sophia (King) Condict.

His mother, whose maiden name was Clara Agnew, is the daughter of the Rev. John Holmes Agnew, the first President of Ann Arbor University, and of Sarah Emeline (Taylor) Agnew.

An uncle, Lewis E. Condict, graduated from Yale in 1869.

In college Condict was a member of the University Tennis team, winning with Plummer the University doubles championship in the fall of 1902 and spring of 1903. He was a substitute on the Swimming team and a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon. He graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes in December 1905: "After returning from our European trip, which was one of the brightest and happiest spots in my career, as you well know, I started work in the factory of the Western Electric Company in New York the latter part of October 1903. In about six weeks I was taken into the office and was there until three weeks ago, when I was transferred to the Philadelphia branch. Here I am, reigning under the title of Assistant Chief Clerk. At present I plan no alarming moves for the future. Aside from my work I have had time for practically nothing and have no political offices or presidency of trust companies to add to the fame which is rapidly enveloping many of our good classmates. I am looking forward with keen joy to Triennial. I am writing on the bureau in my present lodgings and my arm is now thoroughly worn out."

His business address is care Western Electric Company, 11th and York Sts., Philadelphia. His residence is 249 South 15th St., and his home address is Tremont Place, Orange, N. J.

Erastus Corning (B.A. 1903) was born in Albany, N. Y., October 22, 1879, prepared for college at the St. Mark's School, Southboro, Mass., and at the Albany Academy, and entered with the Class.

His father, Erastus Corning, who died April 9, 1893, was engaged in the steel business and later, when ill health forced him to abandon all active business, he devoted himself to natural history, having at the time of his death a rather remarkable private collection of butterflies, moths and insects of various descriptions. He was born in Albany, N. Y., May 29, 1852, the son of Erastus Corning, an ironmaster of Albany, and of Gertrude (Tibbits) Corning.

His mother, whose maiden name was Grace Fitz-Randolph Schenck, was the daughter of Rev. Noah Hunt Schenck of Brooklyn, N. Y., and of Anna Pierce (Pendleton) Schenck.

Corning's Yale relatives include a half brother, S. Dwight Ward (1903), and two half uncles, Parker Corning (1895) and Edwin Corning (1906).

In college Corning was a member of the Dramatic Association for four years, being Vice President in Junior year and President in Senior year, taking the chief male part in the annual plays. He was a member of Hé Boulé, Psi Upsilon and Skull and Bones. He was a Class Historian and graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "(1) Since leaving college in June 1903 I have lived with my family at 281 State St., Albany, N. Y. In the fall of 1903 I entered the Albany Medical College, which is the medical department of Union University, and since that time I have been engaged in the study of medicine.

"(2) I was married on May 17, 1906, at Washington, D. C., to Miss Edith Harlan Child, who at that time was living with her grandfather, Mr. Justice Harlan of the United States Supreme Court. She is the daughter of the late Frank Linius Child (Brown 1870), who was engaged in the practice of law and in the real estate business in Worcester and later in Boston, Mass.

"(3) Expect to graduate from Albany Medical College in May 1907 with degree of M.D.

"(4) 'Retention Cyst and Diverticulum of the Vermiform Appendix,' published in Albany Medical Annals for December 1905.

"(5) While in Albany I have become a member of the Albany Country Club and of the University Club of this city. I have also joined the Medical School fraternity of Nu Sigma Nu. Beyond voting when occasion offered or when inducement was sufficient, I have engaged in no political work.

"(6) I have made no journeys in this or any other country beyond my usual summer trips to Canada, where my family have a cottage.

"(7) My permanent address is 355 State St., Albany, N. Y.

"(8) Nothing doing with the exception of the above mentioned facts.

"(9) My own plans for the future are to continue the study of medicine until I get my degree. After that to do post graduate work if circumstances permit, either in this country or abroad. One plan for my future which I consider of the greatest importance is to attend the Sexennial Reunion."

*David Uzal Cory (B.A. 1903) died in Englewood, N. J., August 28, 1905.

On August 2d, 1905, Cory was suddenly attacked with appendicitis and underwent an operation the next day. Peritonitis was found to have set in and during the next three weeks two other operations were necessary, but though everything possible was done it was too much for one man's strength, and the end came very peacefully on Sunday night, August 28th. Throughout his whole sickness Dave showed that wonderful good nature and consideration of the feelings of others with which his friends are familiar, and during all that hard month, with the odds so against him, he kept his courage and made a splendid fight for life. He wanted to live for the sake of his family, who were especially dear to him, and for the promising future for which he had so well prepared himself, but when he saw that he had to give that all up he did not think of himself but of his mother who was with him, and when death came he had nothing to fear. Dave's entire life was pure and true and manly and I am sure others feel as I do, sincerely proud to have been his friend.

He was born at Englewood, N. J., June 5, 1883, prepared for college at the Englewood School for Boys and entered in 1899 without conditions.

His father, David Uzal Cory, Sr., who died July 13, 1901, was a furnace manufacturer residing in Englewood. He was born in Morristown, N. J., July 10, 1847, the son of Uzal Cory, a furnace manufacturer, and of Susan Pratt (Dodge) Cory, a sister of William E. Dodge.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Punnett Wickes, was the daughter of Eliphalet Wickes, identified with the oil business in Albany and New York, and of Ellen (Parmelee) Wickes.

Cory numbered among his Yale relatives a brother, Robert Haskell Cory (1902), an uncle, Robert C. Haskell (1858), a great-grandfather, Rev. Thomas S. Wickes (1814), and a cousin, Henry P. Wickes (1900).

Of his record at Yale the Class does not need to be told. The 1903 men who were present at the funeral services August 30th wrote of him as follows:

"Those who knew David Uzal Cory will always remember his Christian manliness. His was a well-rounded character, with earnestness of purpose in everything he believed or undertook and narrowness in nothing. At Yale University he won the respect of the whole class of 1903 by his ability and character, and the true friendship of many of its members on account of those qualities which endeared him to all with whom he came in close contact. As a student he won recognition by an election as Treasurer of the honorary society of Phi Beta Kappa. He also won a Berkeley premium, the Scott prize in French and a third Ten Eyck premium. The other phases of college life were not neglected, as he was fond of all sports and entered heartily into them. In the religious life of the University he took a prominent stand, serving on several of the Y. M. C. A. committees and being active in mission and Boys' Club work, for which he was especially suited on account of his straightforward earnestness and personal magnetism, which attracted and held all those among whom he worked.

"Many have lost a friend whose place can never be filled, for David Cory's friendship, when once given, could always be relied upon, and was a gift to be prized on account of his unselfish personal interest in those for whom he cared and his unflinching good humor combined with quiet dignity. His true manly life was a help to all near him and will never be forgotten by those who knew him."

On July 16th, 1903, Dave entered business life in New York City with the firm of B. H. Howell Son & Company, wholesale sugar merchants. The same capability and earnestness of purpose which characterized his college course won for him rapid advancement and an exceedingly promising future. His business associates who attended the funeral universally expressed admiration and respect both for Dave's personal and mental worth.

Dave was in my mind the best type of Yale man. He was proud of being a member of 1903 and the Class equally has every right to be proud of him.

Arthur Morris Collens.

At the Triennial Meeting of the Class, June 26, 1906, the following resolutions on his death were adopted:

FORASMUCH as it has pleased Almighty God in His wise Providence to remove from us our beloved friend and classmate, David Uzal Cory, whose purity and nobility of character, true friendship and unselfish and unswerving loyalty remain as an example to all of us; be it

Resolved, That we extend our sincere and heartfelt sympathy to his family, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent them on behalf of the Class and entered in the class records.

(Signed)

HAROLD T. CLARK,
FRANK C. GILBERT,
HUGH RANKIN,

for the Class of 1903.

Donald John Cowling (B.A. Lebanon Valley College, Pennsylvania, 1902, B.A. Yale 1903, M.A. 1904, B.D. 1906) was born at Trevalga, Cornwall, England, August 21, 1880, prepared at the DuBois (Pa.) High School and at the Berlin (Ont.) Collegiate Institute, and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Rev. John Parsons Cowling, a United Brethren clergyman, of Tyrone, Pa., was born in Cornwall, England, April 11, 1853, the son of Robert Cowling and Mary (Parsons) Cowling.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Kittow Stephens, was the daughter of William Stephens and Mary Ann (Kittow) Stephens.

At Lebanon Valley College Cowling played left end on the college football team for two years, was manager of the baseball team, was President of the Y. M. C. A. and of his Class in Junior year. He graduated from Yale with a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment, being 19th in rank, and is a member of Book and Bond.

He writes: "Since graduation I have been doing graduate work in Philosophy here at Yale—I received an M.A. in 1904—was given a Douglas Fellowship in the Academical Department 1904-5 and was appointed assistant in Psychology 1905-6. In connection with this work I have been taking courses in the Divinity School and I expect to receive B.D. there next June (1906). As for the future, I expect to teach Philosophy as my life work."

And later, August 1906: "I have recently decided to accept the position of Assistant Professor of Philosophy and Biblical Literature in Baker University, Baldwin, Kansas, and from September 1st on that will be my address. Last June I received the degree of B.D. (magna cum laude) from the Yale Divinity School."

His home address is Tyrone, Pa.

Alexander Craighead was born in New York City March 30, 1880, prepared at the Groton (Mass.) School and entered with the Class, leaving at the end of Freshman year..

His father, Horace Craighead, a manufacturer of New York, was born in 1846 in New York, the son of Robert Craighead and Helen M. Craighead.

His mother, whose maiden name was Frances Rose, was the daughter of William W. Rose and Appolonia M. Rose.

In college Craighead played half-back on the Freshman eleven.

He writes: "My career since leaving college at the end of my Freshman year has not been particularly diverse, for I went into the banking house of Cuyler, Morgan & Co. the following fall and have been there ever since. I am not engaged, married, or in danger of being so just yet, despite rumors to the contrary."

His business address is care Cuyler, Morgan & Co., 44 Pine St., New York City. His residence is 152 West 91st St.

Hiram Walter Cramer (B.A. Western College, Toledo, Iowa, 1902, B.A. Yale 1903) was born in Marshalltown, Iowa, November 9, 1878, prepared at the Bagley High School and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Gerardus James Cramer, a farmer of Bagley, Iowa, was born in Schuylerville, N. Y., August 6, 1856, the son of Hiram Cramer and Calista (Deyoe) Cramer.

His mother, whose maiden name was Matilda Jane Barker, was the daughter of Walter Barker and Jane (Ingersol) Barker.

Cramer graduated from Yale with an Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "The greater part of the year after graduating from Yale I spent in the Yale Law School. I was forced to leave there by the fatal illness of one of my family. I left the Law School in February and went to Los Angeles, where I remained until the latter part of April. I then returned to Toledo, Iowa, where I was employed as a hardware clerk until November of that year. In November 1905 I entered into a business partnership with P. K. Rebok and the firm succeeded to a well established hardware and implement business in Toledo. I am at present time spending all my time in the management of this business, Rebok and Cramer. Although the time I spent at Yale was short and I felt the sting of being a 'ringer,' I have a fine regard for the institution and the class of men that is being made there."

His home address is Bagley, Iowa.

James Pigott Cronan (B.A. 1903) was born May 20, 1880, in New Haven, Conn., prepared for college at the Hillhouse High School and at the Hopkins Grammar School and entered with the Class.

He is the son of Patrick James Cronan, a retired manufacturer of New Haven, and of Ellen (Pigott) Cronan, who died February 22, 1899, the daughter of Patrick Pigott and Margaret (Dennehy) Pigott.

An uncle, James P. Pigott (1878), and a brother, Urban Cronan (1906), are among Cronan's Yale relatives.

In college he was a member of the Dramatic Association and of Psi Upsilon. The first year after graduation he spent at Lehigh University studying mining engineering. He is now with the Yonkers and Nepperhan Realty Company, Nepperhan, N. Y., and reports that he is "earning a modest living." His home address is 455 Orange St., New Haven, Conn.

Earle Rosman Crowe (B.A. 1903) was born in Chicago, Ill., September 19, 1881, prepared for college at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Rev. Winfield Scott Crowe, a graduate of Northwestern University, is pastor of the Church of Eternal Hope (Unitarian) in New York, and was born November 15, 1850, in Warren County, Ind., the son of William Crowe (stock farmer and shipper) and Martha (Young) Crowe.

His mother, whose maiden name was Clara Knaur, was the daughter of S. G. Knaur, of Lafayette, Ind., and Louise (Dawson) Knaur.

In college Crowe was the Freshman Gymnast and graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He was married June 1, 1905, in East Orange, N. J. to Miss Katharine M'Clellan Higgins, daughter of Thomas Higgins, manufacturer and importer of glue and gelatin and a member of the Yale Class of '63.

He writes: "Since leaving college have had two business connections. July 1st, 1903, became assistant to James R. Hay, real estate agent and specialist, 71 Broadway. September 1st, 1904, became identified with System as New York Manager. Am now Advertising Manager—there are two, Mr. Walker for the west and I for the east—out of joint managership. Have met with some success in separating people from their money and sell 'white space.'

"My residence address is 68 South Washington Square, New York City, business address care System, 1 Madison Ave., New York City."

*Thomas Henry Curran (B.A. 1903) died June 3, 1903.

Just when we were preparing to take our last examinations as undergraduates in New Haven there came the sad news of the death of Thomas Henry Curran, better known to us all as "Tom" Curran. Little did we realize that while we were enjoying life to the full, during the precious spring months of Senior year, that one of our classmates, although steadily growing weaker from consumption, was fighting a battle against death itself in order to graduate with us. The story of the struggle is told in the following words by a member of his family:—"He contracted la grippe in January 1903, and from that tuberculosis developed. He clung to his work at college until March 1903, when forced to give up by his physicians. He kept informed, through his friends, of the work his classes were doing and until the books were taken away from him continued to study, his one aim being to obtain his degree. He received notice from the Faculty on the morning of June 2d that his work warranted a degree without further study. Then the end was a question of but a few hours." No words need be added. The simple story is filled with pathos inexpressible.

Tom Curran was born in New Haven, Conn., November 25, 1882. The only schools which he attended were St. John's School and Hillhouse High School.

His father, Michael Curran, a funeral director and embalmer, died May 17, 1885. He was a charter member and the first treasurer of the Knights of Columbus. He was born in County Leitrim, Ireland, June 17, 1844, the son of Patrick Curran, a farmer, and of Jane (McKiernan) Curran.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Anne Byrnes, was the daughter of William Byrnes, a steamboat captain, and Elizabeth (Deering) Byrnes. A brother, Harry A. L. Curran, is a member of the Class of 1907.

Such in brief is the outline of the life that ended on June 3, 1903. It was a life full of kindness and bravery. In the early death of Thomas Henry Curran our Class lost a most loyal member and Yale a thoroughly devoted son.

Harold T. Clark.

Kenneth William Curtis (B.A. 1903) was born at Belvidere, Ill., April 3, 1881, prepared at the Franklin School, Cincinnati, Ohio, and entered with the Class. He is the son of Rev. Henry Melville Curtis (Western Reserve 1871), a Presbyterian clergyman and a trustee of the University of Cincinnati, and of Eva (Goss) Curtis.

A brother, Melville G. Curtis, graduated from Yale in 1897.

In college Curtis was substitute on the Freshman Baseball team and on the University Golf team. He was also a member of the Class Golf team and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment.

He writes: "Since leaving Yale beg to state that in the fall of 1903 I joined the family of my uncle, William E. Curtis, Special Correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald, and accompanied him on a trip around the world. Trip being via England, France, Spain, Italy, Egypt, India, Burma, Straits Settlements, Singapore, Hong Kong, Philippine Islands, China, Japan and back to U. S.

"Met numerous classmates in Europe. Met 'Brock' Smith and Alsop in Singapore, 'Bill' Taylor in Manila, 'Yellow' Goss and 'Steve' Clark in Japan and many others of other classes. Trip lasted about a year. On return took a job as office boy in Rogers, Brown & Co., at four dollars per—also ran errands. Worked there for four months and in the beginning of 1905 came to Columbus to take a position with the Columbus Piano Company (manufacturers), of which company Paul Lindenberg, '03, is General Manager."

His address is care Columbus Piano Company, Columbus, Ohio. His residence is Dennison Hotel. His home address is 103 East Auburn Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Ephraim Clarence Cushman (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1905) was born in Shelton, Conn., April 5, 1881, prepared for college at the Ansonia (Conn.) High School and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Clarence Eugene Cushman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., with Wilkinson Brothers & Co., paper makers, was born September 28, 1856, in Amherst, Mass., the son of Ephraim Cushman and Elizabeth (Rankin) Cushman. .

His mother, whose maiden name was Isabelle Cannon, was the daughter of Edward Cannon and Ann (Duane) Cannon.

In college Cushman was a member of the Freshman Glee Club and of the College Choir and graduated with a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "The following fall (1903) I entered the New York Law School and also the law office of H. S. Sayers & Louis F. Perl, leaving that office in February 1904. I completed the first year in Law School in June 1904 and entered the office of Stern, Singer & Barr, attorneys at 309 Broadway, New York City, and remained there until July 1905. I completed my second and final year at New York Law School in June 1905, receiving the degree of LL.B., passed the examinations for the New York Bar the same month and was admitted in July 1905. In July 1905 I entered the office of Archibald C. Shenstone, attorney at 40 Pine St., New York City, and remained there until February 19, 1906, when I entered the Jamaica office of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company as an examiner in the law department, where I am at present located. I have lived for a little over two years at my present address, 63 Linden St., Brooklyn, and expect to remain here for some time to come, and any mail matter, etc., will reach me there.

"In February 1905 I was raised as a Master Mason in George Washington Lodge, F. & A. M., at Ansonia, Conn., but have joined no other organizations."

Merit Lancaster Davidson (B. A. 1903) was born in Lexington, Ky., September 15, 1882, prepared at the Columbia Institute, New York City, and entered college with the Class.

His father, John Hull Davidson, a hotel keeper of New York City and a former mayor of Lexington, Ky., was born in Lexington August 23, 1856, and was the son of James Thompson Davidson, a merchant of Lexington, and of Catherine (Hull) Davidson.

His mother, whose maiden name was Magdalen Davis Lancaster, was the daughter of Merit Proctor Lancaster, a merchant of Lexington, and of Anne Elizabeth (Skillman) Lancaster.

He writes: "I returned to New Haven in the fall of 1903 and studied law until the following April, when, thinking I saw an opportunity for success in the hotel business, I tried my hand at the 'Royal Arms' in New York City. I did not make a success of that venture and in June of 1905 I accepted a position in the Auditing Department of the Chicago Tribune, where I am now located. I can't say that the world has used me badly but I expect greater things in the fall, when I shall return to New York and go into business for myself, most probably the hotel business once more."

His address is care Madison Avenue Hotel, Madison Ave. and 92d St., New York City.

Charles Orrin Day, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Williamsburg, Mass., October 18, 1880, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college with the Class.

His father, Rev. Charles Orrin Day, was born in Catskill, N. Y., November 8, 1851, graduated from Yale in 1872, received the honorary degree of M.A. from Yale in 1891, that of D.D. from Dartmouth and also from Iowa in 1901. He is President of the Andover Theological Seminary. He is the son of Charles Henry Day, a lawyer of Catskill, N. Y., and Sarah (Porter) Day.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Hiland Hull, is the daughter of A. Cooke Hull, M.D., of Brooklyn, and Harriet (Hill) Hull.

Rodney D. Day (1903) is a second cousin.

In college Day was a member of the University Banjo and Mandolin Club for four years, being President in Senior year. He was a member of Psi Upsilon.

He writes: "I entered the Harvard Medical School in the fall of 1903, having spent part of the summer after graduation in taking a course in chemistry at the same. Since I have been in Boston have lived at Technology Chambers, Irvington St., rooming the first year with P. F. Mann and B. A. Pierce, and last year and this year with P. F. Mann. Have been in the school ever since, spending a good portion of each summer in doing hospital work of various kinds. Expect to graduate from the school in June 1907."

His present address is 211 Technology Chambers, Boston, Mass. His home address is Andover, Mass.

Rodney Dean Day (B.A. 1903, M.E. Cornell 1906) was born in Catskill, N. Y., February 22, 1881, prepared for college at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Jeremiah Day, Secretary of the Catskill Savings Bank, graduated from Yale in 1873 and from the Albany Law School in 1878. He was born in Catskill, N. Y., September 10, 1851, the son of Jeremiah Day, nephew of President Jeremiah Day of Yale, and of Emily C. (Day) Day.

His mother, whose maiden name was Fanny Spencer, was the daughter of Henry Spencer and Mary (Jerome) Spencer.

C. O. Day, Jr., (1903) is a second cousin.

In college Day was a member of the Freshman Glee Club, of the Apollo Banjo and Mandolin Club, and of the University Banjo and Mandolin Club. He was also a member of Psi Upsilon.

He writes: "Since I graduated (June 1903) I have been taking mechanical engineering at Cornell University and, God and the Faculty willing, I will get an M.E. degree in June coming (1906). Where I will go when I finish here to enter into engineering work I cannot as yet tell. I only wish I could."

In June 1906 he accepted a position with the Westinghouse Machine Co. of East Pittsburg. His present address is 814 Coal St., Wilkesburg, Pa. His home address is Catskill, N. Y.

Willard Joseph Denno (B. A. 1903, M.D. Columbia 1906) was born in Castleton, Vt., August 25, 1876, prepared for college at the Rutland (Vt.) English and Classical School and entered with the Class.

His father, Gustave Ernest Denno, is a superintendent of a machine shop in Castleton. He was born in Shoreham, Vt., February 4, 1852, the son of Joseph Denno and Mary (Brown) Denno.

His mother, whose maiden name was Roxana Adella Hoskins, was the daughter of Henry Hoskins and Roxana (Chandler) Hoskins.

In college Denno was a member of Sigma Xi and held a First Dispute Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment.

He writes: "I have little of special interest to write you in regard to my checkered career since leaving college. I've been studying medicine at the College of Physicians and Surgeons here in New York ever since graduating from Yale in 1903. Expect to get my M.D. in June 1906. I have been elected to membership in Nu Sigma Nu fraternity at P. & S. I am neither married nor engaged and have no children.

"Letters sent to Castleton, Vermont, will always be forwarded to me. I expect to practice medicine in New York."

In June 1906 he obtained the first place in the General Memorial Hospital, 106th St. and Central Park West, New York City, which will be his address for the next eighteen months.

Robert Emmet Digney (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1905) was born February 12, 1880, at Yonkers, N. Y., prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered in September 1899. He is the son of John M. Digney, a lawyer of White Plains, N. Y., and of Sarah (Murphy) Digney.

Digney writes: "After leaving college I attended the New York Law School, graduating therefrom in 1905 with the degree of LL.B. I was admitted to the Bar in New York State in July 1905 and have since been and am still engaged in the practice of law at White Plains, Westchester County, N. Y., as a member of the law firm of Digney & Horton, of which firm my father, John M. Digney, is the senior member."

His address is White Plains, N. Y. ,

Arthur Douglas Dodge (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City August 30, 1879, prepared for college at the Westminster School, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and Blake's School, New York City, and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Arthur Murray Dodge, who died in 1896, graduated from Yale in 1874. He was born in New York City October 29, 1852, the son of William Earle Dodge and Malissa (Phelps) Dodge.

His mother, whose maiden name was Josephine Marshall Jewell, was the daughter of Hon. Marshall Jewell and Esther (Dickinson) Jewell.

Dodge's Yale relatives include two brothers, Marshall J.

THE LOCK-STEP.

A HALT AT THE FIELD.

READY FOR THE MARCH.

OSBORN HALL CORNER.

(1898) and Murray W. (1899), and two uncles, D. Stewart Dodge (1857) and George E. Dodge (1870).

In college he was a member of Hé Boulé, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Scroll and Key societies.

He writes: "I haven't much to tell except that after leaving college I journeyed around the world for thirteen months. I am now at Westminster School teaching and find it most interesting."

His present address is Simsbury, Conn. His home address is Weatogue, Conn.

Edward Alfred Donohoe (B.A. 1903, LL.B. 1905) was born in Lynn, Mass., December 15, 1880, prepared for college at the Lynn Classical High School and entered in September 1899.

His father, John Francis Donohoe, was born in Waterford, Ireland, February 27, 1849, the son of Patrick Donohoe and Johanna (Dunn) Donohoe.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ellen Manning, was the daughter of John Manning, a retired contractor, and of Ellen (Horgan) Manning.

In college Donohoe held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment. He entered the Yale Law School in 1903, graduating in 1905. He is now practising law with the firm of Hurlburt, Jones and Cabot, Exchange Building, 53 State St., Boston, Mass. He lives at 28 Johnson St., Lynn, Mass.

*Edward Warren Dorman it was my good fortune to know more intimately, I suppose, than any of the rest of the Class did; and I am glad to have a chance to pay a tribute to one whom few of the Class ever had a chance to appreciate.

He was born at Stratford, Conn., on Friday, March 27, 1880, the son of John M. Dorman, a blacksmith, and died at the same place on September 27, 1901; thus living twenty-one years and six months to a day.

He began his education at the Center School in Stratford and his life there was uneventful. He graduated thence in 1896 and entered the Bridgeport High School. There he began to display his ability. He completed the four year course in three years; was an editor of the school paper, the High School Student, and a member of the High School fraternity of Alpha Delta Sigma. At his graduation he was one of the six selected to compete for the Barnum Prize. On this occasion he displayed that ability for public speaking which distinguished him at Yale, and which would have won him laurels had he lived to follow his chosen vocation, the law.

He entered Yale in 1899 with our class. Owing to the fact that he did not reside at the college but commuted daily, he did not have a large circle of acquaintances; but those who knew him in the Freshman Union will recall his power as a speaker and his pleasing but reserved personality. He was chosen as one of the three representatives of our class for the Freshman-Sophomore Debate in the spring of 1900; and I remember the comment of a professor: "That fellow Dorman will make a splendid public speaker some day."

Soon after the opening of our Sophomore year, he left college, intending to remain away a year. In November, however, he was induced to go to Wesleyan. Although he entered so late in the year, he had a very successful year there both in his scholarship and socially. He was elected to Delta Kappa Epsilon.

This chronicle ends the short chapter of his life. But for his untimely death, Ed would have lived to be an honor both to Yale and Wesleyan.

Harry H. Clark.

Walter Landon Douglass (B.A. 1903, Ph.B. 1904) was born in New London, Conn., January 10, 1882, prepared at the Bulkley School, New London, and entered college in September 1899.

His father, William Francis Douglass, who died February 4, 1892, was the son of John Douglass and Jane (Destin) Douglass.

His mother's maiden name was Annabel Lamphere.

A brother, Edward N. Douglass, is in the Class of 1907, Sheffield Scientific School.

In college he won a DeForest mathematical third prize in Freshman year, and held a Dissertation Junior appointment and a First Dispute Senior appointment.

The first year after graduating he studied mining engineering in the Sheffield Scientific School, receiving the degree in course. Since June 1904 his occupation has been "mines and mills in Nevada, Arizona, Utah, Colorado, Idaho, British Columbia, and Montana. I also harvested in Washington a while and packed across the Mohave Desert." At present he is a "miner, etc." at the St. Lawrence mines, Butte, Mont., one of the properties of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company. He is "studying practical mining at first hand." His present address is 14 West Copper St., Butte, Mont. His home address is care Mrs. Annabel Douglass, New London, Conn.

Trusten Polk Draper (B.A. 1903) was born October 20, 1880, at Wilmington, Del., prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered with the Class. He is the son of James Avery Draper, M.D., of Wilmington, Del., and of Mary (Polk) Draper.

A brother, James Avery Draper, Jr., graduated from Yale in 1895.

In college Draper was a member of Alpha Delta Phi.

He is Assistant Superintendent in Blooming Mill Department on day turn of the Republic Iron & Steel Company, Youngstown, Ohio. His residence is 250 Lincoln Ave., Youngstown, Ohio. His home address is 1101 Market St., Wilmington, Del.

John Martin Dreisbach (B.A. 1903) was born at Wilkes-Barré, Pa., November 26, 1879, prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class.

His father, Martin Luther Dreisbach, was born September 6, 1843, at Lewisburg, Pa., the son of Martin Dreisbach and Elizabeth (Kleckner) Dreisbach. He is with the Macan Jr. Company and resides at 225 Reeder St., Easton, Pa.

His mother, whose maiden name was Susan Butz Horn, was the daughter of Melchoir H. Horn and Matilda (Heller) Horn.

In college Dreisbach was President of the Freshman Boat Club, Secretary and President of the Yale Navy, a Class Deacon, member of the Dwight Hall Executive Committee, also of Apollo Glee Club and Triennial Committee. He was Chairman of the campaign committees of Kappa Psi and Delta Kappa Epsilon, a member of Skull and Bones, and held a First Colloquy Junior and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: "On July 5, 1903, I came to Easton, Pa., and started in the belting business with George C. Macan, Jr., and a few months later we formed a partnership. Originally cotton belt (Scandinavia) was the only article which we handled. Our success with this article was so marked that we decided to broaden our lines and are now doing a general mill supply business, handling a full line of supplies and a number of mechanical specialties. Our aim and intention is to develop a profitable business along lines named and our progress thus far indicates success. Our office is at 224 Ferry St. We are at the heart of the cement industry and accessible to many cement plants within a radius of 25 miles, where our particular cotton belting is especially adaptable. My particular connection with the firm comprises some office work but principally traveling among the manufacturers of this territory. There are now connected with this firm (The Macan Jr. Company) six persons besides Macan and myself (two salesmen and four office force).

"I was married June 24, 1904, in Elmira, N. Y., to Miss Laura Claire Dartt, daughter of James Frank Dartt, a manufacturer of Elmira. We came direct to 714 Cattell St., Easton, Pa., where we continue to live.

"My father and family moved to Easton from Wilkes-Barré, Pa., since my coming here and are now living at 225 Reeder St. My wife and myself are members of the College Hill Presbyterian Church and teachers in the Sunday School, of which I am Assistant Superintendent.

"Aside from this unexciting but pleasant office, I am only an ordinary citizen. I find my life here extremely pleasant and hope for success along lines begun."

Herbert Lathe Drury (B.A. 1903, M.A. Harvard 1904) was born in Worcester, Mass., October 25, 1880, prepared for college at the Worcester High School and entered in the fall of 1899. He is the son of William Henry Drury, a merchant who died August 31, 1889, and of Sarah (Lathe) Drury.

In college he received an honor in English composition Sophomore year, held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and an Oration Senior appointment. Since graduation he has been studying in the Harvard Graduate School. His M.A. degree was taken in English work. He is now taking a post graduate course in history. His present address is Walter Hastings Hall, Cambridge, Mass. His home address is Newton, Mass.

Stanley Clifford Dukeshire (B.A. Acadia University 1898, B.A. Yale 1903) was born at Maitland, Nova Scotia, February 28, 1874, prepared at the Annapolis (Nova Scotia) High School and entered Yale in the fall of 1902.

His father, William Riley Dukeshire, a farmer and at one time Postmaster of Maitland, was born in Kempt, Nova Scotia, in 1839, and is the son of John Dukeshire and Mary (Wiswell) Dukeshire.

His mother, whose maiden name was Clara Mullens, was the daughter of John Mullens and Charlotte (Harlow) Mullens.

Dukeshire graduated with a High Oration Senior appointment. He writes: "I am at present teaching mathematics in Collegiate School (private)," 241 West 77th St., New York City. His residence is 23 West 70th St., New York City. His home address is Maitland, Annapolis Co., Nova Scotia.

Donald Austin Dunham (B.A. 1903) was born at Hartford, Conn., March 22, 1881, prepared at the Hartford (Conn.) Public High School, and entered with the Class.

His father, Sylvester Clark Dunham, at one time a student of Mount Union College, Ohio, was born in Mansfield, Conn., April 24, 1846, the son of Jonathan Lyman Dunham, one of the founders of the town of Greeley, Colo., and Abigail (Eldredge) Dunham. He is President of the Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford and a director of several banks, and resides at 830 Prospect Ave., Hartford, Conn.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Mercy Austin, was the daughter of James Harvey Austin, M.D., of Bristol, Conn., and of Emily (King) Austin.

He writes: "Yours received with request for a letter, and I will take up each heading separately as they appear in the printed suggestions which you enclose.

"(1) Left college June 1903. Lived at 830 Prospect Ave., Hartford, since November 18, 1904. Prior to that at 17 Marshall St. Have been with Travelers Insurance Company since July 1st, 1903, and am now an underwriter in liability insurance.

"(2) Nothing doing.

"(3) Found out that I could get an M.A. at Trinity College, Hartford, by taking a few courses, and started in to take the work in modern languages, and do the required work in two years, at the same time keeping up my work with the Travelers. It proved more than I could swing, and although I stuck it out for a year, the combination of work and study was too much for me and I was not only compelled to give up the idea of continuing my college work, but to take a good vacation and rest up.

“(4) Nothing doing.

“(5) Joined Yale Club of New York, Yale Alumni Association of Hartford, and Hartford Golf Club.

“(6) In summer of 1904 made a tour in Europe, visiting England, France, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland and Italy. Met ‘Jack’ Freeman in Munich, and had a great reunion.

“(7) Permanent address: 830 Prospect Ave., Hartford, Conn.

“(9) My plans for the future are to stick to liability insurance and The Travelers, and make a success of it, if it is in me to do so.”

Harry Wilfred DuPuy (B.A. 1903) was born in Allegheny, Pa., September 27, 1880, prepared at The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and entered with the Class.

His father, Herbert DuPuy (C.E. Lehigh University 1878), a capitalist residing at 646 Morewood Ave., Pittsburg, Pa., was the son of Charles M. DuPuy and Ellen (Reynolds) DuPuy.

His mother, whose maiden name was Amy Susette Hostetter, was the daughter of David Hostetter and Rosetta (Rickey) Hostetter.

His Yale relatives are an uncle, Harry M. Hostetter, of the Class of '78, and a brother, Charles Meredith DuPuy (1908).

In college DuPuy was Captain of the Gun team, President of the Gun Club, a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and Wolf's Head societies and held a First Colloquy Junior and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: “I started life by taking a vacation. We usually end it the same way, but there aren't enough in between. I sailed on the good ship Oceanic, bound for Liverpool, on July 1st, with a representative collection of members of the Class. The summer was spent on the Continent, visiting Paris, Venice, Berlin, and other masterpieces of the Old World. Most of the trip was in the company of Tyler and Schley. We made a very careful study of the former, who developed into a fine example of that little known biped, The Engaged Man. He eats not, neither does he sleep, and Lazarus in all his misery was not as sad as one of these. But finally the steamer mercifully took him home, and I think he believes the Statue of Liberty to be the greatest masterpiece in Europe.

"After the departure of Schley I was lured by the Scotch mist to take a trip through the Caledonian Canal. This differs from the Semicircular Canal in that it goes up and down instead of round and round. I finally reached Edinburgh.

"Edinburgh was started by the man mentioned in the Bible who builded his house upon a rock. He may also have used whale-oil to keep his lights burning under a bushel, but his descendants employ Scotch whiskey, which is why Curfew rings lights out at nine o'clock, so that the fuel may be put to a better use.

"At the conclusion of this trip I was persuaded by relatives living in Cambridge, where two uncles were connected with the university as professors, to enter this seat of learning and pose as a student again. I consented to this proposal, and, at the beginning of the term in October, enrolled myself as an undergraduate in Trinity College. The newest building there is about a hundred and fifty years old and I had a room in one of the most modern, dating from some time in the eighteenth century. It was on the campus, or Great Court, and my principal occupation from the beginning was keeping it warm. The problem was how to heat all the cold air blowing through all the cracks in all the windows of three rooms with one coal fire. I did not succeed, and therefore I am now almost as healthy as an Englishman.

"I will not describe the courses which I took. They were not many. I believe I had twelve hours a week. At Cambridge no one has a very large schedule of lectures, as most of the work is done with tutors. I dispensed with the tutors. I remember a lecture in political economy and one in 'petrology'. If there were more subjects I have forgotten them. They have no courses in literature and history, so I was pretty well limited to classics and mathematics, neither of which were very strong favorites. Finally, at the end of the term, I decided that I had had enough of colleges for a while, and, having had a final glimpse of an English one, I resolved to see what work was like.

"I returned home in December, and, after a trip to Alabama, took a position with the Pennsylvania Rubber Company, with which I have been connected since February 12th, 1904. In the summer of 1905 I went abroad and motored for two months through England and western France accompanied by my family and part of the time by one Henry James, soon to depart this life and become a doctor. God give him patients!

"I have attended a number of alumni gatherings in the past three years; among them two dinners of the Western Federation of Yale Clubs at St. Louis in 1904 and Chicago in 1905, a dinner of the Pittsburg alumni and the Class dinner in New York.

"There you have my past and present, and if I live to grow up you will see me at Triennial, which will be my future."

His business address is Jeanette, Pa. His residence is 646 Morewood Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.

George Gilbert Durant, Jr., was born in Bethel, Conn., December 19, 1881, prepared at the Norwalk (Conn.) University School and entered with the Class, leaving at the end of Sophomore year.

He is the son of George Gilbert Durant, a retired hat merchant, and of Alice Thompson (Benjamin) Durant, who died April 21, 1901.

Since leaving college Durant has been in the hat business in Bethel, Conn.

Clive Livingston DuVal (B.A. 1903) was born May 2, 1879, in Brooklyn, N. Y., prepared for college at the Berkeley School, New York City, and at the Brooklyn Latin School and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Horace Clark DuVal, of the firm of DuVal, Greer & Co., New York bankers and brokers, is also Vice President of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, Vice President of the Mechanics Bank of Brooklyn and trustee and director of a number of corporations, etc. He was born July 4, 1851, the son of William DuVal and Caroline Nichols (Clark) DuVal.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ida Livingston Frost, is the daughter of Joseph B. Frost and A. E. L. (Bogardus) Frost.

In college DuVal was President of the University Athletic Association, a member of the track team, of the Junior Promenade Committee and of the Triennial Committee. He was on the campaign committees of Kappa Psi and Psi Upsilon, and was a member of Scroll and Key. He held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: "After leaving college I made a trip around the world occupying six months, to January 1st, 1904. During January and February I was in Arizona inspecting mining properties. In July and August I travelled in Europe, and in the fall of 1904 I became connected with the wholesale coal firm of Geo. D. Harris & Company. Of literary work I have done nothing unless you may call literary work the publication of a page of my photographs in Leslie's Weekly of December 28th, 1905. The pictures are of Constantinople. June, July, August and September 1905 I spent in travel in Roumania, Turkey and Greece principally, and I expect to sail on January 16 (1906) for Gibraltar with the intention of visiting Spain and later Italy. My permanent address is 709 Madison Avenue, New York City.

"In 1905 I became a Mason and am a member of Holland Lodge of N. Y."

Leslie's Weekly published on April 19, 1906, photographs taken by DuVal of Mt. Vesuvius in eruption. On July 1 he became a member of the firm of DuVal, Greer & Co., bankers and brokers, 74 Broadway, New York City.

Wilton Adams Earnshaw was born in Greenport, N. Y., February 15, 1881, prepared at the Lowville (N. Y.) Academy and entered with the Class, leaving at the close of Sophomore year.

His father, Rev. Joseph Westby Earnshaw (Union Theological Seminary 1876), is a Presbyterian clergyman of Lowville. He was born in Sheffield, England, January 9, 1846, the son of John Earnshaw and Harriet (Holmes) Earnshaw.

His mother, whose maiden name was Annie Dudley Adams, was the daughter of Governon Stevens Adams, a lawyer and graduate of Hamilton, and of Nancy Usher (Cone) Adams.

Three uncles have graduated from Yale: Dr. Robert C. Cone (1837 M.S.), Rev. Luther H. Cone (1847) and Edward W. Cone (1851).

Since leaving Yale Earnshaw has been studying mining engineering at Lehigh University, and was elected a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity. He expects to get his mining engineer's degree in 1906. His probable permanent address is Lowville, N. Y.

John Eliason (B.A. 1903, LL.B. University of Pennsylvania 1906) was born in Chestertown, Md., July 19, 1882, prepared at the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, Conn., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Wilbur Eliason (of the Class of 1874 Yale), a farmer, was born in Chestertown, January 31, 1853, the son of Thomas Wilson Eliason and Mary (Walker) Eliason.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Comegys Brown, was the daughter of Hiram Brown and Mary Comegys (Merritt) Brown.

A brother, Eldridge Lyon Eliason (1901), and an uncle, Dr. John Eliason (1869), are Yale graduates.

In college he was substitute center on the Freshman Football team and held a Dissertation Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment.

He writes, December 1905: "I am at present studying law at the University of Pennsylvania Law School. In 1906 I expect the degree of LL.B. Have been here since leaving Yale. Am a member of Sharswood Law Club and legal fraternity of Phi Delta Phi. Permanent address, Chestertown, Maryland. Expect to practice law in Philadelphia."

His address is 1222 Stephen Girard Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

Bradford Ellsworth was born October 31, 1880, at New Hartford, Conn., prepared for college at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, William W. Ellsworth, was born October 30, 1855, at Hartford, Conn., the son of Oliver Ellsworth. He is the Secretary of The Century Company, publishers, and resides at 64 West 46th St., New York City.

His mother, whose maiden name was Helen Yale Smith, was the daughter of Morris W. Smith and Julia (Palmer) Smith.

Ellsworth numbers among his Yale relatives an uncle, Frederick W. Davis (1877), and "various cousins." In college he was a member of the Freshman Glee Club, the Apollo Glee Club and the University Glee Club, and of Alpha Delta Phi.

Ellsworth was married December 1, 1904, in New York City to Miss Juliet Inness, daughter of George Inness, Jr., the artist, of New York City. A son, George Inness Ellsworth, was born December 27, 1905.

He is connected with Brewster & Co., carriage manufacturers, Broadway and 47th St., New York City. His residence is 145 West 59th St.

Nickolaus Louis Engelhardt (B.A. 1903) was born at Naugatuck, Conn., October 8, 1882, prepared for college at the Naugatuck High School and entered with the Class.

His father, George John Engelhardt, was born in Frankfurt on the Main, Germany, in 1853. He is with the Goodyear India Rubber Glove Manufacturing Company and resides at Woodland St., Naugatuck, Conn.

His mother's maiden name was Helen Theresa Deubel.

A brother, Fred Engelhardt, is in the Class of 1908 S. S. S.

In college Engelhardt published the Yale University Calendar, and held an Oration Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment.

On June 14, 1905, he was married to Miss Bessie Edna Gardner, at Auburn, N. Y., the daughter of Willard S. Gardner, who is with C. E. Crouse & Co. (grocers), Syracuse, N. Y., and lives in Auburn, N. Y. Mrs. Engelhardt graduated in 1903 from the American University of Harriman, Tenn.

He writes: "The year 1903-04 I spent at Newport, R. I., striving to instruct the young idea how to sprout at the Cloyne House School. The next school year brought with it a better proposition at the Haverford (Pa.) School. Here I have been ever since with the exception of a summer (1905) spent in Maine in charge of ten boys—canoeing, fishing, camping, etc. It seems little, but then the world has been good enough to me to furnish me the best and nicest of little wives to share my good fortunes and so we rest content."

And later, August 1906: "Occupation changed since last letter—or rather place of occupation. Begin work in September as head teacher in German in the Academic High School, Auburn, N. Y. Address: 71 Seymour St., Auburn, N. Y. Am pleased also to record another class girl, Helen Gardner Engelhardt, born April 30, 1906.”

John Kuhn Evans (B.A. 1903) was born in McKeesport, Pa., July 4, 1880, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class.

His father, James Evans (Washington and Jefferson 1861), is the President of the National Bank of McKeesport. He was born November 24, 1840, in McKeesport, the son of Oliver Evans, a farmer and business man of McKeesport, and of Mary Ann (Sampson) Evans.

His mother, whose maiden name was Rebecca Elizabeth Stotler, was the daughter of David Stotler, a farmer and business man of Pittsburg, and of Eleanor (Mellon) Stotler.

Evans' Yale relatives include a brother, Thomas M. Evans (1898), and a first cousin, Berne H. Evans (1899). In college he was a member of Eta Phi and Alpha Delta Phi societies. After graduation he took a position in the National Bank of McKeesport, and is now studying at the Pittsburg Law School in the Class of 1907. His address is S. Huey St., McKeesport, Pa.

George Barnett Everts (B.A. 1903) was born at Michigamme, Mich., November 5, 1880, prepared for college at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered with the Class.

His father, William Peter Everts, was born at Ore Hill, Conn., the son of Peter P. Everts and Tryphena (Barnett) Everts. He is the Secretary of The Salisbury Cutlery Handle Company and also Postmaster of Salisbury, Conn.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Jennie Knox, is the daughter of Henry Gilbert Knox and Sarah (Bearcroft) Knox.

In college Everts held a First Dispute Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment.

He writes: "I entered the employ of the Bridgeport Land & Title Company, November 12, 1903, in the capacity of collector of rents, and have continued with them in the same capacity since—thus bearing out 'Gus' Oliver's little fling at me in the Class History. It is fair work and is guaranteed to develop one's nerve. I delayed answering your letter because at the time I was contemplating making a rather important change in my life—i. e. from business to professional life—but circumstances, both financial and physical, seem to have effectually put up the bars between that change and me; so methinks it's the business life for mine."

His business address is care The Bridgeport Land & Title Company, or P. O. Box 675, Bridgeport, Conn. His residence is 905 Lafayette Street.

Robert Hall Ewell (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born September 28, 1880, in Milbury, Mass., prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Rev. John Lewis Ewell (Yale 1865), is Professor of Church History, Hebrew and Greek in Howard University. He lives at 325 College St., Washington, D. C. He was born September 4, 1840, in Byfield, Mass., the son of Samuel Ewell and Mary (Stickney) Ewell.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emily Spofford Hall, died May 15, 1906, and was the daughter of William Hall and Emily (Spofford) Hall.

Ewell's Yale relatives include his father and three brothers, Dr. Arthur W. (1897), John L., Jr. (1897) and Rev. William S. (1901).

In college he was on the debating team against Harvard in 1902 and 1903 and an alternate in 1900. He debated against Princeton in the spring of 1901 and the fall of 1901 and was an alternate in 1900. He won the Thacher prize twice and a second prize in elocution in Sophomore year. He was Vice President, also President of the Yale Union, was Class Orator, and was a member of Psi Upsilon and of the Elihu Club. He held an Oration Junior appointment and a First Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes in December 1905: "I entered the Harvard Law School in the fall of 1903 and hope to get the degree of LL.B. from that school in 1906. I am a member of the Pow Wow and Phi Delta Phi clubs in the Harvard Law School. The summer of 1905 I worked in the banking house of Brown Brothers & Company in New York City. I was Treasurer of the Ticket Department of the Yale Football Association during the fall of 1905. I have not made any definite plans for the future. The location of a domicile for the years to come and the matrimonial question are problems which still haunt me and remain to be solved."

And later: "I got my LL.B. from Harvard Law School this June. September 1st I shall report for duty at the law office of Merrill & Rogers, 31 Nassau St., New York City."

Antonio Pandelli Fachiri was born August 23, 1880, in New York City, prepared for college at the Cutler School, New York City, and at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered with the Class, leaving at Easter of Freshman year.

He was the son of Pandelli Y. [Hypatius] Fachiri, who died February 9, 1903, and who was for twenty-five years head of the New York house of Ralli Brothers, merchants of London. He was born in Smyrna in 1839. He resided during different periods in Bombay, London and New York.

His mother's maiden name was Hariclée Ralli.

He writes: "It is only the persistent efforts of our energetic Secretary that gives me courage to bring myself before you in this way. Had I covered myself with glory or done brave deeds that would have done credit to the fair name of 1903, I would need none of the repeated entreaties of the Class Secretary to launch forth in a modest (?) recital of my doings since I left you in the spring of 1900. As it is I reluctantly give you 'the story of my life.'

"I started in business in the autumn of 1900 and was with the New York branch of Messrs. Ralli Brothers until October 1904. Then at a week's notice, I was sent by the firm to India via Vancouver, Japan, China, etc.—a most interesting trip from every point of view. (It was owing to the suddenness of this trip that I did not have time to say 'good-bye' to any of my friends, and I very much fear that many of you did me the injustice of thinking it was indifference on my part that made me leave without seeing any of you.)

"After spending three months in India (in the pursuit of knowledge regarding 'affairs commercial') I left for London and started with the London firm (head office) of Messrs. Ralli Brothers. Here I am in 'dear old London', and although I miss my friends and New York very much indeed, nevertheless there is something about London which makes one grow fonder of it the more one sees of this wonderful city.

"You see, dear friends, there is not much to boast of in my last six years' existence, and I advise you to have your revenge on the Class Secretary for causing me to launch forth. Some of you may have already achieved success in your careers. As for myself I realize more fully, as each year goes by, how much there is to learn and how little I know of business. Perhaps some day at a grey-haired reunion of 1903 I may be able to say that I have 'climbed the dizzy heights', but not till then, I fear.

"Here's to 'good old Yale,' and though the rest of my days will most probably be spent in Europe, I'll never forget my Alma Mater nor the true friends that I made while at Yale. Of course it was a bit of luck that the one year I was at Yale I should have had the privilege of being in 1903. N'est ce pas? Do not forget me and sometimes at your reunions drink a toast to the Absent One."

Fachiri's address is care Messrs. Ralli Brothers, 25 Finsbury Circus, London, E. C., England.

Edward Josiah Failing (B.A. 1903) was born in Portland, Ore., May 18, 1881, prepared for college at the Portland Academy and entered with the Class.

His father, James Frederick Failing, a retired hardware merchant, formerly of Corbett, Failing & Robertson of Portland, was born in New York City March 24, 1842, the son of Josiah Failing, a former mayor of Portland, and of Henrietta Legge (Ellison) Failing.

His mother, whose maiden name was Jane Johnson Connor, was the daughter of John Connor (school teacher, merchant and banker), and of Martha Maria Bancroft (Whittlesey) Connor.

Failing's Yale relatives include a brother, John Connor Failing (1900), and two cousins, Henry F. Connor (1893 S.) and Henry R. Failing (1907).

He held in college a Dissertation Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since I left college after graduation I have been learning the general hardware business with my father's old rivals here, the Honeyman Hardware Company, doing both a retail and wholesale business. I have been in about every department except the buyers' and at present (December 1905) am in the city sales room. I began work July 27, 1903. I am a member of the University Club here, an organization of one hundred and eighty odd members, of whom twenty odd are Yale men, three having been President. In October 1904 I was elected to the Club Council and in 1905 was promoted to Secretary. I have done no work in politics except in one campaign for state officers, when I did a little precinct work in the primaries for the Simon or anti-Mitchell wing of the Republican party. I have been too busy to knock around much or to travel at all, and nothing has happened to tell about. My permanent address is 243 11th St., Portland, Ore."

And later: "Please change my business address from care Honeyman Hardware Company to care Failing, Haines & McCalman, 88 and 90 Front St., Portland, Ore., of which I am a director and Secretary. This firm is successor to Corbett, Failing & Robertson, Inc., and is engaged in the wholesale hardware business."

John J. Mitchell Fairbank (B.A. 1903) was born in Chicago, Ill., April 9, 1879, prepared for college at the Smith Academy, St. Louis, Mo., and at the Betts Academy, Stamford, Conn., and entered in September 1899.

His father, Lemuel Gulliver Fairbank, who died October 20, 1904, was a Civil War veteran and a manufacturer of furniture. He was the son of Josiah Fairbank, of Boston, and of Sarah Elizabeth (Gulliver) Fairbank.

His mother, whose maiden name was Lucinda Elizabeth Mitchell, was the daughter of John J. Mitchell of St. Louis, one time President of the Chicago & Alton Railroad, and of Caroline Elois (Bayles) Mitchell.

In college Fairbank was a member of the University Banjo and Mandolin Club and of Delta Kappa Epsilon. He is at present cashier of Hamlin, Thompson & Sheldon, brokers, 60 State St., Boston, Mass. His residence is 636 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

Joseph Fairbanks (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in St. Johnsbury, Vt., January 12, 1881, prepared at the St. Johnsbury Academy and entered in September 1899.

His father, William Paddock Fairbanks, who died December 15, 1895, was of the E. and T. Fairbanks & Company, scale manufacturers of St. Johnsbury, Vt. He was born in St. Johnsbury, July 27, 1841, the son of Joseph P. Fairbanks and Almira (Taylor) Fairbanks.

His mother, whose maiden name was Rebecca Pike, was the daughter of Robert Pike and Huldah (Johnson) Pike.

An uncle, Rev. Edward T. Fairbanks, graduated from Yale in 1859.

In college Fairbanks received honors in English composition in Sophomore year, a Henry James Ten Eyck second prize in Junior year, and a Townsend Premium in Senior year. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Beta Theta Pi. He held a High Oration Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment.

He writes, August 11, 1906: "I am just commencing law practice here in St. Johnsbury and expect to stay here. At present I am with the firm of May and Hill. I succeeded in drawing a degree from the reluctant law school in June."

Peter Elting Farnum, Jr., was born in Port Jervis, N. Y., March 1, 1880, prepared for college at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class.

His father, Peter Elting Farnum of Port Jervis, N. Y., was born in Gilbertsville, N. Y., May 10, 1840, the son of George Farnum and Diana (Zearfoss) Farnum.

His mother's maiden name was Mary Conkling. Augustus Thompson (Yale 1896 S.) is a relative.

In college he was a member of the Freshman Glee Club, University Glee Club, College Choir and Alpha Delta Phi. Since graduation he has been with the New York Life Insurance Company, 611 Broadway, and lives at the Yale Club, 30 West 44th St., New York City.

Franklin Farrel, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Ansonia, Conn., August 27, 1881, prepared for college at the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, and at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H.

His father, Franklin Farrel, is President of the Farrel Foundry and Machine Company of Ansonia. He was born February 17, 1828, in Waterbury, Conn., the son of Almon Farrel and Ruth Emma (Warner) Farrel.

His mother, whose maiden name was Lillian Clarke, is the daughter of Wilson H. Clarke and Julia Elizabeth (Cable) Clarke.

George C. Bryant (Yale 1895) is a brother-in-law, and Alton Farrel (1902) is a first cousin.

In college Farrel was a member of Eta Phi, Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Elihu Club. Since graduation he has been with the Farrel Foundry and Machine Company and writes:

"I have not accomplished any illustrious feats of bravery or mental exertion since leaving college, choosing rather a modest life of some work and much pleasure combined."

His address is Ansonia, Conn.

William Ferguson (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Talcottville, Conn., November 2, 1882, prepared at the South Manchester (Conn.) High School and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, William John Ferguson, a mechanic with Cheney Brothers, South Manchester, was born in Belfast, Ireland, in August 1853, the son of James Ferguson and Elizabeth Ferguson.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Bryan, was the daughter of John Bryan and Jane Bryan.

A brother, David Ferguson, is now in Yale in the Class of 1908.

In college Ferguson held an Oration Junior appointment and an Oration Senior appointment.

He writes in January 1906: "In the fall of 1903 I entered the Harvard Law School and expect to get my LL.B. in 1906, i. e. next June. That comprises, I think, the total of my career since leaving Yale."

His home address is Box 251, Manchester, Conn.

Mansfield Ferry (B.A. 1903) was born in Chicago, Ill., June 21, 1882, prepared for college at the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, Conn., and at the Taft School, Watertown, Conn., and entered with the Class.

His father, Charles Herbert Ferry (Yale 1872), formerly with the Latrobe Steel and Coupler Company, at present resides in New York City. He was born in Utica, N. Y., September 1, 1851, the son of William Henry Ferry, a banker, and of Mary Ann (Williams) Ferry.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emily Dwight Mansfield, was the daughter of John William Mansfield, a banker, and of Mary Antoinette (Macumber) Mansfield.

Ferry numbers among his Yale relatives, besides his father, an uncle, William H. Ferry (1868), and several cousins, Stanley Dwight (1876), Frank F. Ferry (1900), John F. Ferry (1901 S.), Montague Ferry (1901 S.), and Horace F. Ferry (1906). He also claims Elihu Yale as a great something uncle.

In college he was a member of Psi Upsilon, and held an Oration Junior and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: "Had I not just been going over criminal indictments, your documents would have made me afraid to look into them more closely; and now that I have read them and reread them, there is precious little that I can do for your obituary record. I am hard to kill but find that fight the only one in which I have been engaged. I have not yet refused any offices of honor, trust or profit, and am hoping that sometime there may be one of the latter for me to accept. I am glad to see by the space you devote to engagements and allied subjects that you are a firm believer in one phase of President Roosevelt's policy, and am sorry that modesty, etc., prevents me from being at the head of the Class with statistics on this subject.

"Since leaving college on Commencement Day, 1903, my domicile has been at Winthrop Hall, Cambridge, but my residence I have always kept at 183 Lincoln Park Boulevard, Chicago. I was at the Harvard Law School for some months in 1903-04, when general debility, locating specifically in my eyes, compelled me to leave the chill of Cambridge for a warmer clime, but I returned in the autumn of 1904 to again begin legal studies and have been hammering at the law ever since, with the result that at the end of next year (1907) I hope to get a degree of J.D. though it may be only an LL.B., just as the faculty decides. I cannot give the exact title and date and place of publication of anything of literary merit published by me: the nearest approach to those heights is an editorship of the Harvard Law Review, wherein alleged legal drippings drip monthly.

"As for politics: Last Tuesday I got out some convicts to vote for 'Joey' Beale, who was elected alderman in Cambridge, and who taught us crimes last year and next year is to teach us where laws conflict. If you call clubs social organizations, I am a member of the Graduates' Club, New Haven, the Yale Club, New York, and the Onwentsia, and Saddle and Cycle clubs in Chicago.

"Travels: After graduation, together with many other willing birds of passage, I found myself on the H. M. S. Oceanic, and Porter and I spent the summer together in Europe, much of the time with Tyler and Schley, and some of the time close to a place that rhymes with 'hotel', as we thought when we were in Greece and Constantinople. On leaving the Harvard Law School in the spring of 1904 'Ike' Hazard and I punctured a few American bicycle tires along the shores of the Loire and Brittany.

"183 Lincoln Park Boulevard, Chicago, will always reach me.

"Even five weeks thought can recall nothing further to me to serve as the slightest foundation for further drool; in other words, I am dry as Sahara."

His address for the coming school year is 48 Brattle St., Cambridge, Mass.

Morton Cross Fitch (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1905) was born in New York City June 18, 1881, prepared for college at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college with the Class.

His father, Ashbel Parmelee Fitch (Columbia Law School, also attended the German universities of Jena and Berlin), died May 3, 1904. He was Representative in Congress 1887-1894, Comptroller of New York City 1894-1898 and President of the Trust Company of America from 1899 until his death. He was the son of Edward Fitch, a lawyer of Malone, N. Y., and New York City, and of Fannie (Parmelee) Fitch.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth A. Cross, was the daughter of George Cross and Julia A. (Lewis) Cross.

Fitch's Yale relatives include two brothers, Ashbel Parmelee Fitch (1898) and Littleton Holmes Fitch (1906).

In college he was an editor of the News and was Secretary of the University Baseball Association and Manager of the College Baseball team 1901-1902. He was a member of Psi Upsilon and the Elihu Club. He held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since leaving college I have studied law at the New York Law School, graduating there last June (1905). I passed my bar exams. the same month and was admitted to practice. For the past two years I have been connected with this office, which, under the firm name, Ashbel P. Fitch, Mott & Grant, has continued the business built up by my grandfather and father. My brother Ashbel, '98, is the head of the firm and Mr. Fred E. Grant, '91 at Yale, is a member.

"I am not married. I am not engaged. I have published no books or pamphlets; have done no political, social or religious work and hold no particular positions of honor, trust or profit that I can recall. Neither have I made any notable journeys in this or foreign countries. I have simply studied law and have not found time for any of the various other things above mentioned, although some of them sound very good to me. It is my intention to stay right here in this office until I retire from business, die or am bounced.

"At the law school I was a member of the Dwight Chapter of the legal fraternity of Phi Delta Phi, along with brothers Theron R. Strong, Russell Bogue and Ralph Melcer. I believe that I held the office of Tribune of the Chapter during my Senior year, but it was not a position of 'trust or profit' and the 'honor' connected with it was rather dubious. In the hands of a life insurance president it might have been made a position of 'profit'."

His business address is 32 Nassau St., New York City. His residence is 759 West End Ave.

Edward Harold Fitzgerald (B.A. 1903, B.D. Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass., 1906) was born in Milford, Conn., August 29, 1881, prepared for college at the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, Conn., and entered with the Class.

His father, the Rev. John Henry Fitzgerald (St. Stephen's College, Annandale, N. Y., 1859), an Episcopal clergyman of Hebron, Conn., was the son of John Fitzgerald and Catherine (Burris) Fitzgerald.

His mother, whose maiden name was Helen Maria Roberts, was the daughter of John Dewitt Roberts, an architect of New Haven, and Louisa (Coe) Roberts.

Two uncles, the Rev. Walter C. Roberts (1873 S.) and Edward K. Roberts, M.D., (1878 S.); and a brother, John Henry Fitzgerald, Jr., (1908) are among his Yale relatives.

In college Fitzgerald held an Oration Junior and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: "In the fall of 1903 I entered the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass., to study for the ministry, leaving college June 1903. The studies have been along the line of those usual in theological schools. I expect to graduate in June 1906 with the degree of B.D. (in course).

"My permanent address is Hebron, Conn.

"In connection with the work in the Theological School, I have had charge of a mission in East Milton, Mass., and also during the summers of 1904 and 1905 at North Scituate Beach, Mass.

"Next fall, if I receive an appointment which is practically certain, I expect to go to Hankow, China, as a missionary. I will work there in connection with the Episcopal mission centering at Hankow. In this mission Rev. D. T. Huntington, '92, is working. So we have the nucleus of a Yale Club right there. The Yale Mission is within reach too, I think, though I haven't much idea of the distances there as yet. Anyhow Yale is represented in Central China, and 1903 will be."

Minton Fluhrer (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City, February 25, 1882, prepared at Dr. Holbrook's School, Sing Sing, N. Y., and entered college in September 1899.

His father, William Francis Fluhrer, M.D., was born in Providence, R. I., December 22, 1846, the son of John Christopher Fluhrer and Julia (Greiner) Fluhrer.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emily Caroline Pullman, was the daughter of James Lewis Pullman and Emily Caroline (Minton) Pullman.

Since graduation Fluhrer has been studying law in the Columbia Law School and expects to take his degree in 1907.

His address is 604 West 114th St., New York City.

Pierrepont Beers Foster (B.A. 1903) was born in New Haven, Conn., December 9, 1878, prepared for college at the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, Conn., at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and by private tutor. He entered with the Class of 1902, joining 1903 at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, William Law Foster (LL.B. Yale 1865), who died in 1881, was born in New Haven, Conn., April 20, 1844. He was the son of Pierrepont Beers Foster and Stella (Bishop) Foster.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Elizabeth Board, was the daughter of Edmund Kingsland Board and Abigail T. (Heard) Board.

In college Foster was Chairman of the Class Cup Committee, was a member of Zeta Psi and held a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "On leaving college in June 1903, I was married on June 27th in Plainfield, N. J., to Elizabeth Plummer Bowen, daughter of Henry Elliott Bowen, who resides in Plainfield, and is connected with the advertising department of the New York Herald. After four months spent in travelling in Europe, I came back to New Haven, where I remained until February. On February 11th, I started on a three months' trip through Mexico and California, stopping at the World's Fair in St. Louis on my way home. From May until September the time was largely spent in automobiling, and on September 1st, 1904, I settled down at 235 Bishop St., New Haven, entering law school at the end of the same month, continuing the study of law to the present time. Now in the middle of the year, I expect to finish my course at the Yale Law School, and after that have no definite plans.

"I have a daughter, Elizabeth Pierrepont Foster, who was born August 1st, 1905.

"At present I am president of the Lovell Manufacturing Company, a corporation which has been organized to manufacture chain from steel wire. The company is not in full running condition yet, but we hope it soon will be.

"My permanent address is Exchange Building, New Haven, Conn."

James Irving Fowler was born in Glens Falls, N. Y., September 11, 1880, prepared for college at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered in September 1899.

His father, Joseph Fowler, of the Joseph Fowler Shirt & Collar Company of Glens Falls, died in October 1898. He was born in Chestertown, N. Y., in 1840, the son of Charles A. Fowler and Mary (Baker) Fowler.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Coolidge, died in 1895.

Albert N. C. Fowler (Yale 1894) is a relative. Fowler left college at Christmas of Freshman year and has since lived in Glens Falls. He is now Treasurer and General Manager of the Fowler Collar Co.

Alan Fox (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Painted Post, N. Y., November 18, 1881, prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college with the Class.

His father, Alanson Jehiel Fox, who died October 29, 1903, was President of the Lumbering Company, Manistique, Mich., and was a partner in Fox, Weston & Bronson, of Painted Post, Steuben County, N. Y. He was a trustee of the University of Rochester, Vassar College, and Kalamazoo College, and was President of the Board of Trustees of Rochester Theological Seminary. He was born in Glens Falls, N. Y., November 8, 1832, the son of Norman Fox and Jane (Freeman) Fox.

His mother, whose maiden name was Cornelia Stebbins, was the daughter of Philander Wright Stebbins and Marietta (Hamlin) Stebbins.

Fox's Yale relatives include an uncle, Henry H. Stebbins (1863), and four first cousins, Howard Fox (1894), Alanson G. Fox (1900), Allen Stebbins (1902) and Henry H. Stebbins, Jr. (1904).

In college he was President of the University Football Association, was a member of the Dramatic Association, and was on the debating team against Harvard in 1903. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Psi Upsilon and of the Elihu Club. He won a first prize in Elocution in Sophomore year and the Thacher prize in Senior year. He was President of the Freshman Union, and held a High Oration Junior appointment and a High Oration Senior appointment.

He writes, December 15, 1905: "Since leaving college I have been at Harvard Law School. Expect to graduate this June (1906) with degree of LL.B. Only thing out of usual run have done here was to speak upon the Harvard Debating team against Princeton this year, and get beaten. Of the three Harvard speakers, Abe Tulin and I were two. Abe, however, was kept from the final debate by a very serious illness.

"On my father's death in 1903, I was made a director of the Chicago Lumbering Company of Michigan, and of the State National Bank of North Tonawanda, N. Y. I spent the summer of 1905 traveling with my mother in Italy. My only political work has been investigation of candidates' record, carried on for the Boston Good Government Association.

"My permanent address is 63 Alfred Street, Detroit, Mich. I expect to enter a law office there this coming fall."

John Ross Freeman (B.A. 1903) was born in Franklin, Pa., December 9, 1880, prepared for college at the Haverford (Pa.) Grammar School and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Lewis Ross Freeman, was born at Murfreesboro, Tenn., August 28, 1848, the son of Smith Freeman and Martha Rebecca (Butler) Freeman. He is a lawyer of Warren, Pa., and is also interested in various lumber companies, coal companies, railroads, etc.

His mother, whose maiden name was Florence Dale, was the daughter of John A. Dale and Eliza Jane (Richardson) Dale.

In college Freeman was a member of the Dramatic Association and its Secretary, and graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes, December 1, 1905, from Madrid, Spain: "After leaving college I took a short business course in New York and on August 11, 1903, sailed for Germany, reaching Berlin about the 19th. I stayed in Berlin until March 1904, studying German and incidentally following some lectures at the University of Berlin. George Tillson and Harold Sawyer were in Berlin at the same time and I saw a great deal of the former.

"Leaving Berlin in March 1904 I spent a month in traveling and reached Munich about April. There I had the pleasure of staying in the same pension with Prof. Phelps. My time in Munich was pretty well occupied, as I continued my study of German, heard some lectures at the University and for four months worked in the office of the general agent for Bavaria of the Hamburg-American Line as a volunteer. I left Munich September 1, 1904, spent another month traveling and reached Paris October 1. Remained seven months in Paris studying French and then went to Ouchy, Lausanne, Switzerland, to spend the summer and continue my study of French. I left there about August 1st, 1905, traveled a month and reached Madrid about September 1, where I am hard at work, learning Spanish and incidentally meeting with the greatest hospitality of any country I have yet visited. H. F. Sheets and I roomed together here until he was called to Lisbon to direct New York Life affairs in Portugal. In short, since graduation I have been learning to speak German, French and Spanish, and, all things considered, feel fairly well satisfied with the progress I have made.

"I am planning my work with but one object in view—that of being in New Haven for Triennial next June and shall be greatly disappointed should anything prevent my doing so. Needless to say, I am looking forward to it with the keenest pleasure.

"3. My courses of study in the University of Berlin and Munich were chiefly along the lines of Commercial Law but I was at no time a candidate for a degree.

"5. I have joined the 'Atenco Cientifico y Literario' of Madrid.

"6. Since reaching Europe I have visited about seventy-five places in Germany, Bohemia, Austria, Hungary, Northern Italy, Switzerland, Holland, Belgium, France and Northern Spain. I hope before reaching home to visit Southern Spain, North Africa, Sicily and Southern and Central Italy, sailing from England.

"7. My permanent address is care L. R. Freeman, Warren, Pennsylvania, and anything sent there is sure to reach me.

"9. My future plans are still undecided though I expect to enter business of some sort either at home or abroad as occasion may require. United States Consular service is also under consideration but is scarcely more than a possibility."

William Frew (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Western University of Pennsylvania 1906) was born in Pittsburg, Pa., November 24, 1881, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, William Nimick Frew (Yale 1876), was born in Pittsburg, July 10, 1854, the son of William Frew and Martha E. Frew.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emily Wick Berry, was the daughter of George A. Berry and Sarah L. Berry.

In college Frew was a member of the Senior Promenade Committee, of the Class Supper Committee and of the Board of Governors, also Secretary, of the University Club. He was a member of Hé Boulé and Delta Kappa Epsilon campaign committees, and of Scroll and Key. He held a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes, November 1905: "Since leaving college I have spent most of my time in Pittsburg reading law in the offices of Dalzell, Scott and Gordon and attending the Pittsburg Law School, from which I hope to graduate in the spring just before Commencement. My offices of profit, honour, etc., have been nil, as this studying has been about all I can attend to. I was one of the crowd who went abroad the summer of 1903 and had a fine trip. My matrimonial prospects are likewise nil. My whole attention along that line is in seeing that my friends get the proper start, so I expect to attend Triennial unencumbered by any domestic cares."

And later: "I received the degree of LL.B. from the Western University of Pennsylvania and took my examinations for admission to the bar (from which we do not hear until September, unfortunately) and when admitted expect to practice in Pittsburg."

His business address is at present 450 Fourth Ave., Pittsburg. His residence is Fifth Ave., East End.

Leonard Welles Frisbie (B.A. 1903) was born in Hartford, Conn., September 15, 1881, prepared for college at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Charles Gillette Frisbie, died November 21, 1893. He was born in Windsor, Conn., January 3, 1854, the son of L. T. Frisbie and Caroline (Gillette) Frisbie, and was a dealer in hides and leather and manufacturer of by-products.

His mother, whose maiden name was Belle Welles, was the daughter of Leonard Welles and Lucy (Carter) Welles.

Frisbie's Yale relatives include a first cousin, F. F. Woolley (1906 S.), and a second cousin, E. W. Frisbie (1902).

He writes: "Since leaving Yale my life has been comparatively uneventful. I entered the employ of the Travelers Insurance Company in the fall of 1903 and have been with them ever since, at present being employed in their Liability Claim Department."

His residence is 690 Prospect Ave., Hartford, Conn.

William Shirley Fulton (B.A. 1903) was born in Waterbury, Conn., November 23, 1880, prepared for college at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered Yale with the Class.

His father, William Edwards Fulton, is the President and Treasurer of the Waterbury Farrel Foundry & Machine Company, machine manufacturers, residing at 150 Hillside Ave., Waterbury. He was born August 8, 1852, in Brooklyn, N. Y., the son of William Grant Fulton and Eliza (Edwards) Fulton.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ida Ellena Lewis, was the daughter of Edward Cuffin Lewis and Harriet M. (Phippeny) Lewis.

Two brothers, Lewis Edwards Fulton (1901) and Irving Kent Fulton (1906), have graduated from Yale.

In college Fulton was a broad jumper on the track team, winning in 1902 first place in the California games, and in 1903 first place in the Princeton games, second place in the Harvard games and third place in the Intercollegiate games. He was leader of the Apollo Banjo and Mandolin Club and a member of the University Banjo and Mandolin Club and was Secretary in 1902 of the Yale Athletic Association. He was a member of Hé Boulé, Alpha Delta Phi and Wolf's Head societies.

He was married January 10, 1906, at Waterbury, Conn., to Miss Rose Hinckley Hayden, daughter of the late Edward Simeon Hayden.

He writes: "Went abroad on July 1st (1903) with Gif, Hen, Gus, Dip, Yellow and about ten others on a pleasure trip. We had it. Returned early in September and hung around until October 5, when I started work in the Waterbury Machine Company as an apprentice. Endured that job until the spring of 1904 (five months), when I took a short trip south—Palm Beach, Havana, etc. After returning got a job in the office of the Waterbury Machine Company, where I am still.

“In January 1906 am to be married to Miss Rose Hayden and after a short trip expect to live at 170 Hillside Ave. The future looks pleasant if not brilliant.”

He is Treasurer of the Waterbury Machine Company.

Arnold Samuel Furst (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1905) was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., January 31, 1882, prepared for college at the Hasbrouck Institute, Jersey City, N. J., and entered in September 1899.

His father, Myron Jaffe Furst, a merchant of Jersey City, died January 19, 1902. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., September 13, 1858, the son of Solomon Furst and Bertha (Jaffe) Furst.

His mother, whose maiden name was Betty Liebmann, died November 6, 1899. She was the daughter of Joseph Liebmann and Fanny (Liebmann) Liebmann.

Michael Furst (Yale 1876) is an uncle.

Furst graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment and studied at the New York Law School for two years, graduating therefrom in 1905. He is now attorney and counselor at law in the office of his uncle, Michael Furst, 215 Montague St., Brooklyn, N. Y. He lives at 349 Central Park West, New York City.

Thomas Jefferson Gaines, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City September 29, 1879, prepared at The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and entered college with the Class.

His father, Thomas Jefferson Gaines, an insurance broker of New York, was born in New York April 28, 1848, the son of Thomas Jefferson Gaines and Emeline (Jackson) Gaines.

His mother, whose maiden name was Martha Augusta Huyler, was the daughter of David Huyler and Abigail Ann (De Klynn) Huyler.

David H. Gaines (Yale 1899 S.) is a brother.

Gaines was married in New York City November 16, 1904, to Miss Lucy Thorndyke Froment, daughter of Frank Livingston Froment, an iron and steel merchant. A son, Thomas Jefferson Gaines, 3d, was born October 23, 1905.

For six months after graduation Gaines was in the Bank of the Metropolis. He has since been an insurance broker with his father with an office at 76 William St., New York City. He resides at 1070 Madison Ave., New York City.

Julius Gans (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Columbia 1906) was born in New York City, October 17, 1879, prepared for college at the Hyde Park High School, Chicago, Ill., and also by private tutor and entered with the Class.

His father, Samuel Gans, was born in Winterswyck, Holland, May 30, 1842, the son of Abraham Gans and Betsy (Poppers) Gans. He is President of the Samuel Gans Company, engaged in fire salvage, marine, etc., and wholesale jobbers, and resides in Chicago, though at present in Brussels.

His mother, whose maiden name is Lena Frankenhuis, is the daughter of Solomon Frankenhuis and Sarah (Marchand) Frankenhuis.

Gans graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes (February 16, 1906): "The Saturday after graduation I sailed for Europe, returning the first week in October following. On my return I entered the first year class of the Law School of Columbia University. During the summer of 1904 I was employed in the office of McGowan & Stolz, attorneys of Syracuse, N. Y. Last summer (1905) I was with the firm of Burke, Jackson & Burke, attorneys of Chicago.

"Married? No. I have bets with three fellows that they precede me into the matrimonial state. I am willing to take on all comers—this states sufficiently my prospects and intentions in conjugal affairs.

"This is my third year at the Columbia Law School. I expect to receive the degree of LL.B. this coming June (1906).

"While in Chicago last summer I wrote several editorials and articles for the Chicago Law Journal, but not knowing that their dates and titles would ever be of value or interest to anyone, I made no endeavor to preserve either.

"I have no 'affiliations with organizations, social, etc.,' worth mentioning, outside, of course, the Yale clubs of New York City and Chicago. Have done no work in politics.

"During my summer in Europe immediately after graduation, I spent most of my time in Brussels, my parents having taken up their residence in that city. From the capital, I traveled over the greater part of Belgium, which is densely populated, and possesses many great industries, and other things of great interest. I spent about three weeks in England, visiting London, Stratford, Oxford and other towns. Two weeks in Holland, and a few days in Germany finished my journey. I was abroad about four months, perhaps a bit more. The trip was a combination visit to my parents, and vacation. I care little for sightseeing, finding greater amusement and benefit in mingling with the people as far as possible, and observing their views and manner of living. One of the results of this and another journey was that I learned to speak French, German and Dutch quite fluently.

"Letters will certainly reach me if addressed to 207 East Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

"My career so far has been uneventful and uninteresting, as you see. Of course, it took me some months to adjust myself to New York, after the years of ideal life in New Haven. After graduation from Law School, I expect to return to Chicago, where I will enter the law offices of Burke, Jackson and Burke. The senior member of the firm was formerly a member of the Appellate Court of Cook County. He has for many years been a close friend of my father, and therefore takes considerable interest in my welfare. Entering a high class law office, with good backing, I hope by hard work not to become a public charge and that our class will never have occasion to feel ashamed that I graduated with it. A Yale man should perhaps be expected to promise more but never less."

Since receiving his LL.B. he has entered the law offices of Burke, Jackson and Burke, 140 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. He expects to take his Illinois bar examinations in October 1906.

Frank Cameron Gilbert (B.A. 1903) was born in Tweed, Canada, February 19, 1880, prepared for college at the Boys High School, Brooklyn, N. Y., and entered in the fall of 1899.

He is the son of Abel Henry Gilbert, a broker, residing at 684 St. Mark's Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., who was born in Hastings County, Ontario, Canada, October 4, 1850, the son of Abel R. Gilbert, a farmer, and of Mary (Hampton) Gilbert.

His mother, whose maiden name was Martha M. Ostrom, died in March 1884, and was the daughter of Henry Ostrom, a farmer, and of Elizabeth H. (Foster) Ostrom.

Gilbert numbers among his Yale relatives four brothers, Fred Macdonald Gilbert (1898), Harry Douglas Gilbert (1904 S.), Percy Macauley Gilbert (1909) and Charles Howard Gilbert (1908).

In college he was a member of the College Baseball team, of the Apollo Banjo and Mandolin Club and of Psi Upsilon, and held a Second Dispute Junior and Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since leaving college in June 1903, I have spent my time in Young Men's Christian Association work. One year at Lehigh University as secretary and the rest of the time here in the city as an Associate Secretary of the Students' Club, Intercollegiate Branch of New York City. In all probability I shall change my occupation sometime this year, starting upon a business career."

And later, August 1906: "I am now in the Treasurer's office, Metropolitan Museum of Art, 82d Street and 5th Avenue, New York. My home address is now 1372 Union Street."

George Burton Gilbert (B.A. 1903) was born in Thomaston, Conn., September 28, 1881, prepared for college at the Thomaston High School, and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, George Colton Gilbert, was born in Thomaston, Conn., July 2, 1858, the son of George William Gilbert and Elizabeth (Thomas) Gilbert and resides in Thomaston, where he is engaged in farming.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Woodward Judd, was the daughter of Garwood Burton Judd and Minerva Pierpont (Woodward) Judd.

In college Gilbert held an Oration Junior appointment and a High Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "This is my third year in the Johns Hopkins Medical School and I expect to receive the degree of M.D. in June 1907. Am a member of the Yale Alumni Association of Maryland and of the Johns Hopkins Track team for the past two seasons. The life of a medical student is bound to be rather limited and we are more or less existing now for the sake of future usefulness and success we hope to attain. Hence I have little to report and will close, hoping, for your sake, that my letter is the last one in."

His present address is 111 Jackson Place, Baltimore, Md. His home address is 24 High St., Thomaston, Conn.

Edward Lathrop Gillespie (B.A. 1903) was born in Stamford, Conn., November 13, 1881, the son of Edward T. W. Gillespie. He prepared at the Stamford High School and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

In college Gillespie won a first grade Berkeley Premium in Latin Composition Freshman year, and held a First Dispute Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He is with Gillespie Brothers, publishers, Stamford, Conn.

William White Gleason (B.A. 1903) was born in Delhi, N. Y., December 29, 1882, prepared for college at the Rugby Military Academy, New York City, and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, John Blanchard Gleason (Yale 1876), a lawyer of New York, was born in Delhi, N. Y., August 19, 1855, the son of William Gleason, also a lawyer of Delhi, and of Caroline (Blanchard) Gleason.

His mother, whose maiden name was Annie Elizabeth White, was the daughter of Seth H. White (B.A. Brown University), a lawyer of Delhi, N. Y., and of Ophelia (McDonald) White.

An uncle, Lafayette B. Gleason (1885), preceded Gleason at Yale.

He graduated with a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "When I graduated with the Class in June 1903 I had not decided upon what line of work I would enter. I rather inclined to the law on account of my father being a lawyer but thought I would take a vacation and decide at my leisure. Accordingly I went with my family to the country, where I spent July and most of August. But with nothing definite in view I became dissatisfied and decided to come to New York and try to find something to do.

"Finally, about the end of August 1903, I took a position in the bookkeeping department of Acker, Merrall and Condit Company at 135 West 42d Street. When the time of opening of the law school came around I decided I would remain in mercantile life. After a short stay at bookkeeping I was placed in Mr. A. E. Merrall's office, where I had charge of the electricity and telephone contracts, the bonding of all employees, etc. In September 1904 I became an assistant buyer and have held that position since then.

"I joined the Yale Club at once and have found it most enjoyable, as I have through it kept the acquaintance of many classmates whom otherwise I would probably not have seen and have met many other fellows there. I am a member of the Republican Organization in New York but, outside of voting at all elections and primaries and being a delegate to a district convention, I have not taken a very active part.

"Ever since graduation I have lived at my home, 350 West 71st Street, New York City."

Irvine Goddard was born in Widnes, England, June 1, 1878, prepared for college at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered at the beginning of Freshman year, leaving at Christmas of Sophomore year.

His father, Ralph Goddard, who died in February 1890, was a Civil Engineer and resided in Widnes, England. He was the son of James Goddard and Sarah Goddard.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Stafford, died in September 1885, and was the daughter of Joseph Stafford and Elizabeth Stafford.

While in college Goddard was a member of the Dramatic Association.

He was married September 27, 1905, at Mt. Pleasant, Tenn. to Miss Gertrude Brashear Craik, daughter of Joel Tucker Craik (Kentucky University 1865), a civil engineer of Mt. Pleasant.

He writes: "Since leaving college, Christmas 1900, I went as Assistant Superintendent of the Subscription Department, Book-lovers Library. I remained with this firm until the following summer. The summer I spent at Nantucket in preparatory study for entrance in September at the General Seminary, New York. I remained at the Seminary two years, but owing to a breakdown had to come south. After several months at the University of the South—while there I was initiated into the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity—I was ordained Deacon in the University Chapel June 24, 1903. I left the University in July to take up my work as Curate at the Church of the Advent, Nashville, Tenn. Eight months later I became Rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, Mt. Pleasant, Tenn. On September 18, 1904, I was ordained Priest in the Cathedral at Memphis, Tenn., and coincident with my ordination to the Priesthood I was elected Canon and member of the Chapter of the Christ Church Cathedral, Louisville, Kentucky. I accepted my election and acted in that capacity twelve months—then came here to Owensboro as Rector of Trinity Church, October 1, 1905. While in Louisville I was a member of The Pendennis, Tavern and Commercial clubs.”

His address is The Rectory, Owensboro, Ky.

Willis Elbridge Goodhue (B.A. 1903) was born in Brookfield, Conn., December 23, 1867, prepared for college at the State Normal School, Buffalo, N. Y., and entered Yale at the beginning of Junior year, coming from Brown University.

His father, Rev. Jonathan Elbridge Goodhue (Yale 1852), an Episcopal clergyman, died March 17, 1895. He was born in Deerfield, N. H., April 15, 1824, the son of Joseph Goodhue and Dorothy (Greene) Goodhue.

His mother, whose maiden name was Esther Amelia Hawley, was the daughter of Daniel Booth Hawley, of Hawleyville, Conn., and of Olive Hawley.

Since graduation Goodhue has taught school. He was first Principal of the Shelton (Conn.) High School and is at present Principal of the High School at Norwalk, Conn. His permanent address is Newark, N. Y.

Francis Spencer Goodwin (B.A. 1903) was born in Hartford, Conn., October 19, 1878, prepared under private tutor and at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered Yale in 1898 with the Class of 1902, joining 1903 at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Rev. Francis Goodwin, D.D., is a member of the firm of J. J. & F. Goodwin, real estate, is a director of several corporations and a trustee of Trinity College. He was born in Hartford September 25, 1839, the son of James Goodwin and Martha (Willard) Goodwin.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Alsop Jackson, was the daughter of Charles Jackson and Lucy (Morgan) Jackson.

Goodwin's Yale relatives include two brothers, W. B. Goodwin, of the Class of 1890, and C. A. Goodwin (1898), and a first cousin, W. L. Goodwin (1897).

In college he was a substitute on the Freshman Crew and a member of Eta Phi, Alpha Delta Phi and of the Elihu Club. Since graduation he has been in the real estate business with J. J. & F. Goodwin, 783 Main St., Hartford, Conn., and lives at 103 Woodland St.

George Augustus Goss (B.A. 1903) was born in Waterbury, Conn., April 1, 1881, prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Chauncey Porter Goss, was born in 1837 in Pittsford, N. Y., the son of Ephraim Goss and Mary (Brockway) Goss. He is president of the Scoville Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of machinery, of Waterbury, Conn.

His mother, whose maiden name was Caroline Ketcham, was the daughter of Cornelius Ketcham and Caroline (Ryan) Ketcham.

A brother, John Henry Goss (1894), preceded Goss at Yale.

In college he played left tackle on the University Football team in Junior year, right guard in Senior year, was a Cup man, member of the Class Cup Committee, and on the Board of Governors of the University Club. He won second place in the shot put in the Harvard games in 1901 and was a member of the track team for three years. He was a member of Eta Phi, Psi Upsilon and Scroll and Key societies.

He writes: "I do not think of anything of much interest to write except what you know. Heard the other day that the Royal Geographical Society of London has given me an F.R.G.S., that is, has made me a Fellow, for a paper on Mt. Kini Balou, British North Borneo, called 'Exploration of Mt. Kini Balou.' I believe the other Americans in it are some Harvard and University of Chicago professors, an admiral and a general or two, and four or five common citizens like myself."

He is connected with the Scoville Manufacturing Company, Waterbury, Conn.

Robert Andrews Granniss, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., January 23, 1880, prepared for college at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered with the Class.

His father, Robert Andrews Granniss (Brooklyn Collegiate and Polytechnic Institute 1857), Vice President of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, was born July 28, 1840, in Brooklyn, N. Y., the son of George Benjamin Granniss, a wholesale merchant, and of Laura Ann (Dunham) Granniss.

His mother, whose maiden name was Florence Peters, was the daughter of Charles Peters, a lumber and shipping merchant, and of Phoebe (Dyer) Peters.

A great uncle, Hon. John A. Peters, late Chief Justice of Maine (B.A. 1842, LL.D. 1893), preceded Granniss at Yale.

In college he was a member of the Board of Governors of the University Club and of the Race and House Committee of the Yale Corinthian Yacht Club. He was a member of Kappa Psi, Alpha Delta Phi and of the Elihu Club.

He writes: "After leaving college in the first week of July 1903, I took a well earned rest and did not enter upon my business career until the first of September the following fall. I then entered the firm of Pease & Elliman, real estate brokers, and held the office of Assistant Secretary and member of the Board of Directors. From that time on for over a year I worked at the real estate business, especially along the line of loaning money on bond and mortgage. On October 1, 1904, I was made Vice President and given a considerable amount of interest in the business, besides taking charge of the down-town office, 49 Liberty Street, where I have since made my business headquarters and expect to be for some time to come.

"In April 1905 I visited the City of Mexico with several other gentlemen in order to look over the situation there and to get ideas and suggestions in regard to the running of office buildings in that city, also took in some smaller cities in the Republic of Mexico, and came back with the impression that the country was growing very rapidly and that there were large opportunities for the establishment of most any business enterprise on conservative lines. The trip was very interesting from start to finish, and put me in touch with many well known men of financial reputation.

"I have been residing at Morris Plains, New Jersey, which is the home of my family, since leaving college, coming to New York every day to attend to my business. I still keep in touch with the doings at New Haven, and go up there from time to time."

Charles Douglass Green (B.A. 1903) was born in Columbus, Ga., June 3, 1882, prepared for college at the Morse and Rogers School, New York City, and at the Lycée du Harve, France, and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Douglass Green, a banker and broker, was born in Greenwich, Va., October 30, 1855, the son of Charles Green, a bank president and cotton merchant of Savannah (born in Kent County, England), and of Lucy (Hunton) Green.

His mother, whose maiden name was Laura Riddle Tewksbury, was the daughter of Munroe George Jewell Tewksbury, M.D., of Manchester, N. H., and of Laura (Riddle) Tewksbury.

In college he was a member of the Dramatic Association, of Alpha Delta Phi, and of Wolf's Head. He held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since leaving college I have been in the banking business, first with the New York Trust Company, and then with Kean, Van Cortlandt & Company. I also joined Squadron A immediately upon leaving college, and in September 1904 had the pleasure of taking part in the army maneuvers held near Manassas, Virginia. There were 30,000 troops engaged and the work was very instructive and interesting as we served alongside of regulars and were attached to the 15th U. S. Cavalry and so of course under regular army officers in squadron and regimental work. We also were President Roosevelt's escort at his inauguration last March.

"I took a trip to Europe last spring in connection with a paper company in which I am interested. I had typhoid fever this winter, which makes the second time, as I had it once before coming to college."

His business address is 30 Pine St., New York City. His home address is 150 West 59th St.

Herbert Gouverneur Greene (B.A. 1903) was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., November 6, 1881, prepared for college at the Black Hall School, Lyme, Conn., and entered with the Class.

His father, Joseph Warren Greene (B.A. 1868, LL.B. Columbia 1870) was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., November 2, 1846, the son of Joseph Warren Greene and Mary Augusta (Smith) Greene. He is a lawyer of the firm of Arnold & Greene.

His mother, whose maiden name was Julia Strong Sherman, died July 12, 1895, and was the daughter of Benjamin Upson Sherman and Arabella Munson (Taylor) Sherman.

A brother, Joseph Warren Greene, Jr., graduated from Yale in 1899.

Greene held in college a First Dispute Junior appointment and a First Dispute Senior appointment.

His business address is care New York Telephone Company, 55 Franklin St., and his residence is 115 Willow St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Henry Farrand Griffin (B.A. 1903) was born January 28, 1880, in Detroit, Mich., prepared for college at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and at the Nichols School, Buffalo, N. Y., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Patrick Henry Griffin, was born in Rochester August 5, 1851, and is with the New York Car Wheel Company, manufacturers, and resides at 190 Summer St., Buffalo, N. Y. He is the son of Thomas Francis Griffin and Anna Elizabeth (O'Rarke) Griffin.

His mother, whose maiden name was Louise Belle McKenna, was the daughter of William Alexander McKenna and Arabella Lewis (Brewster) McKenna.

A brother, W. A. Griffin, graduated in the Class of 1904 S.

In college Griffin was a member of Chi Delta Theta, editor of the Yale Literary Magazine and of the Courant. He was a member of the Pundits and in Junior year won the John Hubbard Curtis prize. Since graduation he has been with the New York Car Wheel Company of Buffalo.

He writes: "Nothing very startling has happened to me since leaving college. Have worked a little, loafed a little and generally had a good time. Have done no post graduate work, published nothing, done no organization work, gone abroad once, and my permanent address is 190 Summer Street, Buffalo, N. Y."

Otto Harry Gruner was born in New York City May 30, 1880, prepared at the Blake School, New York City, and entered with the Class, leaving college at Christmas 1899.

He is the son of Siegfried Gruner, a member of the New York Cotton Exchange, who died December 7, 1897, and of Annie J. Gruner. He was married January 7, 1903, in New York City to Miss Katharine Hayes Drake, daughter of Simeon J. Drake.

Gruner is a broker and a member of the New York Stock Exchange, with an office at 20 Broad St., New York City.

John George Haas, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Carlisle, Pa., June 21, 1881, prepared for college at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, John George Haas, was born in Nürnberg, Germany, May 9, 1849, the son of Henry Haas and Margaretha (Haas) Haas. His business is that of army uniforms and equipments, the main store being located at 39 East Orange St., Lancaster, Pa., with branch stores in New York City and Washington, D. C. He resides at 41 East Orange St., Lancaster, Pa.

His mother, whose maiden name was Charlotta Quade (deceased), was the daughter of Ludwig Quade and Anna Maria (Niemyer) Quade.

Haas held in college a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since leaving Yale, I have studied two years at the New York Law School and June 19, 1905, passed the bar examinations of this state. During the same two years I acted as New York Manager in my father's New York store. The business is that of army uniforms and equipments. I am now holding the same position, and shall continue to hold it. Some time in the year 1906 I will be connected with some down-town law firm. I am a member of the Yale Club of this city, and make that my residence (30 West 44th Street). My permanent address is that of my home, 41 East Orange Street, Lancaster, Pa."

His business address is 256 Fifth Ave., New York City.

John Francis Hackett (B.A. 1903, M.D.C.M. McGill 1906) was born in Meriden, Conn., July 6, 1881, prepared for college at the Meriden High School and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

VANDERBILT HALL.

His father, John Hackett, was born in Dublin, Ireland, about 1848 and resides at 29 Griswold St., Meriden, Conn. He is with the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company.

His mother's maiden name was Maria Taylor.

A brother, Joseph Thomas Hackett, was a member of the Class of 1899 Yale.

He writes: "There has been nothing unusual in the last three years except perhaps the unusual monotony of the medical student. No marriages, births, etc., can be recorded in my family history. The only thing is that I got the M.D.C.M. all right, and that was what I was after. I have a position as interne in St. Francis Hospital, Hartford, Conn., and intend to stay here at least a year. After that I do not know, perhaps the deluge. 29 Griswold Street, Meriden, Conn., will reach me until further notice."

Chauncey Jerome Hamlin (B.A. 1903, LL.B. University of Buffalo 1905) was born in Buffalo, N. Y., January 11, 1881, prepared for college at The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Harry Hamlin, was a member of the Class of Yale 1876. He resides at 1014 Delaware Ave., Buffalo, N. Y., and is the son of Cicero J. Hamlin and Susan (Ford) Hamlin.

His mother, whose maiden name was Grace Enos, was the daughter of Laurens Enos and Mary (King) Enos.

In college Hamlin was left guard on the Freshman eleven and substitute tackle and right guard on the University Football team. He was a member of the Sophomore German Committee and Floor Manager of the Junior Promenade Committee. He was Keeper of Archives of Phi Beta Kappa, Chairman of the campaign committees of Hé Boulé and Alpha Delta Phi, a member of Skull and Bones, and a member of the Class Cup Committee. He held a High Oration Junior appointment and an Oration Senior appointment.

He was married April 4, 1904, at Buffalo, N. Y., to Miss Emily Gray, daughter of the late David Gray, newspaperman and author. A son, Chauncey Jerome Hamlin, Jr., was born March 31, 1905, in Buffalo. A daughter, Martha Hamlin, was born May 25, 1906, in Buffalo.

He is practicing law in Buffalo, with the firm of Rogers, Locke and Babcock.

He writes: "In response to your circular letter would say that since graduation I have led the life of most young law students. I attended the Buffalo Law School and clerked in the law office of Rogers, Locke and Babcock at the same time—for two years—taking and passing the New York bar examinations last spring (1905). Succeeded in capturing a couple of prizes in the Law School—second Clinton prize for high stand and first Daniels prize for the best essay on the pleasing subject of 'The Power of the Federal Congress to Regulate Corporations.' The essay, by the way, has been published in the Brief, volume V., number 425. I suppose I can therefore pose as an author.

"The most interesting work I have been engaged in has been in connection with the Municipal League of Buffalo, an organization whose purpose is to clean up the common council of our city by the publication and dissemination of accurate information about the candidates for the various city offices. As the balance of power is evenly divided in Buffalo, the work of the League has been surprisingly effective in this the first year of its existence. We succeeded in ousting half a dozen of the worst of the grafters.

"There is little more news to tell except that young Chan: is fine and healthy."

His business address is 28 Erie St., Buffalo, N. Y. His residence is 789 West Ferry St.

Francis Joseph Handel (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Buffalo 1905) was born in Buffalo, N. Y., September 17, 1879, prepared for college at the Buffalo High School and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Francis Handel, died in December 1890. He was born in Buffalo, N. Y., and was the son of Francis J. Handel.

His mother's maiden name was Victoria Fougeron.

A brother, Louis Walter Handel, graduated from Yale in 1906.

He writes: "I entered the Buffalo Law School in the fall of 1903, graduating therefrom in 1905. I passed the New York State Bar examinations in June 1905, and opened an office at 317 Mutual Life Building, Buffalo, N. Y., October 1, 1905. While in attendance at the law school I became a member of the legal fraternity Phi Delta Phi."

His home address is 227 Linwood Ave., Buffalo, N. Y.

George Bradley Hardy was born in Bangor, Maine, October 22, 1880, prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class, leaving in March 1902.

He is the son of Amos Everett Hardy, a Register of Probate, and of Edith Maria (Morison) Hardy, who died in December 1900.

After leaving Yale, Hardy spent three months in Bangor at the University of Maine and then entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston, which he left in June 1904. His address is Bangor, Maine.

Robert Richards Hargis was born in Frankfort, Ky., July 6, 1882, prepared for college at the University School of Kentucky, at Louisville, and entered in the fall of 1899, leaving in March of Freshman year.

His father, Hon. Thomas Frazier Hargis, Associate Justice of the Kentucky Supreme Court 1880-1882, Chief Justice 1882-1886, is deceased. He was born in Moorhead, Rowan Co., Ky., June 22, 1842, the son of John Wickcliffe Hargis, a lawyer, and Elizabeth (Weddington) Hargis.

His mother, whose maiden name was Lucy Stewart Norvell, was the daughter of Judge John S. Norvell and Emily (Summers) Norvell.

Since leaving college Hargis has been with the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railway, Monon Route, and has risen to the position of Contracting Freight Agent at Louisville. June 1, 1906, he was appointed Chief Clerk and Division Freight Agent. He lives at 430 West St. Catherine St., Louisville, Ky.

William Loomis Harmount (B.A. 1903) was born in New Haven, Conn., January 15, 1881, prepared for college at the Hillhouse High School, New Haven, and entered with the Class.

His father, Adoniram Judson Harmount, was born in New Haven, Conn., in 1850, the son of William Simpson Harmount and Jane (Morgan) Harmount. He is a lumber merchant of the George M. Grant & Company of New York City, residing in Pine Orchard, Conn. He has been a member of the New Haven Board of Education.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Ann Loomis, is the daughter of Merrill Loomis and Caroline (Hunt) Loomis of New Haven.

An uncle, Joseph A. Graves (1872), and two cousins, Arthur H. Graves (1900) and Mortimer H. Alling (1893 S.), graduated from Yale.

In college Harmount was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and held a High Oration Junior appointment and an Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since leaving college I have been tutoring in private families, during the school year of 1903-4 at Pittsburg, Pa., and since then at Westcliffe, Colorado. I have finished my work at Westcliffe, Colorado, and am not yet located for next year. I am not married nor have I done any post graduate work. My journeys in this country have been limited to a trip to Florida in 1904 and two trips to Colorado. My permanent address is Pine Orchard, Conn."

Alfred Lucius Hart (B.A. 1903) was born December 10, 1880, at Waterbury, Conn., prepared for college at the Taft School, Watertown, Conn., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Jay Hisscock Hart, of Platt Brothers & Company, manufacturers of Waterbury, was born in New Marlborough, Mass., December 11, 1847, the son of Alfred Hart, a farmer and manufacturer of Hartsville, Mass., and of Louise (Nettleton) Hart.

His mother, whose maiden name was Bertha Louise Platt, was the daughter of Clark Murray Platt, an inventor and manufacturer of Waterbury, Conn., and of Amelia (Lewis) Platt.

Lewis A. Platt (Yale 1879) is a relative.

In college Hart was a member of Zeta Psi.

He writes: "The suggestions are answered on the fourteen by ten mostly, except, of course, my plans—get rich and remain good and happy."

He is a solicitor for The Century Company, publishers, 33 East 17th St., New York City. His residence is 230 West 75th St. His home address is 50 Buckingham Ave., Waterbury, Conn.

Henry Friedgen Hartjen (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1905) was born in New York City July 23, 1882, the son of John Hartjen. He prepared at the Lawrenceville (N. J.) School and entered with the Class.

He held in college a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: "Left college June 1903. Entered legal profession August 1905. Spent two years at New York Law School, from which I received degree of LL.B. Affiliated with Delta Xi, legal fraternity.<sup>1</sup> Howard Lodge, Masonic Order. Republican Club and Yale Club of New York City. Fifth Presbyterian Church. Young People's Association. Twenty-seventh Assembly District Club. Political work: On the stump 1903, 1904, 1905, Citizens Union Superintendent of Watches downtown districts 1903, Leader of 15th Assembly District Citizens Union 1903, member of Hearst Law Committee 1905. Permanent address, 260 West 57th St., New York City."

He is with the law firm of Seymour, Seymour & Megrath, 80 Wall St., New York City.

Julian Hartridge (B.A. 1903) was born in Jacksonville, Fla., July 15, 1881, prepared for college at the St. James School, Maryland, and entered with the Class.

His father, John Earle Hartridge (University of Georgia 1872), a lawyer of Jacksonville, Fla., is the son of Theodore Hartridge, M.D., and Susan (Livingston) Hartridge.

His mother, whose maiden name was Susan Fatio L'Engle, was the daughter of F. F. L'Engle, a civil engineer, and of Charlotte (Porcher) L'Engle.

A cousin, C. W. Hartridge, graduated from Yale in 1887. Hartridge is a lawyer of the firm of John E. Hartridge & Son, Jacksonville, Fla.

*Maurice Fitch Hawks died of appendicitis at the Yale Infirmary Thursday, March 29, 1900. His illness was a very brief one, as up to the previous Sunday he had seemed in perfectly good health. On the afternoon of that day he felt sufficiently unwell to consult a physician and at intervals during the following night had attacks of severe illness. Monday morning he was removed from his room to the Infirmary, and that night it was thought best to perform the operation. From this he at first rallied well and till Wednesday much hope was entertained for his recovery. Wednesday night, however, he grew weaker and Thursday morning at 11 o'clock he passed away, heart failure being the immediate cause of his death. The news of their loss came as a great shock to his friends and classmates, who had no thought but that he would be restored to them. It cast a deep gloom over the campus which was not soon removed. He was the first of the Class to go, and there were few who in the short time already spent in college had made for themselves more friends.

<sup>1</sup> Hartjen was President of the chapter in 1904-05, Lewis in 1905-06, and Richards has been elected to serve for 1906-07.

Maurice Fitch Hawks was born in Buffalo, N. Y., December 4, 1880, an only son.

His father, Edward Clinton Hawks, a lawyer of Buffalo, died February 2, 1906. He was born July 26, 1846, the son of Thomas Sidney Hawks and Hester Ann (Layton) Hawks.

His mother, whose maiden name was Amanda Smith, was the daughter of Eli Botsford Smith, of Buffalo, and of Maria Wiley (Wöehole) Smith.

He began his education at Miss Dunstan's Private School in his native city. In June 1898 he graduated from the Buffalo Central High School and a year later from Phillips Andover Academy, where he completed his preparation for college, entering Yale the following September. During his school and college course he displayed his characteristic energy and enthusiasm as a student, maintaining a high standard of work, besides taking a prominent place in the various interests, social and otherwise, with which he was surrounded. During his life at Buffalo he was a member of many associations, including the Buffalo Field Club and the local chapter of the Children of the American Revolution, holding in the latter, since its foundation, the position of Vice President.

At Andover he became greatly interested in debating and subsequently was elected President of the Philomathean Debating Society, by which organization he was presented with a gavel at the close of the year. He was also a member of the school Banjo and Mandolin Clubs and acted as Class Historian in the Class Day exercises in June. At Yale he continued his work along the same lines. He became Secretary of the Freshmen Union, and a member of the Apollo Banjo and Mandolin Club. He was Secretary of the Yale Buffalo Club and at the time of his death was a prominent candidate for the editorial board of one of the college publications. Few men in the Class had accomplished more.

It was not alone for his industry and ability that Maurice Hawks was respected and admired. He was beloved for his sincerity, modesty and thoughtfulness for others. No man had higher ideals, more lofty ambition or tried harder to do what he thought right; no man was more ready to sacrifice himself to serve the interests of a friend. One of his marked characteristics was his love for the beautiful in nature. He had been accustomed to spend his summers at the seashore, Wingaersheek, West Gloucester, and all who knew him well will remember his enthusiasm and pleasure in describing the days passed there.

Maurice Hawks lived long enough to let us know him as he was. His past life was the index of what he would have been had he lived. Though we miss him from our number, though we cannot take him by the hand as in our college days, we know that with him now and in the future, all is well.

"So his life has flowed
From its mysterious urn, a sacred stream
In whose calm depth the beautiful and pure
Alone are mirror'd; which though shades of ill
May hover round its surface, glides in light
And takes no shadow from them."

C. O. Day, Jr.

Bronson Hawley was born in Bridgeport, Conn., April 19, 1880, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered with the Class, leaving in the fall of Freshman year.

His father, Alexander Hawley, Treasurer of the Bridgeport Savings Bank, was born in Bridgeport September 5, 1843, the son of Bronson Hawley, a sea captain, and of Rebecca (Burr) Hawley.

His mother, whose maiden name was Susan Hubbell Waller, died April 1, 1898, and was the daughter of George B. Waller, formerly President of the City National Bank of Bridgeport, and of Susan (Hubbell) Waller.

Two brothers preceded Hawley at Yale, George W. Hawley (1896 S.) and Samuel M. Hawley (1899).

He is at present connected with the Seattle Lumber Company of Seattle, Wash. His address is 1111 Harvard Ave., Seattle, Wash.

Rowland Hazard (B.A. 1903) was born in Peace Dale, R. I., October 29, 1881, prepared at the Taft School, Watertown, Conn., and entered with the Class.

His father, Rowland Gibson Hazard (Brown 1876), is President of the Peace Dale Manufacturing Company, woolen manufacturers, of the Semet-Solvay Company and of the By-Products Coke Corporation, and is a trustee of Brown and Wellesley. He is the son of Rowland Hazard, a manufacturer of Peace Dale, and of Margaret (Rood) Hazard.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Pierrepont Bushnell, was the daughter of Rev. George Bushnell (Yale 1842) of New Haven, Conn., and of Mary Elizabeth (Blake) Bushnell.

In college Hazard was a member of the College Choir, the University Glee Club, Alpha Delta Phi and the Elihu Club.

Since graduation he has been with the Peace Dale Manufacturing Company, woolen manufacturers, with the Semet-Solvay Company in Chicago and more recently at the latter's plant in Syracuse, N. Y. He had an operation for appendicitis the first week in July 1906 and is spending the summer of 1906 in Peace Dale recuperating. He expects to return to Syracuse. His address is Peace Dale, R. I.

Samuel Frank Hedges (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1905) was born in Greenport, L. I., December 3, 1879, prepared for college at the Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Samuel Parker Hedges, is a manufacturer of boilers and machines, and has been also connected with various public service corporations of Greenport. He was born in Sagaponack, L. I., in 1845, the son of Robert Hedges, a carpenter and farmer of Bridgehampton, L. I., and of Phoebe (Parker) Hedges.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Berio Smith, was the daughter of Angelo Berio Smith, a whaling captain.

In college he held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Dispute Senior appointment.

Hon. Henry P. Hedges (Yale 1838) is a cousin.

Hedges is practising law with the firm of Phelps, Evins & East, 30 Broad St., New York City, and lives at 245 West 23d St. His home address is Greenport, L. I., N. Y.

Ell Ray Henry (B.A. Washburn College 1902, B.A. Yale 1903) was born in Cameron, La., June 12, 1879, prepared at the Washburn College Academy, Topeka, Kan., and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Samuel P. Henry, died in 1902. He was a graduate of Franklin College, Athens, Ohio, and was a Louisiana State Senator and Representative.

Henry graduated from Yale with a Second Dispute Senior appointment and has since been in the Calcasieu National Bank of Lake Charles, La., holding now the position of Auditor.

Jerome Sayles Hess (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City, June 17, 1882, prepared for college at the Dwight School, New York City, and entered with the Class.

His father, Charles Augustus Hess, a graduate of the New York University Law School in 1879, was born in New York City May 17, 1857, the son of Loeb Hess and Hannah Hess.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ida Doctor, was the daughter of Max Doctor and Bertha (Sayles) Doctor.

In college Hess was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Zeta Psi. He held a Dissertation Junior appointment and a High Oration Senior appointment. He is a lawyer in the office of his father, Charles A. Hess, 50 Pine St., New York City. He lives at the Spencer Arms, Broadway and 69th St., New York.

Brower Hewitt (B.A. 1903) was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., April 28, 1881, prepared for college at the Brooklyn Latin school and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Thomas Browning Hewitt (Yale 1864), is a lawyer. He was born in North Stonington, Conn., September 9, 1842, the son of Denison Hewitt and Mary P. (Browning) Hewitt.

His mother, whose maiden name was Amanda Evelyn Brower, was the daughter of John H. Brower.

A brother, Thomas D. Hewitt, graduated from Yale in 1899.

In college Hewitt rowed on the Freshman crew and on the University Four Oar in 1901 and 1902. He was a member of the Senior Promenade Committee and of the Triennial Committee. He was a member of Kappa Psi, Alpha Delta Phi and Skull and Bones societies, and graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment. Since graduation he has been with the Southern Railway Company, at Princeton, Ind., rooming until recently with Henry C. Holt. His home address is 122 Remsen St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Albert Hileman (B.A. 1903, Ph.D. 1906) was born in Frankstown, Pa., January 18, 1879, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class. His father, Albert Hileman, deceased, was a farmer.

In college he was a member of Sigma Xi and held a First Dispute Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment.

Since graduation he has been studying in the Yale Graduate School, receiving his Ph.D. degree in June 1906. The title of his thesis was "The Determination of Fluorine Eliminated as Silicon Fluoride." He has since taken a position with the Harrison Brothers and Company, manufacturing chemists, 35th St. and Grays Ferry, Philadelphia, Pa.

Theodore Edward Hill was born in Williamstown, N. C., October 30, 1879, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class, joining 1904 in the fall of 1900.

His father, Edward Hill, died in 1881. He was a blacksmith and was the son of Edward Hill and Caroline Hill.

His mother, whose maiden name was Rosetta Keyes, was the daughter of Malachi Keyes and Penelope (Hyman) Keyes.

He writes: "I was graduated with the Class of 1904 of the Academic Department. During the following year I was ill, suffering from an operation, performed just one week after graduation, for appendicitis. Being of poor health as previously mentioned, I was compelled to surrender all ambitious endeavor to further my studies. I have been engaged in the office of Rufus Lewis Perry, counselor-at-law, 375 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y., since September of 1905, as managing clerk, at the same time studying law preparing to practice in the New York City courts. I have not had the means, health nor time to turn my attention seriously towards the realm of Cupid and hence cannot reply to any questions referring thereto. Letters may be sent to the above office address."

Charles Hitchcock, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Narragansett Pier, R. I., August 25, 1881, prepared for college at the Pomfret (Conn.) School and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Charles Hitchcock, M.D., (Brown 1869) was born in Providence, R. I., the son of Charles Hitchcock and Olivia George (Cowell) Hitchcock.

His mother, whose maiden name was Frances Lapsley, was the daughter of David Lapsley and Anna (Welsh) Lapsley.

In college Hitchcock was for two years captain and for four years a member of the University Golf team, was winner of the Intercollegiate golf tournament in Junior year, was University golf champion three times and Captain of the University Hockey team. He was a member of Eta Phi, Delta Kappa Epsilon and Wolf's Head societies, and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment.

He writes: "As to a 'nice long letter,' I am afraid it is impossible simply from lack of material. I am neither divorced, married nor engaged, nor do I hope to be; one mouth to feed is quite enough at present and the complaints from that organ are as untuneful as were my efforts at college to get on any of the glee clubs. So in my case no news is neither good nor bad news."

Hitchcock is with Lohrke, Rosen & Co., bankers, 30 Pine St., New York City. His residence is 57 West 36th St., New York.

Harold Morley Hitchcock was born in Cleveland, Ohio, November 10, 1878, prepared at the University School of Cleveland and at the St. Paul School of Concord, N. H., and entered with the Class, leaving at the end of Freshman year.

His father, Peter Marshall Hitchcock, died June 9, 1906, was in the iron, steel and coal business, was Vice President of the Society for Savings of Cleveland and a trustee of Lake Erie College. He was the son of Reuben Hitchcock (Yale 1826) and of Sarah (Marshall) Hitchcock.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Wilcox, was the daughter of Aaron Wilcox, a banker, and of Eliza (Morley) Wilcox.

Besides his grandfather, Hitchcock's Yale relatives include three brothers, Charles W. Hitchcock (1903 S.), Reuben Hitchcock (1897 S.), Lawrence Hitchcock (1898), and a great-grandfather, Peter Hitchcock (1801), Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ohio.

For a time after leaving college he was connected with the O. & J. Railroad, Branch of the M. K. J. Railway Company at Ada, I. T. At present he is Sales Manager of the Lincoln Electric Manufacturing Co. of Cleveland, Ohio. His home address is 861 Prospect St., Cleveland, Ohio.

Harry Oliver Hofstead (B.A. Taylor University 1900, B.A. Yale 1903, M.A. Yale and the University of Maine 1904) was born in New York City February 5, 1877, prepared at the Brooklyn (N. Y.) High School and at the Centenary Collegiate Institute, Hackettstown, N. J., and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, John Evers Hofstead, who died in 1904, was a dry goods merchant. He was born in 1846, the son of John Hofstead.

His mother's maiden name was Elizabeth Everitt.

Hofstead graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment. He was married before coming to Yale to Miss Mabel Marshall Higgins, daughter of Walter Dewitt Clinton Higgins (jewelry business). Mrs. Hofstead died January 18, 1904, leaving a daughter, Helen Mildred Hofstead, who was born August 14, 1901.

He writes: "I put in the year 1904 as student at Bangor Seminary, Bangor, Me., and at the University of Maine. Served same year as Superintendent of Public Schools, Anson, Me. Was ordained to the gospel ministry in the Congregational Church, North Anson, Maine, June 1904, Rev. President Beach, D.D., President of Bangor Seminary, Rev. Smith Baker, D.D., of the Williston Church, Portland, Maine, and the Rev. Charles Harbutt, Secretary of the Missionary Society, Portland, Maine, taking part in service. During one year of the pastorate at North Anson the membership of the church was doubled. The state secretary reported to state conference that the actual working strength of the church was nearly trebled.

"Last year I returned to Yale and put in the year in post graduate work, while I am now pastor of the Congregational Church at Sanford, Maine. Other calls have come to me, but have preferred to remain here. I am in hopes of returning to New Haven to pursue studies for another year or two in order to obtain the best equipment for Christian service."

His address is Sanford, Me.

Thomas Nicholas Hogan was born in Hartford, Conn., December 6, 1879, prepared for college at the Hartford Public High School and entered at the beginning of Freshman year. He left at the end of Junior year and spent a year in the Yale Law School, returning to college as a Senior in the Class of 1904.

His father, Matthew Hogan, of the Hogan Manufacturing Company and at present Connecticut State Senator, was born in Ireland in June 1844, the son of William Hogan and Margaret (Sullivan) Hogan.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ann Hanley, was the daughter of John Hanley and Mary (Ryan) Hanley.

Hogan is at present engaged in the law business with Edward D. Robbins, 793 Main St., Hartford, Conn. Business took him to a ranch in Norwich, Kan., for a large part of last winter. His home address is 53 Grove St., Hartford, Conn.

Charles Sumner Holbrook (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City March 28, 1881, prepared for college at the Hasbrouck Institute, Jersey City, N. J., and entered with the Class.

His father, Charles Amos Holbrook, New York City Manager of the Edward Miller & Co., manufacturers of lamps and brass goods, was born in Chester, Hampden County, Mass., February 7, 1851, the son of Sumner Holbrook and Laurania W. (Parke) Holbrook.

His mother, whose maiden name was Anna Laura Stevens, was the daughter of William Stevens, a farmer and stock raiser of Chester, Mass., and of Laura A. (Pease) Stevens.

David S. Holbrook (Yale 1872) is an uncle.

Holbrook is at present in the milling business with the Portland Flouring Company, 224 Stark St., Portland, Ore., and resides at 214 King St. His home address is 162 Belmont Ave., Jersey City Heights, N. J.

Henry Chandler Holt (B.A. 1903) was born in Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y., January 13, 1881, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college in September 1899.

His father, George Chandler Holt (B.A. Yale 1866, LL.B. Columbia 1869, LL.D. Yale 1904), is Judge of the United States District Court, Southern District of New York. He was born in Mexico, Oswego County, N. Y., December 31, 1843, the son of Hiram Holt, M.D.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Louise Bowen, was the daughter of Henry C. Bowen, a merchant and editor of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Holt's Yale relatives include besides his father two brothers, Hamilton Holt (1894) and Stuart Holt (1899), a brother-in-law, R. D. Reed (1896 S.), four uncles, C. W. Bowen (1873), H. W. Bowen (1878), J. E. Bowen (1881), F. D. Bowen (1884), an uncle by marriage, R. B. Richardson (1869), and two first cousins, Henry S. Mathewson (1890) and Gardner Richardson (1905).

In college Holt played center on the Freshman football team, was substitute center on the University football team in Sophomore year, and regular center during Junior and Senior years. He was on the Senior Promenade Committee and was Chairman of the Class Supper Committee. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and Skull and Bones societies, and held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes, August 1906: "1. Left college in June 1903 and entered the Southern Railway at Princeton, Ind., November 1, 1903. I remained at Princeton until a couple of months ago. I am still with the Southern Railway but am not located anywhere in particular. I am at Birmingham, Ala., as much as any place, although I travel all over the Southern system. I am with the transportation department.

"2. I am not married. Do not know my wife's maiden name, or anything about her father's full name, occupation, etc. Also I have no children.

"3. I did no post-graduate work and have obtained therefrom no degrees.

"4. I have published no books, pamphlets or articles.

"5. I have become affiliated with no organizations, social, religious or political. I have done no work in politics and have held no positions of trust, honor or profit.

"6. I have made no journey in foreign countries. In this country I journey about 1000 miles a week, so will not trouble you with the various places I have visited.

"7. My permanent address is 'Roseland,' Woodstock, Conn. Letters, etc., if postage is prepaid, may be sent there with the certainty of their being forwarded to me.

"8. There are no other circumstances in my career of interest to the Class. I am afraid to write too much. I can give no information about any other fellows in the Class which I think the Class would like to know but which modesty, etc., prevents those fellows from telling, because I never see any members of the Class.

"9. Any plans which I may have involving important changes in the future are rather vague, consisting chiefly of being promoted to a better position than I now have."

Thomas Hooker, Jr., (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Woodbridge, Conn., July 26, 1882, prepared at the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, Conn., and at the Taft School, Watertown, Conn., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Thomas Hooker (Yale 1869), President of the New Haven Trust Company and Vice President of the First National Bank, was a member of the Board of Education of New Haven from 1894 to 1904. He was born in Macon, Ga., September 3, 1849, the son of the Rev. Richard Hooker and Aurelia (Dwight) Hooker, a sister of President Dwight of Yale.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Augusta Bowles, was the daughter of Samuel Bowles, Editor of the Springfield Republican and of Mary (Schermerhorn) Bowles.

A brother, Richard Hooker, graduated from Yale in 1899, and a cousin, Winthrop E. Dwight, graduated in 1893.

In college Hooker was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and graduated with a First Colloquy Senior appointment. Since graduation he has been taking the regular course at the Harvard Law School, rooming with Mansfield Ferry in Winthrop Hall, Cambridge. He passed the Connecticut and the Massachusetts bar examinations last June and on August 1 started practicing in the office of White, Daggett & Tilson, 42 Church St., New Haven, Conn. He lives at 233 Church St., New Haven, Conn.

Sidney Upson Hooper (B.A. 1903) was born in Brookline, Mass., May 5, 1880, prepared for college at the Black Hall School, Lyme, Conn., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, William Edward Hooper, died June 16, 1892. He was born September 22, 1846 in Bridgewater, Mass., the son of Apollos Hooper and Sarah Capen (Ames) Hooper. He resided in Brookline, and was Treasurer of the Home Savings Bank of Boston.

His mother, whose maiden name was Florence Maxwell Upson, died October 19, 1895. She was the daughter of Edwin Upson and Priscilla (Maxwell) Upson.

Hooper's Yale relatives include three first cousins: Charles Upson Clark (1897), John Kirkland Clark (1899) and George Maxwell Clark (1901), and two second cousins, William Maxwell (1885) and Robert Maxwell (1887).

He writes: "After leaving New Haven I went into the Auditor's office at the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad and stayed there 15 months (June 30, 1903—September 24, 1904). September 26, 1905, I took up work in the Division Superintendent's office of the Great Northern Railway Company at Larimore, N. D., and since that time have been filling various minor positions in various parts of this state, finally landing up as night yard master at Williston, N. D., December 1 (1905). There is really nothing which can be said concerning the past two and one-half years' work except that I have simply been accumulating railroad experience which I hope will some day be of value. I came west to get into the practical operating side of the work I had chosen, and can say that I am getting my fill.

"While at times the progress seems slow and discouragement enters in, on the whole I am satisfied and intend to see it through. The desolation of this outlandish region prevents my helping you out with any information regarding the rest of the Class. I hope now to get on for the big event this coming June, but may find it impossible when the time comes."

His address is care Great Northern Railway, Williston, N. D. His home address is 545A Quincy St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Francis Stockbridge Houghteling (B.A. University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., 1903) was born in Chicago, Ill., February 4, 1882, prepared for college at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered Yale at the beginning of Freshman year, leaving in the fall of 1900 to enter the University of the South.

His father, James Lawrence Houghteling (PhB. Yale 1876, honorary M.A. 1901), of the firm of Peabody, Houghteling and Company, bankers, was born in Chicago, November 29, 1855. He was the son of William D. Houghteling and Marcia E. (Stockbridge) Houghteling.

His mother, whose maiden name was Lucretia Ten Broeck Peabody, is the daughter of Francis B. Peabody and Harriet C. (Ten Broeck) Peabody.

Houghteling's Yale relatives include two brothers, James Lawrence Houghteling, Jr. (1905), and William Houghteling (1908 S.), and four uncles, O. F. Aldis (1874), F. S. Peabody (1881 S.), A. S. Peabody (1895) and the late H. B. Butler (1876 S.).

At the University of the South he was Editor-in-Chief of the Sewanee Purple and Lit. and was a member of the golf team and of the intercollegiate debating team.

He writes: "I have had a very uneventful life since leaving Yale in the fall of 1900. I immediately entered the University of the South and took a degree after three years honest effort. While there, I had a very good time and was more or less interested in a good many things. After graduation I entered the bond department of Peabody, Houghteling and Company, 164 Dearborn Street, Chicago, and have been there ever since. Last winter I was sent on business to California. During the past year I have been in bad health a good deal of the time, but am much better now and expect that another winter on the Pacific coast will put me in fine shape for matrimony and the further pursuit of the almighty dollar."

His residence is Virginia Hotel, Chicago, Ill. His home address is Winnetka, Ill.

Lawrence Augustus Howard (B.A. 1903, LL.B. 1906) was born in Hartford, Conn., October 15, 1882, prepared for college at the Hartford Public High School and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Arthur Ethelbert Howard, was born in Mansfield, Conn., February 12, 1855, the son of Ephraim Howard and Lucinda L. (Place) Howard. He is Special Deputy Collector of Customs in Hartford.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Adelaide Bagley, was the daughter of Leverett S. Bagley, of East Haven, Conn., and of Ann Elizabeth (Hallock) Bagley.

In college Howard divided the Winston Trowbridge Townsend Prize with MacLane and Cobb in Freshman year. He held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment.

He writes: "Early in the September after I graduated I commenced as a teacher of English in the Bloomfield High School, Bloomfield, N. J., remaining there during the school year. The summer following, 1904, I spent as a student in the law office of Sperry and McLean, Hartford. Late in September of that year I moved back to New Jersey and became teacher of English, principally in the Short Hills School, Short Hills, N. J., living in South Orange and commuting to New York every evening to attend lectures at the New York Law School. By dint of studying at odd moments and on Sundays, I managed to pass off my law work decently, and at the end of the year gave up my job in school, or, to be more correct, got fired.

"The summer of 1905 I spent in the above named law office. In the fall I managed to pass off a number of hours extra at the Yale Law School and entered as a Third Year man. I am there now and hope to take my LL.B. next June (1906). After that I shall probably begin practice for myself in Hartford."

And later: "I took the degree of LL.B. from the Yale Law School last June, and am now practicing law, for myself, at Room 69, Ætna Life Building, Hartford, Conn., in the office of Sperry and McLean."

He lives at 218 Wethersfield Ave., Hartford, Conn.

Norman Churchill Hull (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Pittsfield, Mass., August 5, 1881, prepared at the Pittsfield High School and at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class.

His father, James Wells Hull, President of the Berkshire Life Insurance Company of Pittsfield, is a member of the State Board of Health. He was born in New Lebanon, Columbia County, N. Y., September 20, 1842, the son of Charles Williams Hull and Lucina Ann (Churchill) Hull.

His mother, whose maiden name was Helen Edwards Plunkett, was the daughter of Thomas Fitzpatrick Plunkett and Harriet (Merrick) (Hodge) Plunkett. His Yale relatives include a brother, Edward Boltwood Hull (1906), an uncle, William R. Plunkett of the Class of 1854, and a cousin, Edward Boltwood (1892).

In college Hull was a member of the University Chess team, held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment. He spent the last three years studying in the Harvard Law School, has recently been admitted to the Massachusetts bar and expects to practice in Pittsfield. His address is 40 Appleton Ave., Pittsfield, Mass.

Roy Arthur Hunt (B.A. 1903) was born in Nashua, N. H., August 3, 1881, prepared at the Shadyside Academy, Pittsburg, Pa., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Alfred Ephraim Hunt (S.B. Massachusetts Institute of Technology 1876), is President of the Pittsburg Reduction Company, manufacturers of aluminum. He was born in East Douglass, Mass., March 31, 1855, the son of Leander Hunt, a manufacturer, and of Mary (Hanchett) Hunt.

His mother, whose maiden name was Maria Tyler McQuesten, was the daughter of Joseph McQuesten, a farmer, and of Elizabeth (Lund) McQuesten.

In college he held a Dissertation Junior and Senior appointment. Since graduation he has been with the Pittsburg Reduction Company, now occupying the position of Superintendent of the Stamping Department of their Kensington Works. His residence is "B" St., Oakmont, Pa.

George Sinclair Hurst (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City March 10, 1876, prepared for college at the Mt. Hermon (Mass.) School and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, George Gilfillan Hurst, a compositor with Bulfinger & Company of New York City, was born October 16, 1842, the son of Joshua Hurst and Frances (Bilyea) Hurst.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emily Amanda Sinclair, was the daughter of James Sinclair and Martha (MacMurray) Sinclair.

In college Hurst was a member of the College Choir and of the Freshman, Apollo and University Glee clubs. He was Chairman of the Ivy Committee, and was a member of Zeta Psi and of the Elihu Club.

He writes: "Since graduation my life has been mighty commonplace. I have been connected with the Yale Alumni Weekly, chiefly in the business department. A couple of times the monotony of soliciting and writing advertisements has been broken, once when I went for a month to Arizona in the interests of a copper mining company. I went with Burnett Goodwin, '99 S., in the winter of 1903. The mine was located in the wildest part of the Territory and we were obliged to drive 85 miles from the nearest railroad station—Tucson. We had no guide but had been furnished a map of the section which deceitfully showed us a straight trail from Tucson to camp. We were supposed to reach a mountain resort, Oracle, the first night, but in good tenderfoot fashion we got off the trail about sundown and soon found ourselves enveloped in blackness on a sheer desert without so much as a tree or shrub or stream of water in sight, much less a human habitation. We had a two days' supply of food and mineral water in the wagon but nothing for the horses. Goodwin, who knew less, if possible, than I about the habits and diet of horses, tried to feed them 'Uneeda' biscuits and sardines. They wagged their heads dolefully. I tried to give them 'Shasta' water out of the crown of my felt hat, but they bit at me. We decided at 9 P. M. to go into bivouac. Accordingly we took the horses out of the harness, tied them to the stern of the wagon and climbed upon the seat and wrapped each other up in a two by three lap robe. We were soon driven into action, however, by the impatience of the horses and a terrific north wind. We hitched up the steeds again and decided to start back whence we came. The sand blew into the wagon tracks we had made a few hours before and we had frequently to get down on all fours with lighted matches to hunt for the trail. We rode a short distance but the horses had become so weak that they couldn't pull us any further so we got out, opened a bottle that cheered the animals and nearly inebriated us and proceeded to walk. This we kept up with varying fortunes till 5 A. M., when the horses ran away. In chasing them I fell headlong into a cactus bush and had to be pried out by Goodwin after he had caught the team. At eight o'clock in the morning we fell upon a Mexican ranch and left our horses there, and hiring another pair, were driven back to Tucson. After a sleep of about twenty-four hours we got our nerve back and started out again. Two days later we arrived in camp, where the story of the tenderfooters is still occasion for laughter.

"I am expecting to become interested with Mr. L. S. Welch, '89, in an enterprise independent of the Weekly and hope to 'break ground' for it in a few months."

His address is Box 175, New Haven, Conn. His home address is Danbury, Conn., R. F. D. 22.

Roswell Bishop Hyatt (B.A. 1903) was born in Meriden, Conn., March 28, 1881, prepared for college at the Meriden High School, and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Isaac Beach Hyatt, died April 28, 1906. He was at his death Secretary and Treasurer of The Little, Somers and Hyatt Company of Meriden. He was one time Commander of the Merriman Post G.A.R., and later Department Commander of Connecticut. For many years he was Chief of the Meriden Fire Department and President of the Connecticut State Firemen's Association. He was born in Norwalk, Conn., February 2, 1848, the son of Roswell Hyatt and Ann Elizabeth (Curtis) Hyatt.

His mother, whose maiden name was Jennie Maria Bishop, was the daughter of Charles Lewis Bishop and Emily Maria (Cochrane) Bishop.

A brother, Willard Curtis Hyatt, graduated from Yale in 1905.

In college Hyatt was a member of the University Basketball team four years, being Captain in Senior year. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

He writes: "My letter must necessarily be brief, for I have simply been 'plugging along' since leaving New Haven, and it would be rather hard to elaborate upon that. I started in at the mills of the Clairton Steel Company, Clairton, Pa., and stayed there from August 1903 until Christmas of the same year. In January I went to the Fred Macey Company in their New York store, but left in June and came here (The Little, Somers & Hyatt Company, decorators, Meriden, Conn.). There is hardly anything more to say. I manage to keep fairly busy for sixteen hours a day, and am quite contented."

His business address is 67 East Main St., Meriden, Conn. His residence is 177 Liberty St.

William Lorne Irvine (B.A. 1903, M.D. 1906) was born June 22, 1879, in Marais, Manitoba, Canada, prepared at the Bathgate (N. D.) High School, and entered college with the Class.

His father, Thomas Irvine, a farmer of Mill Creek, Manitoba, was born in 1857 in Winchester, Ontario, Canada. He is the son of David Irvine, also a farmer, and Sarah (Smith) Irvine.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Ann Smirl, was the daughter of George Smirl, a Canadian farmer, and of Mary (Barkley) Smirl.

Irvine was a member of Sigma Xi and held a First Dispute Junior appointment and an Oration Senior appointment in college.

He writes, November 28, 1905: "Since graduation I have attended the Yale Medical School and expect to graduate from there this next June. I leave here March 1, 1906, for a two year service as interne on the house staff of the Rhode Island General Hospital at Providence. This will be my address for the next two years. Plans for the future following these two years are not yet matured.

"If it is of any interest I might say that I have been on the editorial board of the Yale Medical Journal for two years and I am now Chairman of that board for the present year."

And later: "I took the degree of M.D. at Yale last June. I am on the house staff of the Rhode Island Hospital and expect to be here for the next eighteen months."

His home address is Mill Creek, Manitoba, Canada.

Henry James (B.A. 1903) was born in Baltimore, Md., September 24, 1880, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Nathaniel Willis James, of N. W. James and Company, lumber merchants, was born in Baltimore, Md., January 3, 1853, the son of Henry James and Amelia (Cate) James.

His mother, whose maiden name was Francis Ranson, was the daughter of Ambrose Robert Ranson.

Four uncles preceded James at Yale: Henry A. James (1875), Dr. Walter B. James (1877), Norman James (1890) and R. C. James (1894).

In college he was a member of Kappa Psi, Delta Kappa Epsilon and Wolf's Head societies.

Since graduation he has been studying at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, New York City, from which he expects to take his degree in 1907. His present address is 527 Madison Avenue, New York City. His home address is Baltimore, Md.

William Heberd James was born July 28, 1880, in Kansas City, Mo., prepared at the Central High School of Kansas City and entered in the fall of 1899, leaving in Sophomore year.

His father, Luther Tillman James (Brown 1873), of the T. M. James & Sons, Kansas City china merchants, was born in Kentucky, the son of T. M. James and Sarah (Woodward) James.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Heberd, was the daughter of William Heberd.

T. M. James (Yale 1898) and D. L. James (1902) are relatives.

James was married September 30, 1903, to Miss Aileen Stevens, daughter of E. A. Stevens, a real estate broker of Kansas City. A daughter, Virginia Aileen James, was born September 29, 1904.

After leaving college he spent four months traveling in Europe. He is a member of the firm of T. M. James & Sons, china merchants of Kansas City, Mo.

Richard Gundry Jennings was born in Bradford, Pa., September 17, 1880, the son of Edward H. Jennings, prepared at the Shadyside Academy, Pittsburg, Pa., and entered with the Class. He left college at Christmas 1899 and returned the following fall for two years with the Class of 1904. In college he was fullback on the 1904 Freshman eleven and was a member of Alpha Delta Phi. Since leaving college he has been with his father in the firm of E. H. Jennings and Brothers, oil producers, Pittsburg, Pa.

Donald Kent Johnston (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City December 17, 1881, prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Henry Phelps Johnston (Yale 1862), Professor of History in the College of the City of New York, was born in Trebizond, Turkey in Asia, April 19, 1842. He was the son of Thomas Pinckney Johnston, a missionary to Turkey, and of Mary Ann Cassandra (Howe) Johnston.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Kirtland Holmes, was the daughter of Joseph Holmes and Maria (Selden) Holmes.

Johnston numbers among his Yale relatives two brothers, Henry Selden Johnston (1896) and John Holmes Johnston (1899 S.), and a first cousin, C. H. Walker (1899). He is also a descendant of the Rev. Thomas Buckingham of Saybrook, one of the founders of Yale College.

In college he won a McLaughlin Memorial second prize in English in Freshman year, was a member of the Executive Committee of Dwight Hall, a member of the Pundits, President of the Berkeley Association and held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a First Dispute Senior appointment.

He is at present studying in the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge, Mass., preparing to enter the ministry. His home address is 221 West 49th St., New York City.

Franklin Allen Johnston was born January 22, 1880, at Orange, N. J., prepared at the Berkeley School, New York City, and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, William John Johnston, was born in Ballycottin, Ireland, in 1856, the son of John Johnston. He is of the firm of W. J. Johnston Company, New York City, who publish the Mining Magazine, and of the John C. Cochran Co., publishers of the American Exporter.

His mother, whose maiden name was Martha Armstrong Allen, was the daughter of William Allen of Greenwich, Conn. She died in 1888.

---

In college Johnston was for two years Manager of the Dramatic Association.

He was married June 2, 1906, in New York City to Miss Daisy Bell Robinson, daughter of the late Rhys Harvey Robinson, a London (England) stock broker, and a niece of Mr. Greet of the Ben Greet Company.

He writes, May 5, 1906: "After leaving college I was engaged in newspaper work for one year and have spent two years with Mr. Greet. My work with him has brought me in contact with college officials, professors and students in all parts of the country, as our company is the only one which gives performances directly under university auspices. Unless I go to England to be married, I will surely be on hand for Class Day next month."

Johnston is the Business Manager of The Ben Greet Company of English Players. His address is 774 West End Ave., New York City.

William Poyntell Johnston (B.A. 1903) was born in Wilmington, Del., October 6, 1881, prepared at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and at the Protestant Episcopal Academy, Philadelphia, Pa., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Tilghman Johnston (Polytechnic College, Philadelphia, Pa., mining engineer), a lawyer, was born in Wilmington, Del., November 10, 1852, the son of William Poyntell Johnston and Jane (Tilghman) Johnston.

His mother's maiden name was Frances Sillyman.

A brother, Tilghman E. Johnston, graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School in 1905.

In college he played on the Freshman eleven, rowed on the University Four-Oar crew in 1903, and was on the Senior Promenade Committee. He was a member of Kappa Psi, Psi Upsilon and the Elihu Club, and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since that memorable June of 1903 when the 'best class ever' went forth to do or die, yours truly has resided in Wilmington, Del., and my chief occupation has been that of student-at-law and office boy. The first year after graduation I used to drop in occasionally at the University of Pennsylvania Law School for a few lectures, but the strain was too great and I gave up the law school work and stuck to the office altogether. On May 3, 1906, I passed the bar examinations successfully and have now changed from student to attorney-at-law. I am not certain just yet about changing from office boy. I am associated with my father, Mr. Tilghman Johnston, and our offices are at 4 West 9th Street. I am not married yet, so query number two can be passed without further remarks. I have not traveled very extensively during the past three years with the exception of returning to New Haven every time the occasion or chance was given me. Most of my time has been spent in this city. My permanent address will be 4 West 9th Street, Wilmington, Del."

Joshua Henry Jones, Jr., (B.A. Brown 1903) was born in Orangeburg, S. C., November 22, 1876, prepared at the Columbus (Ohio) High School and entered in the fall of 1899, leaving Yale at the end of Freshman year.

His father, Rev. Joshua Henry Jones, D.D., (Clafin University, Orangeburg, S. C., 1885), was born in Orangeburg, in October 1856, is President of the Wilberforce (Ohio) University and was for six years a member of the School Board of Columbus.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Paine Martin, died April 24, 1885.

Jones was married in Fall River, Mass., December 13, 1905, to Miss Helen Regina Courtney, daughter of Henry Edward Courtney.

He writes: "I left Yale in 1900. Was at Brown till 1903, graduating there. I took a position with the Providence News as Sporting Editor the summer of 1903. On staff of Philadelphia North American same fall. Am about to publish small book 'From a Reporter's Note Pad' and to publish a weekly newspaper, the 'Union Advocate'."

His address is care of the Evening News, 124 Washington St., or 270 Pine St., Providence, R. I.

Nicholas Ridgely Jones (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Springfield, Ill., November 27, 1881, prepared at the Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn., and entered college in September 1899.

His father, James Treat Jones, Clerk of the U. S. Court of Springfield, Ill., was born in Tremont, Ill., in 1843, the son of John Albert Jones and Anne Maria (Major) Jones.

His mother, whose maiden name was Jane Maria Ridgely, was the daughter of Nicholas Ridgely and Jane Maria (Huntington) Ridgely.

In college Jones was an editor of the Yale Record, and a member of the University Banjo and Mandolin Club. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and held a High Oration Junior appointment and an Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "Have spent the three winters in Cambridge at the Harvard Law School. Summer of 1903 traveled abroad, England, France, Germany, etc., regulation tour. Summer of 1904 spent in New York State and Springfield, Ill. Summer of 1905 traveled through the Canadian Rockies, Pacific coast cities and California, Colorado, etc. Nothing else is even as worthy of mention as these facts. Future address probably Springfield, Ill., with a strong possibility of Chicago."

His home address is 806 South 6th St., Springfield, Ill.

Robert Porter Keep (B.A. 1903) was born in Easthampton, Mass., April 7, 1882, prepared at the Norwich (Conn.) Free Academy and at the Ludwig Georg Gymnasium, Darmstadt, Germany, and entered college at the beginning of Sophomore year.

His father, Robert Porter Keep (B.A. Yale 1865, Ph.D. 1869), who died June 3, 1904, was for a time United States Consul to Greece and was Principal of the Norwich Free Academy. He was born in Farmington, Conn., April 26, 1844, the son of Rev. John Robinson Keep (Yale 1834) and of Rebecca (Porter) Keep, sister of President Porter and daughter of Rev. Noah Porter (Yale 1803).

His mother, whose maiden name was Margaret Vryling Haines, died January 7, 1893, and was the daughter of Richard T. Haines and Francina (Wilder) Haines.

R. K. Clark (Yale 1903) is a second cousin.

In college Keep was Vice President of the German Club, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and on various Dwight Hall Committees. He held an Oration Junior appointment and a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment, graduating eleventh in rank.

He was married June 21, 1906, at Andover, Mass., to Miss Rose Anne Hardy Day, daughter of the Rev. Charles Orrin Day (Yale 1872), President of the Andover Theological Seminary, and sister of C. O. Day, Jr., (Yale 1903).

He writes, December 10, 1905: "Immediately after graduating in 1903, I went to Europe, visiting friends in various cities of Germany en route to Geneva, Switzerland, where I matriculated at the University and did work there at the summer school (École de Vacances). Met Steve Clark (1903) with a big camera and Charlie Pratt (1903) with a lot of girls in tow. Early in September 1903 I got back to this blessed country and came up here to Andover, teaching French and Latin the first year. George Richards (1903) was also here then, teaching mathematics. The following summer, 1904, Richards and I cruised from the first of July till the middle of August, starting from Chatham on Cape Cod and working westward as far as New Haven and Bridgeport, and then back again via Sag Harbor and Nantucket. This year I am head of the German department here at Phillips Academy and I expect to be here for some time to come.

"I have enrolled as a member of the Yale Graduate School, and am trying to find time for some work in German literature, tending toward an M.A., but am afraid the M.A. won't be forthcoming very soon. 1903 is always represented very well at the monthly meeting of the Boston Yale Club, which I try to attend always. So in that way I have kept in pretty close touch with various fellows and old Andover boys. Yale 1903's are frequently coming back here, and they always look me up. Only ten days ago Dud Lewis and Ralph Melcer were here. 'Cupe' Day gets out to his home here nearly every Sunday from the Harvard Medical School, where, by the way, he seems to be making a name for himself."

His address is care Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.

Herbert Cassius Kelly (B.A. 1903) was born in New Haven, Conn., August 16, 1881, prepared at the Hillhouse High School, New Haven, and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Cassius William Kelly (B.A. Yale 1870, Ph.B. 1872), City Engineer of New Haven, was born May 10, 1848, at Pleasantville, Venango County, Pa., the son of John Kelly and Sarah (Zeigler) Kelly.

His mother, whose maiden name was Frances Elizabeth Hart, was the daughter of William Hart and Milly S. (Linsley) Hart.

In college Kelly won the second Winthrop prize in Junior year and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He was author of the Class Ivy Ode and graduated with a High Oration Junior and a High Oration Senior appointment.

He is at present teaching at the Smith Academy, St. Louis, Mo., and is living at 5923 Clemens Ave. His home address is 209 Norton St., New Haven, Conn.

Daniel Edwards Kennedy (B.A. 1903, M.A. 1906) was born in New York City, August 27, 1879, prepared at the Hamilton Institute of New York and entered with the Class. He is the son of William L. Kennedy and Margaret (Edwards) Kennedy.

He was married June 30, 1903, in Nashua, N. H., to Miss Elizabeth Florence Lord, daughter of Thomas Lord. A son, the 1903 Class Boy, Daniel Edwards Kennedy, Jr., a picture of whom appears on another page, was born May 17, 1904.

Since graduation Kennedy has lived at 17 Devon Road, Chestnut Hill, Mass., pursuing studies in English literature leading up to the Master of Arts degree.

Francis Stanley Kent (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born October 20, 1880, in Providence, R. I., prepared at the Classical High School, Providence, and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Edwin Francis Kent, of the S. B. Champlin Company, manufacturing jewelers of Providence, was born in Attleborough (now North Attleboro), Mass., January 7, 1848, the son of Francis B. Kent and Abigail (Lewis) Kent.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emma Stanley, was the daughter of John H. Stanley and Cornelia (Draper) Stanley.

A brother, Edwin Stearns Kent, graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School in 1904.

In college Kent was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and held a High Oration Junior appointment and a High Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "I was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar February 23, 1906, graduated from Harvard Law School June 28, 1906, and after September 4, 1906, I expect to be with the law firm of Brandeis, Dunbar and Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass. My residence address is 891 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Mass."

James Barry Kilburn (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1905) was born in Malone, N. Y., May 28, 1880, prepared at the Franklin Academy of Malone and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Frederick Douglass Kilburn, a lawyer not now in active practice, has been Superintendent of Banks in the State of New York. He was born in Clinton County, New York, July 25, 1850, the son of Henry G. Kilburn and Sophronia (Evans) Kilburn.

His mother, whose maiden name was Clara Mary Barry, was the daughter of James Barry and Clarissa (Church) Barry.

Kilburn graduated from college with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment. He spent two years at the New York Law School and is now practicing with the firm of Gifford, Hobbs, Haskell & Beard, 5 Nassau St., New York City. He lives at 135 West 95th St. His home address is Malone, N. Y.

Douglas Brooks Kimball (B.A. Harvard 1904) was born in Salt Lake City, Utah, October 6, 1881, the son of Edwin Kimball, deceased. He prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered college in the fall of 1899, leaving in March 1900. He was at Yale a member of Beta Theta Pi. He spent the next five years at Harvard, four of them in the college and one in the law school. The year 1905-1906 he spent in the Law School of Boston University.

His home address is 124 Sixth East St., Salt Lake City, Utah.

Eugene Allerton Kingman (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born September 3, 1880, in Providence, R. I., prepared at the Classical High School, Providence, and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Eugene Kingman (B.A. Yale 1866, M.D. Columbia 1870), a physician of Providence, was born at Quincy, Ill., August 8, 1843, the son of Lucius Kingman, a lawyer of Quincy, Ill., and of Lucia (Holmes) Kingman.

His mother, whose maiden name was Lucia Collins, was the daughter of Frederick Collins, a manufacturer of Quincy, Ill., and of Mary Louise (Allen) Collins.

Besides his father, a brother, Dr. Lucius C. Kingman (1900), is a graduate of Yale.

In college he was Business Manager of the Yale Courant, and held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes, December 25, 1905: "The following sums me up: three years at Harvard Law School with summers in the law office of Edwards and Angell of Providence, R. I. I hope to spend the rest of my days in the practice of law. Present address: 519 Angell Street, Providence, R. I."

Joseph Newcomb Kinney (B.A. 1903, LL.B. University of Cincinnati 1906) was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, November 20, 1881, prepared at the Franklin School, Cincinnati, and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Charles Dutton Kinney (transportation), was born in Cincinnati in 1852, the son of Joseph Newcomb Kinney, who was engaged in railroading in Vermont, and of Altha Louise (Dutton) Kinney.

His mother, whose maiden name was Jeannette Grove, was the daughter of Martin Grove, a farmer of Ohio, and of Jane (Coffman) Grove.

In college Kinney was a member of the University Orchestra, and held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes, November 1905: "In the fall of 1903 after returning from Colorado, where I spent part of the summer, I entered the Cincinnati Law School. Have been studying law there ever since. The summer of 1904 I again spent in the west, part of the time prospecting for coal in northwestern Colorado. Last summer I was in Europe during the early part of the summer traveling in France, England, and Scotland with my eldest sister, who had spent the preceding winter in Paris. As for the plans you speak of, I intend to take the Ohio bar examinations next month. There are also numerous other plans, but they are too vague just at present to be of interest to the Class. That in brief is a sketch of my doings and wanderings since leaving New Haven."

His business address is 706 Traction Building, Cincinnati, Ohio. He lives at 1423 East McMillan St., Cincinnati.

Lucian Swift Kirtland (B.A. 1903) was born in Poland, Ohio, October 13, 1881, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered with the Class.

His father, Cook Fitch Kirtland, a banker, died April 28, 1897. He was born in Poland April 27, 1828, the son of Henry Turhand Kirtland and Maria (Fitch) Kirtland.

His mother, whose maiden name was Harriet Spalding Swift, was the daughter of Lucian Swift and Sarah (West) Swift.

His Yale relatives include his great grandfather, Zephaniah Swift (Yale 1778), Chief Justice of Connecticut, two great uncles, Judge Rufus P. Spalding (1817), and Jared P. Kirtland (M.D. 1815), and a second cousin, Charles P. Hine (1898).

In college Kirtland was an editor of the Record, substituted on the Freshman crew and was a member of Alpha Delta Phi. He held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment, graduating with special honors in English. Shortly after graduation he published with C. R. Aldrich as co-editor, Thomas Deloney: his Thomas of Reading and Three Ballads on the Spanish Armada.

He writes: "As compositors are howling for copy and as we have a joyous young strike on hand, my brain action is hard to get in running order, as you will recognize when you read the accompanying blank.

"1. After leaving college (1903) I went home for a month and then started on a trip with Wilson Wing, Erling Ostby and Byron Pierce, sailing from San Francisco July 30. Visited Honolulu, Japan, China, the Philippines, Singapore, Penang, Ceylon, India, Egypt, France and England.

"Started to work in Minneapolis in April 1904, as reporter on The Minneapolis Journal. Was on the Journal until September, 1905, when I became editor of The Housekeeper and in October was elected Vice President and Director of The Housekeeper Corporation, publishers and printers. Have done some independent writing, bringing in slight pecuniary reward.

"2. Unmarried and seemingly no prospects.

"3. Am taking post graduate work under Prof. Reed, in absentia for M.A. in English literature. Degree expected June 1906.

THE CAMPUS (LOOKING NORTH).

"4. Thomas of Reading, reprint from 16th century prose romance, J. F. Taylor & Company, New York, July 1903. No record of articles.

"5. In newspaper work did my little to elect Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota and Mayor Haynes of Minneapolis.

"6. See 1.

"7. Permanent address: Poland, Ohio.

"8. Nothing. Snowed under as far as knowing what others in the Class are doing.

"9. Expect to work until I am thirty-five and then will succumb to 'Wanderlust.'"

Herman Warren Knox was born in Washington, D. C., October 11, 1881, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered with the Class of 1902, joining 1903 at the beginning of Sophomore year. He left college in March 1901.

His father, John Jay Knox (Hamilton 1848), who died February 9, 1892, was at one time Comptroller of the Currency. He was born in Knoxboro, Oneida County, N. Y., in 1829, the son of John J. Knox and Sarah (Curtis) Knox.

His mother, whose maiden name was Caroline Elizabeth Todd, was the daughter of William B. Todd and Elizabeth (Gillers) Todd.

A brother, Irving G. Knox, graduated from Yale in 1900.

In college Knox was a member of the Apollo Glee Club, of Eta Phi and Psi Upsilon. He is now in charge of the Government Department of Manning, Maxwell and Moore, Inc. (machinery and railroad supplies, etc.), 85 Liberty St., New York City. His home address is 56 East 77th St., New York City.

Albert Richard Lamb (B.A. 1903) was born in Waterbury, Conn., April 22, 1881, prepared at the Taft School, Watertown, Conn., and entered with the Class.

His father, George Burton Lamb, General Superintendent of the Waterbury Farrel Foundry & Machine Company, was born October 8, 1848, the son of George Lamb and Mary (Johnson) Lamb.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ida Belle Johnson, was the daughter of Benjamin H. Johnson and Mary E. (Hall) Johnson.

Richard Steele Lamb (Yale 1899 S.) was a cousin.

In college Lamb was Chairman of the News, Chairman of the Junior Promenade Committee, and Chairman of the Class Day Committee. He was on the Board of Governors of the University Club and Assistant Manager of the Bicycle team in the last year of its existence. He was Chairman of the Eta Phi Campaign Committee and a member of the Campaign Committee of Psi Upsilon, and a member of Skull and Bones.

Since graduation he has been studying medicine in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, New York. He has roomed for the past two years with Henry James and A. J. Waring. His present address is 527 Madison Ave., New York City. His home address is 161 Hillside Ave., Waterbury, Conn.

Theodore Twyford Lane (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1905) was born July 26, 1880, in New York City, prepared at the Flushing Institute and the Flushing High School, Flushing, N. Y., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Theodore Edward Lane, is General Agent for New York of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company. He is the son of James A. Lane and Mary A. Lane.

His mother, whose maiden name was Isabel Anna Gilpin, was the daughter of John Gilpin and Mary D. Gilpin.

In college Lane held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

Under date of December 1, 1905, he writes: "Left New Haven about June 30, 1903, for home; loafed about three weeks, then entered the law offices of King and Conyngton in July 1903. Began attending the New York Law School 'on the side' in October 1903; graduated June 1905. October 14 succeeded in deceiving the Committee on Character for the Second Department, and was admitted to the New York bar and am now practicing law with the firm of King and Conyngton, 170 Broadway, New York City. In June 1905 was elected a director of the New River Lumber Company; in July was elected a director and Secretary and Treasurer of the Marine Construction Company. Permanent address is 25 Franklin Place, Flushing, L. I., N. Y. Am a member of the Flushing Institute Association and Yale Club, New York City. Plans for the future,—to stir up strife and turmoil and profit by the resulting litigation."

William Clark Langley (B.A. 1903) was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., July 11, 1882, prepared for college at the St. Paul School, Garden City, L. I., and entered in September 1899.

His father, William Henry Langley, of W. H. Langley & Company, merchants of 105 Worth St., New York City, was born in Massachusetts in 1842, the son of William C. Langley.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mara Belle Shepard, was the daughter of George M. Shepard.

In college Langley was a member of the Bicycle team and elected Captain for Senior year. He held a First Dispute Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment. He is at present a member of the firm of Clark, Grannis and Lawrence, stock and bond brokers, 10 Wall St., New York City. His residence is 127 Remsen St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Charles Myron Latimer (B.A. 1903) was born in Newington, Conn., October 21, 1880, prepared at the New Britain (Conn.) High School and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Franklin Carrol Latimer, a retired farmer of Los Angeles, Cal., was born in Newington, Conn., August 1, 1835, the son of Erastus Latimer, a farmer of Newington, and of Sarah (Webster) Latimer.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Deming Wells, was the daughter of William Wells, a farmer of Newington, and of Cornelia (Deming) Wells.

An uncle, Charles Clinton Latimer (1856 M.S.), and a first cousin, Heman C. Whittlesey (1880), preceded Latimer at Yale.

In college he was a member of the Freshman Glee Club and of the track team, and held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a First Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes, January 31, 1906: "Nothing remarkable or startling has, as yet, come to pass in connection with my career since leaving college. Shortly after graduation I started west and, going by a northern route, spent some time on a large stock ranch in Montana, hunting, fishing, etc., sports which are quite interesting and worth while in places where hunters are scarce and game plentiful. From there I went on, stopping at Tacoma, Portland, San Francisco, etc., and finally reached Los Angeles, where I have lived most of the time since then. Since coming here I have been connected with the California Fruit Agency, the Los Angeles Mills (flour mills) and now have taken a position with the firm of Edwards and Winters, real estate and building. I have not yet considered the subject of matrimony seriously and have no immediate prospects of so doing.

"Southern California can boast a very flourishing Yale Club, which holds an informal dinner about every two months and a formal one annually during the winter. Occasionally an unexpected classmate strays in to these meetings, but 1903 men are rather 'seldom' in California, most of the club members being older graduates. Rev. Arthur Phelps (Billy's brother) is preaching here and is a member of the Club."

His business address is care Edwards and Winters, Laughlin Building, Los Angeles, Cal. His residence is 2516 East 1st St.

George Sidney Leach (B.A. 1903, LL.B. 1905) was born in Worcester, England, November 13, 1878, prepared at the Gloversville (N. Y.) High School and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Charles John Leach, is foreman of the John C. Allen and Sons Glove Manufacturing Company of Gloversville. He was born in Yeovil, England, December 29, 1854, the son of Henry Leach, of Worcester, England, and of Lucy (Ranford) Leach.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emma Cooper, was the daughter of Richard Cooper and Anne (Upton) Cooper.

In college Leach was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. In Junior year he held the Scott-Hurt scholarship and also won the Scott prize in German, holding a Philosophical Oration Junior appointment. In Senior year he was holder of the Thomas Glasby Waterman scholarship, graduating fifth in rank with a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment.

He writes, January 24, 1906: "The first summer after graduation—I mean the summer of 1903—I spent nearly two months tutoring fellows for entrance to Yale. That fall I entered the Yale Law School, from which, as the blank states, I graduated last June. In June 1905 also I took the New York bar examinations, and was admitted in September. This last summer I again engaged in tutoring for a month. In October 1905, I came down to New York and entered the office of J. Frederic Kernochan, 44 Pine St., and am still with him. My plans for the future are uncertain. So far as I can see, I shall live in New York indefinitely, the main object, at present, being to earn a living."

He lives at 2001 Fifth Ave., New York City.

George Everson Leonard (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1905) was born December 13, 1879, at Syracuse, N. Y., prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, George Samuel Leonard, the son of Samuel Leonard and Louise M. (Ryle) Leonard, is in the New York State Banking Department.

His mother, whose maiden name was Charlotte Everson, was the daughter of George Everson and Caroline (Strong) Everson.

In college Leonard was a member of the Freshman Glee Club, the University Glee Club, the University Banjo and Mandolin Club, and of the College Choir. He was a member of Alpha Delta Phi and held a Second Dispute Junior and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: "Attended New York Law School, from which I received degree of LL.B. Member of the legal fraternity of Delta Chi. Admitted to the bar of New York State and formed a partnership with Walter B. Walker (Leonard and Walker, 42 Broadway). (Nothing much doing either.)"

He lives at 2350 Broadway, New York City.

Howard Roderick LeVally was born in Chicago, Ill., July 5, 1882, prepared at the Harvard School, Chicago, Ill., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year, leaving in June 1900.

His father, Jonathan Reams LeVally, a member of the Chicago Board of Trade, was born September 15, 1853, in Ridgeway, Ohio, the son of James Jefferson LeVally, a farmer, and of Emeline (Wilklow) LeVally.

His mother, whose maiden name was Henrietta Jane Jones, was the daughter of John David Jones, a merchant, and of Mary E. (Williams) Jones.

A brother, Norman W. LeVally, was a member of the Class of 1902 Yale.

He writes: "As you know, I did not graduate with the Class, leaving at the end of Freshman year. Upon my arrival home, I decided on a western trip and left at once to take part in an irrigation company promoted by two of my uncles, John H. Jones and Joseph A. Simpson. This was in the central part of Wyoming. Nearly a year was spent out there and then I returned to Chicago to enter the employment of one of the big mercantile houses. This however was short-lived, for I readily saw that it held no prospect for anyone who wished to make any more than a good living. After leaving the above concern I became a salesman for the Shaw Walker Company, 151 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

"On October 18, 1905, I was married in Chicago to Miss Florence Dennis Pierce, daughter of Mr. William Lewis Pierce (University of Chicago 1865), a real estate broker."

LeVally's residence is 4466 Lake Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Dudley Payne Lewis (B.A. 1903) was born in Springfield, Mass., January 26, 1879, prepared at "The Elms," Springfield, Mass., and at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered Yale with the Class of 1902, joining 1903 at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, George Smith Lewis, of the Springfield Republican, was born in Middletown, Conn., March 17, 1842, the son of George Smith Lewis and Mary Ann (Hubbard) Lewis.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ellen Maria Sears, was the daughter of Elisha Sears, a teacher and farmer of Middletown, Conn., and of Esther Southmayd (Hendley) Sears.

Lewis's Yale relatives include a brother, Elisha S. Lewis (1899 S. and 1902), and three first cousins, Joseph H. Townsend (1885), Harold S. Arnold (1900) and G. S. Arnold (1903).

In college Lewis was a class deacon, a member of the Executive Committee of Dwight Hall, of the Cap and Gown Committee and of Alpha Delta Phi.

He writes: "Directly after Commencement I took a little trip with Gene Kingman. We started at Providence, R. I., on the fourth of July, went through historic towns of Massachusetts, and, after camping, fishing, swimming and exploring along the way, we arrived at Gene's summer home in the White Mountains, where I was royally entertained. After a visit there we went over into Vermont and Joe Fairbanks met us and bid us welcome in the name of the Green Mountain State.

"In the 1903 Summer number of the Yale Alumni Weekly appeared an article I wrote describing the portraits of Yale 'Lit.' editors which with Stanleigh Arnold I collected during Senior year for the 'Lit.' rooms.

"The first of October I began a year's work with the Rev. H. Roswell Bates, who is minister in charge of the old downtown Spring Street Presbyterian Church in New York. While his assistant I lived at the Church Neighborhood House, 239 Spring St., and much to my delight Arthur Collens and Ralph Melcer both came down and we all became members of the church together. Throughout the year the hard work was much brightened by the occasional visits of members of our class, between thirty and forty of whom spent a night with us. Among those most often welcome were Alec. Craighead and Dave Cory. During the summer with the two other assistants, Princeton men, through the coöperation of the Tribune Fresh Air Committee we aided two hundred children to enjoy a two weeks outing in the country. Among our most interesting experiences were those which occurred during our outdoor services, conducted then for the first time in the hundred years history of the church. Gathered about a little portable organ we held gospel services on the street corner. On some Sunday evenings between two and three hundred men, women and children were attracted by the singing and by the messages of the speakers. Never was there a word of interruption, and before the summer ended, our friends, the policemen, joined in the singing. Thus was shown the appreciation of the practical work we were accomplishing during those hot summer months. In such a work one comes into touch with all classes of society and while there it was convincingly proved to me that the most cultured, the most refined, and enlightened people all over New York are heart and soul interested in just such church and settlement work, and that much of such work could not be done were it not being aided constantly in a thousand ways by well known men and women whose names never appear in print.

"While at Spring Street I did some writing. The Outlook for February 6, 1904, contained 'Wage-Earners' Opinions of the Church' and the Sunday School Times of June 25, 1905, published 'Mary Origgie's Part in the Success.'

"When my year came to an end I entered New York Law School, where I am now looking forward to my LL.B. in June. Along with law I have still been engaged in the work at Spring Street Church and I am now rooming with Ralph Melcer at 244 Spring Street, the new Neighborhood House which was dedicated in October by Jacob Riis.

"I am a member of the Yale Club, of the legal fraternity Delta Chi (am President of the New York Law School Chapter, succeeding Hartjen and being followed in office by Richards) and a member of the Students' Club, in which I have seen the excellent work Frank Gilbert has been doing this year."

Lewis expects to take the New York bar examinations in October 1906 and later the Massachusetts examinations. His address in Springfield, Mass., where he expects to settle permanently, is 746 State St.

Charles Hammond L'Hommedieu (B.A. 1903, LL.B. University of Michigan 1906) was born in Jackson, Mich., May 4, 1880, prepared at the Central High School, Detroit, Mich., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Richard Henry L'Hommedieu, General Manager of the Michigan Central Railroad, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, December 30, 1850, the son of S. S. L'Hommedieu, first President of the C. H. and D. Railroad, and of Alma (Hammond) L'Hommedieu.

His mother, whose maiden name was Angelina Catherwood Marston, was the daughter of Thomas Marston, of Felix & Marston, woodenware merchants of Chicago, Ill., and of Emma (Catherwood) Marston.

L'Hommedieu's Yale relatives include two uncles, Charles H. L'Hommedieu, of the Class of 1870, and Thomas B. Marston (1879), and three cousins: Henry Ledyard (1897), Augustus C. Ledyard (1898), and Hugh Ledyard (1908).

In college he held a First Dispute Junior appointment and a First Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "In the fall after graduation I entered the law department of the University of Michigan and graduated last June with the degree of LL.B. June 21, 1906, I was admitted to the bar and am at present in the office of Russel, Campbell and Bulkley, 604 Union Trust Building, Detroit, Mich.

"My work has kept me somewhat closely confined to the wilds of Michigan, but managed to get down to see the football game at Cambridge last fall and to note the ravages which the pernicious influence of Harvard had made upon the 1903 men who were sojourning there. It was a lamentable spectacle.

"Nothing of any real importance has happened to me since I left Yale. I am still unmarried and have attained to no celebrity, either in politics or out of them. My greatest achievement was undoubtedly being runner-up in the long distance cup competition at the dinner in 1905, where 'Rat' Corning was about to award the cup to me when some officious person told him that Minneapolis was west of Detroit, much to his astonishment. The best feature of those long distance cup competitions is the amount of geographical knowledge which the chairman is forced to acquire. I will close with the statement that I am gradually increasing in circumference along the equator. If any men of our class happen to be wandering through Detroit I shall always be glad to see them."

He lives at 933 Jefferson Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Paul Lindenberg (B.A. 1903) was born in Columbus, Ohio, December 30, 1879, prepared at the Columbus (O.) Latin School and entered college with the Class. He is the son of Charles Herman Lindenberg, President of M. C. Lilley and Company, furniture manufacturers of Columbus, and of Sarah (Robbins) Lindenberg.

Two brothers, C. R. Lindenberg (1895 S.) and Frank H. Lindenberg (1899 S.), and two cousins, George W. Lindenberg (1902) and Otto H. Lindenberg (1899 S.), preceded him at Yale.

In college he held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He was married May 1, 1905, to Miss Helen Tallmadge, daughter of Darius Tallmadge, a hardware merchant of Columbus. A daughter, Elizabeth Lindenberg, was born February 6, 1906.

He writes: "Greetings! Ken Curtis is here in business with me. Best Luck!"

He is General Manager of the Columbus Piano Company, 482 North High Street, Columbus, Ohio. His residence is R.F.D. No. 5, Columbus.

Charles William Littlefield (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Rockland, Maine, December 27, 1880, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Charles Edgar Littlefield, a lawyer and congressman from Rockland since 1899, is the son of the Rev. William H. Littlefield and Mary (Stevens) Littlefield.

His mother, whose maiden name was Clara Nichols Ayer, was the daughter of William Ayer, a farmer.

In college Littlefield was Captain of and played first base on the Freshman nine, was substitute on the University nine, and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment. He was a member of Eta Phi, Delta Kappa Epsilon and Scroll and Key societies.

He writes, December 1905: "I came up here to Cambridge and entered the Law School the next fall after I got through in New Haven in 1903. That summer and the two that followed, 1903-4-5, I have been in the summer hotel business in Castine, Maine, assisting to run a tavern with my cousin, W. A. Walker. Outside of that I have not done anything but be good. I have not been married and consequently have no children. I have already said that I have been doing post graduate work here in law for the past two and a half years, and if fortune favors me as it has up to date, I expect to take the degree of LL.B. in June 1906.

"Unfortunately all my books, pamphlets, etc., have been rejected. While up here I have joined the legal fraternity so called of Phi Delta Phi, I think. I have done nothing in politics and have held no position of honor that I know of. I have taken no journeys to foreign lands. Letters will be sure to reach me if sent to 96 Limerock St., Rockland, Maine. I don't think of anything else about me or anybody else that would interest the Class. I haven't fully decided yet where I will go on leaving the law school, but I think the chances are rather in favor of my settling in New York City."

And later, August 1906: "I received an LL.B. from Harvard in June last and am now in the office of Hughes, Rounds and Schurmann, 96 Broadway, and am living at 80 Washington Square, New York City."

Franklin Lockwood (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City April 3, 1881, prepared at the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Latin School and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Stephen O. Lockwood (Albany Law School 1870), of Crane and Lockwood, was born in Marathon, N. Y., September 29, 1848, the son of the Rev. Daniel T. Lockwood, a Baptist clergyman, and Ann Augusta (Franklin) Lockwood.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth D. Stevens, was the daughter of Edmund Stevens and Mary Jane (Walsh) Stevens.

Lockwood is at present junior law clerk in the office of Crane and Lockwood, 46 Wall St., New York City. His home address is 17 East 57th St.

Arthur Channing Long (B.A. 1903, B.S. Massachusetts Institute of Technology 1905) was born in Sharon, Mass., April 8, 1882, prepared at the Roxbury (Mass.) High School and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Fred Dwight Long, of Long Brothers, Sharon merchants, was born in Sharon January 5, 1857, the son of John Long and Louisa (Packard) Long.

His mother, whose maiden name was Juliette Amelia Gooch, was the daughter of Samuel Gooch and Elizabeth Wales (Dickerman) Gooch.

Dr. Loring B. Packard (Yale 1899) is a relative.

In college Long was a member of Phi Gamma Delta and held an Oration Junior appointment and an Oration Senior appointment. He spent two years at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is now with the Boston Dairy Company, 484 Rutherford Ave., Charlestown, Mass., as chemist and bacteriologist. His permanent address is Sharon, Mass.

Willard Armstrong Lyon (B.A. 1903) was born in Middletown, N. Y., February 10, 1880, prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Charles Torrey Lyon, who died September 18, 1887, was a member of Armstrong and Lyon, Middletown merchants. He was born in Ashford, Conn., May 27, 1846, the son of Willard Lyon and Harriet (Pearl) Lyon.

His mother, whose maiden name was Julia Armstrong, was the daughter of Lewis Armstrong and Ellen A. (Robertson) Armstrong.

In college Lyon held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a First Dispute Senior appointment.

He is at present with the First National Bank of Middletown, N. Y. His home address is 44 East Ave., Middletown, N. Y.

Randolph Lyons (B.A. 1903) was born in New Orleans, La., August 31, 1881, prepared for college at the Taft School, Watertown, Conn., and entered Yale at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Isaac Luria Lyons, of the I. L. Lyons and Company, Limited, wholesale druggists, was born in Charleston, S. C., May 31, 1857, the son of I. C. Lyons, a merchant of Columbia, S. C., and of Louise E. (Hart) Lyons.

His mother, whose maiden name was Eva Jonas, was the daughter of George Jonas and Rosalie (Black) Jonas. Mr. Jonas was President of the Canal Railroad of New Orleans.

Irving Luria Lyons (Yale 1900 S.) is a brother.

In college Lyons was a member of the Dramatic Association, of Kappa Psi, Psi Upsilon and Wolf's Head.

He writes: "After leaving college I came to New Orleans and entered the Tulane Medical School. Last summer I went up to Boston and took some courses in Clinical medicine. Have had no time for politics. Am a member of a number of clubs here."

His address is 2344 St. Charles Ave., New Orleans, La.

John Hart McAlarney was born in Harrisburg, Pa., May 8, 1881, prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., entered college with the Class of 1902 and was a member of 1903 during Freshman year.

His father, Mathias Wilson McAlarney, proprietor of the Harrisburg Publishing Company, died December 5, 1900. He left Bucknell College to go to war, and was Provost Marshal from 1861 to 1865. He was for twelve years Postmaster of Harrisburg. He was born in Mifflingburg, Pa., June 7, 1840, the son of John McAlarney and Catharine (Wilson) McAlarney.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ada Hoffman, was the daughter of Jacob D. Hoffman and Eve (Romberger) Hoffman.

He writes: "In the early part of July 1900 I assumed charge of the Harrisburg Publishing Company under the direction of my father until his death in December of that year, and from then on until April of 1901 took care of the estate's interests in that company. I then received an appointment in the Internal Revenue Service for the 9th District of Pennsylvania but found that there was too much politics mixed up with that game and, not having the age to vote, politics were not entirely interesting. In February of the following year I accepted a position in the traffic department of the Pennsylvania Telephone Company and was afterwards appointed a local manager for the Clearfield, Pa., district. In September 1903 I located with the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company of Pittsburg at their Cambria County plant and enjoyed something over three months strike-breaking and handling the foreign legion until my transfer to their Pittsburg Sales Department in December of that year. J. R. Robinson and K. D. Clark joined the Sales Department in January and with Stirling Bell formed a little coterie of Yale men. In March of 1905 I accepted a position with the Thomas Reese, Jr. Company, Inc., engineers and contractors, to take charge of the financial and business end of their Lebanon plant, and will probably remain here until the first of the year, when I hope to return to Pittsburg.

"Nothing of especial interest to the Class has happened to me. I am neither married nor on my way to it, and there is too much of the 'Wanderlust' in my veins to allow me to settle down for some time to come. And that same restlessness will probably be the means of my getting back to the Class reunion this coming spring (1906). Count me in on anything there is and believe me, that though I was only fortunate to be with 1903 for one year, yet in that time I met many men I am anxious to see again."

His present address is Lebanon, Pa. His home address is 1622 N. Second St., Harrisburg, Pa.

Harvey Childs McClintock (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Pittsburg, Pa., July 16, 1882, prepared at the Shadyside Academy, Pittsburg, and at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Oliver McClintock (Yale 1861), of the Oliver McClintock Company, wholesale carpet merchants of Pittsburg, was born in Pittsburg October 20, 1839, the son of Washington McClintock, a wholesale carpet merchant of Pittsburg, and of Eliza (Thompson) McClintock.

His mother, whose maiden name was Clara Courtney Childs, was the daughter of Harvey Childs, a wholesale boot and shoe merchant of Pittsburg, and of Jane Bailey (Lowrie) Childs.

Besides his father, McClintock's Yale relatives include two brothers, Norman McClintock (1891) and Walter McClintock (1891), a brother-in-law, Thomas Darling (1886), and four uncles, Albert H. Childs (1861), Walter L. McClintock (1862), Frank T. McClintock (1865) and Thompson McClintock (1870).

In college McClintock played fullback on the Freshman eleven, was substitute on the Freshman crew, and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment. He was a member of Kappa Psi, Delta Kappa Epsilon and of the Elihu Club.

He writes, December 1905: "Expect to get an LL.B. from the law department of Harvard University next June, and then start in practicing law in some office in Pittsburg, Pa., in the fall (1906). Expect to take my bar examinations for the State of Pennsylvania in December of 1906. My permanent address is and will be Amberson Avenue, Pittsburg, Pa. While in the law school I have been rooming with the Toby Peckhams (i.e. human and canine) in 3 Winthrop Hall, this hall being the abode of a number of fellows in our class. My father owns a cottage at the Huron Mountain Club, Marquette, Mich., where I expect to spend the summer of 1906, and probably any other vacation which I am able to get in future summers."

Robert Rutherford McCormick (B.A. 1903) was born in Chicago, Ill., July 30, 1880, prepared at the Groton (Mass.) School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Hon. Robert Sanderson McCormick, is a graduate of the University of Virginia and the present United States Ambassador to France. He was Secretary of the United States Legation at London, Ambassador to Austria and Ambassador to Russia. He was born in Virginia in 1850, the son of William McCormick and Mary (Grigsby) McCormick.

His mother, whose maiden name was Catherine Medill, was the daughter of Joseph Medill, of Chicago, and of Catherine (Patrick) Medill.

McCormick's Yale relatives include a brother, Joseph Medill McCormick (1900), and four cousins: R. H. McCormick, Jr. (1900), J. M. Patterson (1901), McCormick Blair (1906) and Chauncey McCormick (1906).

In college he was Treasurer and later President of the University Club. He was on the campaign committees of Kappa Psi and Alpha Delta Phi and was a member of Scroll and Key.

After leaving college he studied law at Northwestern University. In March 1904 he was nominated by the Republican party for Alderman in the Twenty-first Ward of Chicago. The vote in the election was McCormick (Republican) 4,153 and Sheahan (Democrat) 3,571. In November 1905 he was elected President of the Sanitary District of Chicago, the vote being McCormick (Republican) 87,443 and Wenter (Democrat) 79,676.

He writes: "As to my life since graduating from college, which has been neither so interesting nor so successful as you seem to think, if you were to say that I have felt obliged to spend ninety per cent. of my time in saloons and the remaining ten per cent. in bar-rooms, you would about have it correct."

His business address is Security Building and his residence 12 Washington Place, Chicago, Ill.

Earl C. McCulloch (D.D.S. College of Dental and Oral Surgery, New York, 1903) was born in Central Bridge, N. J., July 12, 1878, and prepared at the Gloversville (N. Y.) High School. He entered Yale with the Class, leaving in November 1900 to study dentistry, and graduated first in his class.

His father, Charles McCulloch (M.D. Albany Medical College 1877), died October 5, 1898. He was born in Coeymans, N. Y., in 1845, the son of William C. McCulloch.

His mother, whose maiden name was Antoinette Terwilliger, was the daughter of Christopher V. Terwilliger and Dorothea (Joslin) Terwilliger, who are both living, aged eighty-seven and eighty-three respectively.

A brother, Charles Ramsey McCulloch, is now in Yale, a member of the Class of 1909.

He writes: "I left Yale in November of 1900 and entered a dental college in New York, from which I graduated in 1903. After practicing for two years in New York I removed last summer (1905) to Gloversville, where I am now located."

His address is 161 Bleecker St., Gloversville, N. Y.

*Irving McDonald (B.A. 1903) died November 15, 1903. It is a duty associated with much grief to write of the death of a classmate, but when that classmate has been a lifelong friend and companion the duty becomes a sorrowful one indeed.

Irving McDonald was born in St. Joseph, Mo., November 5, 1881, prepared at the St. Joseph High School and at the Taft School, Watertown, Conn., and entered college with the Class.

His father, John Irving McDonald (Yale 1878), of the R. L. McDonald & Company, wholesale dry goods and manufacturers of men's furnishings of St. Joseph, was born in St. Joseph June 11, 1858, the son of Rufus Lee McDonald and Mary Ann (Wilson) McDonald. Mrs. R. L. McDonald was the daughter of General Robert Wilson, United States Senator from Missouri.

His mother, whose maiden name was Frank Haskell Fanning, was the daughter of Frank Fanning and Sarah (Scott) Fanning.

A great uncle, John Wilson, graduated from Yale in 1847.

Irving McDonald's life in college is more or less familiar to us all. While not a student in the strict sense of the word, he always maintained a high standing in his class and did so with the ease and apparent absence of effort which marks the quick, ready and absorbing mind. When his interest was aroused he showed a wonderful capacity for work and originality of thought. These mental qualities had already begun to assert themselves in his short business career after college and a life full of every promise of success was ended by his sudden death five months after graduation. He died the victim of an unfortunate accident, which left sorrowing his family, friends and the entire community in which he lived.

In his home he was the idol of his father and mother and loved and admired by his brother and sister. To know him was to love him, is the story of his social life. There never was a truer friend or a more genial and pleasant companion. It has been nearly three years since his death, yet among his intimate circle of friends his name is still fresh and his absence a lasting regret. His companionship was always sought, for he was truly a radiating focus of life, good will and happiness. He possessed a kind, generous and singularly unselfish disposition, ever ready to sacrifice his own pleasure for the enjoyment of those he loved. He was brave and honorable in every act; courteous and gentlemanly in all his associations with men. These noble traits of character endeared him to all who knew him and the Class of 1903 together with his many other friends will ever honor and cherish the memory of Irving McDonald.

John Barrow Motter.

At the Triennial Meeting of the Class, June 26, 1906, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased God in His infinite wisdom to remove from among us our beloved friend and classmate, Irving McDonald, be it

Resolved, That his untimely death came as a shock and surpassing grief to his friends, and that in behalf of the Class we hereby desire to convey to his family our keen sorrow and great sense of loss; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family and entered in the records of the Class.

ALFRED H. BILL,
WILLARD A. LYON,
J. R. WAIT,

for the Class of 1903.

James Patrick McDonough (B.A. 1903, M.F. 1905) was born in New Haven, Conn., October 29, 1881, prepared at the Hillhouse High School, New Haven, and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Francis McDonough, a machinist with the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, was born in Hartford, Conn., in 1857, the son of James McDonough and Susan (Munsey) McDonough.

His mother, whose maiden name was Catherine Donnelly, was the daughter of Patrick Donnelly and Mary (Keefe) Donnelly.

McDonough held in college a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "Have attended the Yale Forest School for two years and since graduation have been in the employ of the Chicago Lumber and Coal Company, doing their engineering work, at present at their plant situated in Warren, Ark."

His home address is 38 Hallock St., New Haven, Conn.

Andrew Duncan McIntosh (B.A. Highland University 1899, B.A. Yale 1903) was born in Troy, Kansas, November 14, 1880, the son of Duncan McIntosh of Chicago, Ill. He entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year and graduated with a High Oration Senior appointment. He is now teaching in the Taft School, Watertown, Conn.

David Ritchie McKee, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Washington, D. C., June 6, 1879, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and at the Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, David Ritchie McKee, now retired, for many years Washington Agent of the Associated Press, was born in Wheeling, W. Va., September 17, 1842, the son of Redick McKee and Eliza (Ritchie) McKee.

His mother, whose maiden name was Frances Elizabeth Dunn, was the daughter of William McKee Dunn, M.C., Judge Advocate General, U. S. A., and of Elizabeth (Lanier) Dunn.

McKee's Yale relatives include his grandfather, William McKee Dunn (M.A. 1835), a great uncle, Alexander Lanier (1844), and two brothers, Lanier McKee (1895) and McKee Dunn McKee (1896).

In college he was a member of the Senior Promenade Committee, head Cheer Leader, and Commodore of the Corinthian Yacht Club. He was on the Freshman and Apollo Glee clubs, and was a member of Eta Phi, Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Elihu Club.

He writes: "Although my career has not been one to cause Teddy the Strenuous to single me out from among the other pikers for special distinction, here goes. Immediately after graduation I hied me to the coal regions of Pennsylvania to a burg called Scranton, where I entered the employ of the Lackawanna Railroad in the coal mining department. For one year and a half I was disguised as the human mole in the bowels of the earth, arising winter and summer alike at the bewitching hour of 5:30 A. M. In college I used to think how hard it was to go to chapel at 8:10, but in comparison to this period of day it was a dream of paradise. During the mining period I found my knowledge of geology extremely useful in deciphering the footprints of the many strange animals that lived many years ago. I would not dare to spell any names. Finally I came to the conclusion that my golden future was more or less becoming buried, and having an opportunity to come to Chicago did so. I entered the employ of the Western Steel Car and Foundry Company, a large company manufacturing freight cars. The plant is about thirty miles from Chicago, situated in the middle of the prairie, and a more desolate, God-forsaken place I never saw. However, I went out there and lived and worked in the shops from January until June, doing a little of everything from working on a lathe on the night shift in the machine shop to stuffing waste in journal boxes, at a munificent remuneration of twenty cents an hour, however gaining my object, a detailed knowledge of car construction. In June I was transferred to the city office in the purchasing department and was there until the first of December 1905, when I took a position with the present company, The T. H. Symington Company, Railway Exchange Building, Chicago, in their sales department, handling railway supplies. The present job is the best I have had, as it takes me around the country and does not cause me to be painted to the chair, classed with the countless army of pale-faced clerks. My permanent address is Yale Club, 30 West 44th St., New York City. I am a member of the Saddle and Cycle Club and of the Union Club of Chicago."

His present residence is 30 Walton Place, Chicago, Ill. His home address is 1753 Rhode Island Ave., Washington, D. C.

Cameron Mackenzie (LL.B. New York Law School 1906) was born in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., September 7, 1882, prepared at the Lawrenceville (N. J.) School and entered college with the Class, leaving at the end of Sophomore year.

His father, James Cameron Mackenzie (Lafayette 1878), headmaster of the Lawrenceville School from 1882 to 1899 and since of the Mackenzie School at Dobbs Ferry, was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, August 15, 1852, the son of Alexander Mackenzie, an officer of the Black Watch, and of Katherine (Cameron) Mackenzie.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ella Smith, was the daughter of Richard Smith (insurance), and Sarah (Mills) Smith.

He writes: "I left Yale at the end of Sophomore year and immediately went to work as a reporter on the New York Sun. I remained there two years and in the spring of 1903 set off for Central and South America. For nearly a year I traveled through various republics and upon my return devoted six months or so to marketing the material which I had obtained, though my success was not up to my hopes by any manner of means. Nevertheless I determined upon a newspaper and magazine career and determined by way of training to put in a couple of years at law. Accordingly I registered at the New York Law School. There I met a number of 1903 men, Leonard, Lewis, Melcer, Fitch, etc., and joined the Delta Chi fraternity in which there were several 1903 fellows. Last June I passed the examinations and continued my reading this year. I will finish this June and expect to go on the staff of some New York daily."

And later, August 1906: "I am an LL.B., one of the New York Law School products, and at present am on the telegraph desk of the Evening Sun, 170 Nassau Street, New York City. Address: 'The Benedict,' 80 Washington Sq. East, New York."

Donald McKesson (B.A. 1903) was born June 2, 1881, at Monmouth Beach, N. J., prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, John McKesson, Jr. (College of the City of New York, Class of 1859), of McKesson and Robbins, wholesale druggists of New York City, was born in New York City April 21, 1840, the son of John McKesson, a New York merchant, and of Maria McKesson.

His mother, whose maiden name was Leila Sweetser Forbes, was the daughter of John Elias Forbes, a merchant of New York City, and of Laura S. Forbes.

He writes, March 22, 1906: "My life since graduation has been most uneventful. To take up by paragraphs according to your suggestions:

"1. Residence since leaving college, 247 Fifth Ave., New York (winter); Monmouth Beach, N. J. (summer). I started in the drug business in my father's firm of McKesson and Robbins immediately after graduation and am still with them.

"2. I have not yet been led into matrimony nor have I yet selected names for any of the children I might have, should such honours be thrust upon me.

"3. I have been able to do no post graduate work.

"4. No publications.

"5. I am a resident member of the Yale Club. I was elected an active member of Company K, 7th Regiment, N. G. N. Y., on October 1, 1903, and have done one hundred per cent. of duty with that organization since.

"6. I went to St. Louis for the Fair there, but have scarcely been away from New York City.

"7. Permanent address: 91 Fulton Street, New York City.

"8. Have not had time to get into trouble.

"9. I expect to move my regular residence to 'Roaring Brook Farms', Chappaqua, N. Y., in the course of this or next month. The most excitement the future seems to hold out is turning up at New Haven for Triennial."

Robert Lewis McKnight (B.A. 1903) was born in Springfield, Mass., June 30, 1880, prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered college in September 1899.

His father, John D. McKnight, who died December 20, 1890, was in the real estate business with J. D. and W. H. McKnight of Springfield. He was born in Truxton, N. Y., January 28, 1834, the son of Charles McKnight and Almira (Clapp) McKnight.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Elizabeth Hubbard, was the daughter of Hiram Williams Hubbard and Mary Sloane (Galpin) Hubbard.

S. T. McKnight, Jr., (Yale 1907) is a cousin.

In college McKnight played second base on the Freshman and College nines. He was a member of Eta Phi, Delta Kappa Epsilon and Wolf's Head societies.

Of his doings since graduation he writes: "As far as I can make out the most I have done and the most successfully is being sick. Malaria immediately after college closed until October had me guessing and then a good four months siege of typhoid occupied me until March 1904, when I foolishly started in work too soon at the American Pin Company at Waterbury. In May I had appendicitis and had it picked out, and in November 1904 had an operation of my leg, resulting from the typhoid fever. Left the American Pin Company in April 1905 in poor health and with F. Farrel, Jr., went to Cuba for a short time and then to Fort Hancock, Texas, where I was with Kid Aldrich on his place there—irrigation business—Gratz Dent (1902 S.) also. On my way out stopped over with Walter Sullivan. He was working hard and seemed to be perfectly happy. Returned in the fall of 1905 and since then have been trying to keep well, and have just returned (March 1906) from Cuba and Jamaica. My plans for the future depend upon the state of my health."

His business address is 137½ State St., Springfield, Mass. His home address, Glen Road, Springfield.

Donald Bradford MacLane (B.A. 1903, B.D. Union Theological Séminary 1906) was born in Steubenville, Ohio, January 19, 1882, prepared for college at the Hillhouse High School, New Haven, Conn., and entered in September 1899.

His father, Rev. William Ward MacLane, D.D., (B.A. Blackburn 1871, Ph.D. Yale 1889), is a Congregational clergyman of New Haven. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1846, the son of John McLane and Julia A. (Fisher) McLane.

His mother, whose maiden name was Frances Robinson, was the daughter of William W. Robinson (Yale 1842) and of Frances (Robbins) Robinson.

Besides his grandfather, MacLane's Yale relatives include two brothers, John F. MacLane (1900) and Stanley R. Mac-

Lane (1906), and two cousins, Robbins Anderson (1899) and Howard Robbins (1899).

In college he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and held a Philosophical Oration Junior appointment and a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment, graduating fourth in rank. He divided with Cobb and Howard the Winston Trowbridge Townsend prize in Freshman year and was the Learned Scholar in Senior year.

He writes: "The only item additional is that throughout my Seminary course I have assisted the ministers in the Church of the Sea and Land (Settlement and Presbyterian Church in New York). The summer of 1904 I spent there. The summer of 1905 I preached in a parish in Vermont, East Corinth."

His home address is 33 Howe St., New Haven, Conn.

Henry Coit MacLean (B.A. 1903) was born in Litchfield, Conn., November 15, 1881, prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Rev. Allan McLean (Yale 1865), a Congregational clergyman, died April 21, 1882, in Jacksonville, Fla. He was born in East Granby, Conn., November 17, 1837, the son of the Rev. Neil McLean, of Simsbury, Conn., and of Emiline (Barbour) McLean.

His mother, whose maiden name was Fanny Maria Coit, was the daughter of Henry R. Coit, of Litchfield, and of Frances E. (Olmstead) Coit.

Allan MacLean (Yale 1900) was a brother.

In college MacLean was a member of the Apollo Banjo and Mandolin Club and of the Dramatic Association. He held a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

Since graduation he has been with the United States Express Company in their Correspondence and Claim Department, 49 Broadway, New York City, holding the position of Correspondent and Claim Agent.

He writes: "This letter head will tell you how I have occupied myself since graduation and it has left me very little time for anything else. As you know, I spent the summer after leaving New Haven traveling in Europe, England and Scotland. I got back in October and started to work for the United States Express Company early in November 1903. I am not married and do not expect to be at present. These few facts with a bit of society life account for the past three years."

His business address is 555 West 23d St., New York City. His residence and home address is 101 Park Ave.

Arthur Manierre (B.A. 1903) was born in Evanston, Ill., April 29, 1881, prepared for college at the University School, Chicago, and entered at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, George Manierre (Yale 1868), is a member of the firm of Dibblee & Manierre, real estate, and is a life trustee of the Field Museum and of the Newberry Library of Chicago. He was born in Chicago February 5, 1845, the son of Judge George Manierre and Ann Hamilton (Reid) Manierre.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ann E. Edgerton, was the daughter of Alfred Peck Edgerton, M.C., and of Charlotte (Dixon) Edgerton.

Manierre's Yale relatives include three brothers: Louis Manierre (1901), Alfred Edgerton Manierre (1902) and Francis Edgerton Manierre (1907), and a cousin, Edgar Edgerton Swartwout (1891).

In college he was on the University Gun team and was Secretary and Treasurer of the Gun Club. Since graduation he has been with the Pullman Palace Car Company.

His address is 61 Bellevue Place, Chicago, Ill.

Paul Ford Mann (B.A. 1903) was born in Hartford, Conn., February 12, 1881, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Dr. Matthew Darbyshire Mann (Yale 1867), is a surgeon and is also a professor in the University of Buffalo Medical School. He was born in Utica, N. Y., July 12, 1845, the son of Charles A. Mann, a lawyer of Utica, and Emma (Bagg) Mann.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Pope, was the daughter of Daniel Newhall Pope and Charlotte Sitgreaves (Cox) Pope.

Besides his father, Mann's Yale relatives include four brothers: Arthur S. (1899), Matthew D., Jr. (1906 S.), Allen N. (1908) and Richard L. (1909 S.). Joseph R. Swan (1902) is a first cousin.

In college he was a member of the Senior Promenade Committee and of the Class Picture Committee. He was a member of Hé Boulé, Psi Upsilon and Wolf's Head societies, and graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

After graduation he entered the employ of the Force Food Company of Buffalo, N. Y., manufacturers of cereals. In January 1904 he entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, Mass., where he studied architecture until June 1906. He went abroad just after the Triennial Reunion to continue his studies in Paris, where his address is care the American Express Company. His home address is 37 Allen St., Buffalo, N. Y.

John Marshall (B.A. Bethany College, W. Va., 1902, B.A. Yale 1903, LL.B. West Virginia University 1904) was born in New Cumberland, W. Va., July 28, 1881, and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Oliver S. Marshall (Bethany 1878), is a lawyer and a trustee of Bethany College. He is at present State Senator and from 1899 to 1901 was President of the West Virginia Senate. He is the son of James G. Marshall, a West Virginia lawyer, and of Louise (Miller) Marshall.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Tarr, died in 1887, and was the daughter of Campbell Tarr and Nancy (Hammond) Tarr. He was a delegate to the Richmond Convention, withdrawing with several other Union supporters and later serving as the first Treasurer of West Virginia.

Marshall graduated from Yale with a First Dispute Senior appointment. He was married in Wheeling, W. Va., January 25, 1906, to Miss Rebecca Cooper Paull, daughter of Joseph Fry Paull, President of the Wheeling Stamping Works.

He writes: "After leaving college in June 1903 I attended the Law School of the West Virginia University, receiving the degree of LL.B. in June 1904. After a few months further study in my father's office in New Cumberland, W. Va., I came to Parkersburg, and became associated with Judge Reese Blizzard, United States Attorney for the Northern District of West Virginia. Judge Blizzard's private practice is mainly confined to railroad and corporation law. I am Secretary and Treasurer of the Parkersburg Dispatch-News Company, publisher of the Parkersburg Dispatch-News. This paper is a recent consolidation of the two morning dailies here, and is the leading Republican organ in the State. When I find time I contribute ponderous editorials and have also been writing a West Virginia political letter to Gus Oliver's Sunday Pittsburg Gazette. I am associate counsel with Judge Blizzard for the Cairo and Kanawha Railway Company.

"My home address is 802 Juliana Street; my business address is Federal Building, Parkersburg, West Virginia."

Milton Louis Marshall was born in Auburn, N. Y., August 17, 1880, prepared at the Auburn Academic High School and entered college in September 1899, leaving at the end of Sophomore year to enter business.

His father, Louis Marshall, of L. Marshall and Son, clothiers, was born in Geinsheim, Bavaria, Germany, June 10, 1846, the son of Louis Marshall and Rosa Marshall.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emma Hays, died March 26, 1901, and was the daughter of Abraham Hays and Fanny Hays.

In college Marshall held a First Colloquy Junior appointment.

He writes: "My activities have been confined to one branch—business. At the end of Sophomore year I left college to go into my father's store. It is gratifying to be able to report some measure of success. From a humble start, I have been gradually learning more and more of the business, and my responsibilities have been correspondingly increased. In September last I was admitted to an interest in the firm. The success of the business has shown itself to the public in the shape of a large, finely equipped, up-to-date store which we have recently fitted up and moved into. We now have the finest store in this section of the country and are in a position to handle the largest and best trade in our line.

"As to politics, engagements, marriages, etc., I am compelled to report 'nothing doing.' I feared that the honor of being the father of the 'class boy' would be begrudged by some whom faculty restrictions kept from the competition and so decided not to take advantage of the two years' start I had."

His business address is 131 Genesee St., Auburn, N. Y. His residence is 6 Westlake Ave.

Elmer Brown Mason (B.A. Princeton 1903) was born in Deer Lodge, Mont., September 30, 1877, prepared at the University School, Chicago, Ill., and entered with the Class, leaving at the end of Freshman year, going to Princeton.

He was the son of Roswell Henry Mason, of Chicago, a Civil War veteran and one time Surveyor General of Montana, and of Mary (Brown) Mason.

Mason's Yale relatives include a brother, Roy M. Mason (1902), and "all the other Masons."

After graduating from Princeton he entered the publishing house of Harper and Brothers. He is now a real estate broker located at 35 Nassau St., New York City. His residence is 53 Washington Square, New York. His home address is 25 Walton Place, Chicago, Ill.

Macdonell Mason was born in New York City February 9, 1882, prepared at the Pomfret (Conn.) School and entered with the Class, joining 1904 in Christmas of Sophomore year and leaving Yale in the fall of 1902.

His father, Alfred Bishop Mason (Yale 1871), President of the Cauca Railroad Company, Colombia, was born in Bridgeport, Conn., February 23, 1851, the son of Roswell Mason and Harriet Lavinia (Hopkins) Mason.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Murdoch, was the daughter of Rev. David Murdoch of New Haven, Conn., and of Julia (Porter) Murdoch.

Mason's Yale relatives include an uncle, Henry B. Mason, (1870), and six first cousins: Edward H. Mason (1892), Huntington Mason (1897), Maurice Mason (1901), Norman Mason (1902), Lawrence Mason (1904) and Calhoun Mason, class of 1905.

He writes, April 1906: "1. Left college November 10, 1902. Spent until April 21, 1904, in Mexico as a member of the firm of Mason and Mason, comprised of Alfred Bishop Mason, '71, Edward H. Mason, '92, James R. Trowbridge, '94, and myself. On June 4, 1904, I entered the employ of Courtlandt Babcock and Company, 44 Pine Street, New York, as a bond and note salesman. Left them in August 1905, and sailed for Colombia November 18, 1905. Crossed the continent of South America on a mule, arriving here February 19, 1906, and expect to stay here.

"2. Not married. 3. No P. G. work. 4. Never published anything. 5. No organizations—no politics. 6. Life all spent journeying. All over Mexico and across Colombia since leaving Yale.

"7. Permanent address: care Ferrocavril del Causa, Buenaventura, Colombia, South America.

"8. No other circumstance of any interest to anybody, except that I survived the earthquake of January and February last which killed thousands along this coast.

"9. My plans for the future are of two kinds: (1) Expect to stay here. (2) Hope to get away."

He is Secretary to the President of the Cauca Railroad Company, Buenaventura, Colombia.

Ralph Hill Melcer (B.A. 1903) was born in San Francisco July 4, 1880, prepared at the Thacher School, Nordoff, Cal., and at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college with the Class.

His father, William Melcer (mining), died March 28, 1904. He was born September 2, 1847, and at the time of his death resided in Palo Alto, Cal.

His mother's maiden name was Elizabeth Hughes.

In college Melcer was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and Sigma Xi, and held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a First Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "The fall of 1903 I came to New York to live and commenced work in the comptroller's office of the American Locomotive Company. Remained there till January of 1904, when I left to go into the actuary department of the New York Life Insurance Company. My father's fatal illness in March of that year called me to California, where I stayed till the following fall. Returning then to New York, I decided to study law and entered the New York Law School, where I have been pretty steadily ever since. May get my degree this spring. During the summer of 1905 I helped organize the Frank Hagny Company, contractors, of New York, with whom I am still, to some extent, connected.

"Art Collins roomed with me at 33 West 45th Street when we first came to town, and soon Bill Tyler and Hugh Archbald came to live at the same place. After a month or two Dud Lewis got Art and me to go down to live in the Settlement House at 239 Spring Street, where he was one of the assistants. I have been there ever since except for the trips west. Art left a year ago to go into business in Niagara Falls; and Dud, too, left for a year, but had to come back last fall, at which time we resumed the New Haven partnership. I could tell you a lot about Art, but I don't dare."

And later: "My address from now on will be 1133 Broadway, New York, where I am holding down the job of Vice President and chief slave of Frank Hagny Company, contractors and engineers for heaters and power work."

William George Metzger (B.A. 1903) was born in Logansport, Ind., November 1, 1879, prepared at Georgetown, Washington, D. C., and by private tutor and entered college with the Class.

His father, William George Metzger, was born in Winesburg, Holmes County, Ohio, October 7, 1837, and died June 8, 1897. He was Vice President and Treasurer of the Metzger Linseed Oil Company of Chicago and Toledo. He was the son of John Frederick Metzger and Christina Magdalene (Smith) Metzger.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sophia Cecilia McCabe, was the daughter of John McCabe and Sophia (Jennings) McCabe.

He writes: "I have spent my time since graduation in Fairmont, West Virginia, with the Fairmont Coal Company, learning how to mine and handle bituminous coal. I haven't very much time for anything else but work."

He is shipping clerk and timekeeper for the Fairmont Mining Machinery Company.

His business address is Box 637, Fairmont, W. Va. His residence is 617 Fairmont Ave.

Henry Edmund Mills (B.A. 1903) was born in Columbus, Ohio, September 11, 1879, prepared at the Columbus Central High School and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Charles Wilmer Mills, died September 14, 1886, the son of Henry Z. Mills and Cinthia (Lamb) Mills.

His mother, whose maiden name was Evalena May Gares, was the daughter of Edmund Gares.

In college Mills held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and graduated with a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since leaving college I have lived for the most part at Columbus, Ohio, my home town. For a short time I varied the monotony by existing in a small mining town in southeastern Ohio called Santoy. On starting in real work I connected myself with the New England Coal Company and the Northern Fuel Company. These companies operate mines in the bituminous coal fields of Ohio. Started in with these people in October 1903 and have been with them ever since. Our offices are at Columbus, Ohio.

"In religious way have done nothing. Just continued along in the church of my fathers, Presbyterian. Some people thought I should be made to do something or at least have that appearance, so I was chosen a deacon and I am still serving in that capacity.

"Immediately upon leaving college I took a three months' trip abroad, visiting England, Scotland, Belgium, Holland, France, Switzerland, Italy and Germany. Of course to cover all this ground I had to hasten continually and therefore did not see any of these countries as thoroughly as I would have liked to. One of the most pleasant parts of my trip was the frequent meeting with Yale men, especially men of my own class. I met Condict, Sargent, James and DuPuy in London, in Paris ran across Jeff. Gaines, Jones, and Brady, and in Dresden met Harold Clark. These are but a few of those whom I had the good luck to meet.

"All mail sent to 120 Woodland Avenue, Columbus, Ohio, will probably reach me sooner or later. My present address is 801 Wyandotte Building, Columbus, Ohio."

James Bradford Minor (B.A. 1903) was born in Covington, Kentucky, May 26, 1882, prepared at the Franklin School, Cincinnati, Ohio, and entered college with the Class.

His father, James Ramsey Minor, of The Minor and Dixon Company, wholesale grocery merchants of Covington, was born in Cincinnati in 1849, the son of Thomas H. Minor, a wholesale grocer of Cincinnati, and of Rebecca (Baldrige) Minor.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Elizabeth Ernst, was the daughter of William Ernst, a banker and railroad official, and of Sarah (Butler) Ernst.

A brother, William Ernst Minor, graduated from Yale in 1900.

In college Minor was the Coxswain of the University Four-Oar crew in 1902, Coxswain of the University crew in 1903 and Coxswain of the College crew at Annapolis in 1903. He was a member of Kappa Psi, Delta Kappa Epsilon and Wolf's Head societies.

He writes: I have been sticking close to Covington, Kentucky, since I left college, with the exception of a four months trip out west in Utah and Wyoming. Have been with my father in the wholesale grocery business, The Minor and Dixon Company, 212-214 Vine Street, Cincinnati, acting as sales manager and one of the directors."

He lives at 2nd and Gurrard Sts., Covington, Ky.

Douglas Maxwell Moffat (B.A. 1903, M.A. 1904) was born November 16, 1881, in Stanhope, N. J., prepared at Lawrenceville (N. J.) School and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Edward Stewart Moffat (B.A. Princeton 1863, M.M.E. Columbia 1868), died August 4, 1893. He was Adjunct Professor of Mining and Metallurgy in Lafayette College from 1868 to 1870 and at the time of his death President of the Lackawanna Iron and Steel Company, Scranton, Pa. He was the son of James Clement Moffat, a professor of the Princeton Theological Seminary, and of Ellen (Stewart) Moffat.

His mother, whose maiden name was Anna Robeson M'Cartney, was the daughter of Judge Washington M'Cartney, Professor of Mathematics and Mental and Moral Philosophy at Lafayette and of Mathematics and Modern Languages at Jefferson College, and of Mary Elizabeth (Maxwell) M'Cartney.

In college Moffat won in Junior year a Henry James Ten Eyck third prize, won a Townsend Premium in Senior year, and held an Oration Junior appointment and a High Oration Senior appointment. He was on the track team, winning third place in the half mile run in both the Princeton and Harvard games in 1903. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Chi Delta Theta, and Delta Kappa Epsilon.

He writes: "The first year after leaving college, 1903-04, I studied in the English department of the Yale Graduate School on the Scott-Hurtt Fellowship. In 1904 I received an M.A. degree for this work. During this year I was a member of the track team. The second year, 1904-05, I studied at the Harvard Law School. I have done this also the third year, so far.

"As for 'articles published', I have had two verses published: 'The American College' in The Reader Magazine for August 1905, and 'St. Cecilia' in The Reader Magazine for January 1906.

"My permanent address is 306 Quincy Ave., Scranton, Pa. After finishing at the Harvard Law School I expect to practice law in Scranton."

Walter Chafey Moodie (B.A. 1903) was born in Los Gatos, Cal., May 21, 1882, prepared at the St. Johnsbury (Vt.) Academy, and entered college with the Class.

His father, Rev. Royal Corban Moodie (Yale 1878), is a Congregational clergyman. He was born in Craftsbury, Vt., June 19, 1852, the son of Robert Moodie and Augusta Phebe (Blanchard) Moodie.

His mother, whose maiden name was Carrie Augusta Root, was the daughter of Moses Root and Mary Ann (Blanchard) Root.

In college Moodie held a Dissertation Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment.

His present address is West Tisbury, Mass.

Charles Arthur Moore, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Lynn, Mass., June 23, 1880, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered college with the Class of 1902, joining 1903 at the beginning of Sophomore year.

His father, Charles Arthur Moore, President of Manning, Maxwell and Moore, machinery and machinists supplies of New York, was born in West Sparta, Livingston County, N. Y., September 19, 1845, the son of William Ropes Moore, a farmer of Livingston County, N. Y., and of Caroline (Van Nest) Moore.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Campbell, was the daughter of John Kyse Campbell, a farmer of Norwalk, Ohio, and of Elizabeth (Sheffield) Campbell.

A sister married Colby Mitchell Chester, Jr. (Yale 1897 S.).

In college Moore was a member of Eta Phi, Psi Upsilon and of the Elihu Club. Since graduation he has been with Manning, Maxwell and Moore, machinery and machinists supplies, 85 Liberty St., New York, holding now the position of Secretary. His residence is 512 Fifth Ave., New York.

Frank Wood Moore (B.A. 1903) was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., August 21, 1881, prepared at the Pingrey School, Elizabeth, N. J., and at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Robert Martin Moore, who died February 12, 1896, was born in Cape Town, South Africa, March 17, 1840, the son of Benjamin Moore.

His mother, whose maiden name was Virginia LaFayette McDonald, was the daughter of William McDonald and Mary E. (Willis) McDonald.

Two cousins, Rev. George H. Bottome (1883) and Harry H. Bottome (1893), are Yale graduates.

In college Moore was a member of the University Glee Club for the four years, being Leader for one year, and was President of the Freshman Glee Club. He was Recording Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and a Class Deacon. He was also President of the Freshman Baseball Association, Chairman of the Cap and Gown Committee, a member of Eta Phi, Alpha Delta Phi and Skull and Bones societies and held a Second Colloquy Junior and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: "The only exciting thing that has happened was Chan. Hamlin's wedding. I am neither engaged nor married, nor are there any prospects along that line. I have spent a year studying in Auburn, a year in New Haven as Secretary of Dwight Hall, and am now serving my second year at Auburn.

"As far as I can see the rest of the Class are getting married as quickly as their girls' parents can support them and doing their best to refute the race suicide theory. Those who are not married mostly are studying law.

"The only plan I have in mind is to be in New Haven bright and early for Triennial and stay there till the last bell rings.

"My permanent address is 214 Edgar Place, Elizabeth, N. J. Mail will be forwarded from there."

Daniel Harris Morgan (B.A. 1903) was born in Springfield, Mass., January 14, 1879, prepared at The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and entered college with the Class.

His father, the late Elisha Morgan, was born in Northfield, Mass., September 7, 1834, the son of Elisha Morgan. He was connected with the Morgan Envelope Company and later President of the American Writing Paper Company.

His mother's maiden name was Sarah Grant.

In college Morgan was a member of Psi Upsilon and of the Pundits. Alfred Leeds (Yale 1887) is a brother-in-law.

Since graduation he has been taking care of real estate and acting as executor of his father's estate, dipping also into politics.

His business address is 53 Hillman St. and his residence is 273 State St., Springfield, Mass.

John Barrow Motter (B.A. 1903) was born in St. Joseph, Mo., September 7, 1881, prepared at the St. Joseph High School and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Joshua Motter, of the Toothe, Wheeler and Motter Mercantile Company, was born November 1, 1846, in Williamsport, Md., the son of Isaac Motter, a farmer of Washington County, Md., and of Mary (Snively) Motter.

His mother, whose maiden name was Kate Augusta Barrow, was the daughter of John E. Barrow, a merchant and stock broker of New York City, and of Katherine (Gingrey) Barrow. A brother, Samuel Isaac Motter (Yale 1896), and a cousin, E. C. Smith (1886), are relatives.

In college Motter was Captain of the Gun team and held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a First Dispute Senior appointment.

For the first two years after graduation he was with the National Bank of St. Joseph. In the fall of 1905 he started in with the Toothe, Wheeler and Motter Mercantile Company, wholesale dry goods merchants of St. Joseph. He lives at 10th and Charles Sts., St. Joseph, Mo.

John Richard Moulton (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Salem, Mass., September 27, 1881, prepared at the Salem High School and entered in September 1899.

His father, Henry Percy Moulton (Amherst 1865), died September 5, 1904. He was United States District Attorney for Massachusetts, and was born in North Beverly, Mass., November 27, 1844, the son of Augustus Moulton and Augusta (Pressey) Moulton.

His mother, whose maiden name was Harriet Ellen Stocker, was the daughter of John Stocker and Nancy Goodrich (Foster) Stocker.

Moulton has been studying law at Harvard for the past three years and is spending the summer of 1906 in Europe. His address is 10 Mall St., Salem, Mass.

Frank Burroughs Mulford was born in East Orange, N. J., June 13, 1880, prepared for college at the Kansas City (Mo.) High School, and entered at the beginning of Freshman year, leaving college during the fall of 1900.

His father, Timothy Mulford, Manager of the Goodyear Rubber Company, was born in East Orange, N. J., January 26, 1853, the son of Timothy Whitfield Mulford, a wagon manufacturer of East Orange, and of Phoebe Louise (Baldwin) Mulford.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Frances Burroughs, was the daughter of Thomas Burroughs, a contractor of Brooklyn, N. Y., and of Emma Louise (Bartholomew) Burroughs.

Two brothers, Timothy Whitfield Mulford (1901) and George Herbert Mulford (1904), graduated from Yale.

He writes, December 11, 1905: "It sounds pretty good to hear about reunion, and unless something unforeseen turns up yours truly will be in New Haven next summer (1906) to sing a few songs, etc. It is pretty hard to live out here and read about the Class dinners held in New York and not be able to attend, so you see I have a good deal to make up. I have put in six days a week since January 1, 1901, with the Goodyear Rubber Company and don't own it yet. Haven't married or had any chance and prospects are not very bright in that line. Yale was enough for me, so didn't try any further.

"Yale Alumni Association and the Missouri Hunt and Polo Club are my chief forms of recreation. I have stayed pretty close to my own fireside. Letters will reach me care Goodyear Rubber Company, Kansas City, Mo.

"Brink and I have reunions once in a while, especially when Chap Stevens comes this way. It is pretty hard to write any startling news from this part of the country except train robberies and Indian massacres and they won't interest the Class, I am afraid."

He is a salesman with the Goodyear Rubber Company. He lives at 1421 Broadway, Kansas City, Mo.

Arthur Daniel Mullen (B.A. 1903) was born in New Haven, Conn., August 17, 1880, prepared at the Hillhouse High School, New Haven, and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, John Mullen, a member of the New Haven Fire Department, was born in New Haven, September 23, 1842, the son of Francis Mullen and Margaret A. (Cahill) Mullen.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Anna O'Keefe, was the daughter of Edmund O'Keefe and Margaret Morrison O'Keefe.

In college Mullen held an Oration Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment.

After graduation he entered the employ of the Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford as Cashier of their branch office in Columbus, Ohio. September 27, 1905, he took a position in the office of Sargent and Company, hardware manufacturers of New Haven, and remained there about ten months, when he returned to the insurance business. His address is 711 Howard Ave., New Haven, Conn.

Walter Starbuck Munson was born in Utica, N. Y., April 14, 1879, prepared for college at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered at the beginning of Freshman year, joining 1904 in the fall of 1900, and leaving college in October 1902.

His father, Alfred Hooper Munson of Munson Brothers Company, mill supplies, Utica, is the son of Edmund Munson, a foundryman and engineer of Utica.

His mother, whose maiden name was Maria Antoinette Starbuck, was the daughter of George H. Starbuck, a foundryman and engineer of Troy, N. Y., and of Emeline (Watson) Starbuck.

In college Munson was a member of Eta Phi and Alpha Delta Phi.

Since leaving college he has been with Munson Brothers

Company, mill supplies. He lives at 36 Brinckerhoff Ave., Utica, N. Y.

Ralph Howard Nesmith (B.A. 1903) was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., August 7, 1880, prepared at the Polytechnic Institute, Brooklyn, and entered college with the Class.

His father, Henry Edwin Nesmith, Jr., of the Nesmith and Constantine Company, was born in Brooklyn, the son of Henry Edwin Nesmith and Sarah (Macomber) Nesmith.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Mann Macomber, was the daughter of James Brown Macomber and Sarah (Mann) Macomber.

In college Nesmith was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon, and held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He is now Assistant Marine Engine and Boiler Draughtsman in the League Island Navy Yard. His business address is Steam Engineering Department, Navy Yard, League Island, Pa. His residence is 4808 Chester Ave., Philadelphia, Pa. His home address is 265 Washington Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Almer Mayo Newhall (B.A. 1903) was born in San Francisco, Cal., May 14, 1881, prepared at the Mt. Tamalpais Military Academy, and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Edwin White Newhall, of H. M. Newhall and Company, was born in San Francisco May 7, 1856, the son of Henry Mayo Newhall and Sarah Ann (White) Newhall.

His mother, whose maiden name was Fanny Sillman Hall, died May 17, 1881. She was the daughter of Almer Ives Hall and Mary Amelia (Hall) Hall.

Two uncles, Henry Gregory Newhall, a member of the Class of 1875 S., and William Mayo Newhall (1876 S.), attended Yale.

In college Newhall was a member of Phi Gamma Delta, and graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "After our Commencement in 1903 my brother and I took a ten weeks chase about Europe. Made a very hurried but very enjoyable trip through France, Germany, Prussia, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, England and Scotland. We made a fast trip, stopping only in the larger cities except in Italy and Switzerland, where we stopped at several of the lakes for a bit. Our object was to cover all the ground we could before my brother had to return to college that fall, and we think we did pretty well. On our return I stayed a couple of weeks with my relatives in the East and then returned to San Francisco. Shortly after I got home we moved our residence from San Rafael, where we had lived several years, to our city home. Late in November 1903 I was offered the position of Cashier of our firm, H. M. Newhall & Company (my uncle and father members), shipping, commission, importing, insurance, fire and marine, etc., etc. This I held until about a year ago (May 1905). We got a new cashier and I was transferred to temporary manager of the marine insurance while the manager went to London to see the home companies. Upon his return (August 1905) the private secretary resigned and I temporarily took his place. This lasted until nearly January before we could get another man trained to that position. On the first of the year I was given charge of the Spice Import Department and this has kept me more than busy ever since. The several changes I have made during the past year have been of great benefit to me, but have surely kept me jumping. The experience has helped me greatly, and I consider that I have been fortunate in having the opportunity to make these changes and learn the different ends of the business.

"You undoubtedly have taken considerable interest in the late fire in our city, and read many graphic accounts of the worst side of the troubles. That side is the only one they put in the papers. We have all had our losses, and many severe, but in point of loss of life the disaster has been nothing to what it might have been if the earthquake had occurred a few hours earlier or later. The people here are putting their shoulders to the wheel and before long things will be the same as before the 'flood.' Financially many people have been heavy losers, but there has been no panic or trouble of any kind here. Most of the local securities have dropped, but very little, and some not at all. Property values are higher than ever to-day. In fact everything here is in a most flourishing condition. Our family, although hit severely, are in many ways much more fortunate than many of our friends. While together with the rest our office was burned to the ground, all the company's books and papers escaped with only a severe scorching. Since the fire we have been extremely busy getting things straightened out and getting our new temporary building put up. It has been so difficult to get around that it takes us twice as long to accomplish half as much. It has been my plan and hope for three years to be with you and the fellows to-morrow (June 26, 1906), but earthquakes and fate have been against me this time. However, in the course of another three years I hope to have my work so arranged that I can get away. I sent Gus Oliver my contribution and regrets some time since, but as much as I had hoped it has been impossible for me to get there.

"My permanent address will be after July 1, 1906, 114 Battery Street, San Francisco, Cal."

Paul Sprague Ney (B.A. 1904) was born in Hartford, Conn., August 13, 1880, prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered college in September 1899, leaving at Christmas to return again with the Class of 1904.

His father, John Marshall Ney, senior member of the J. M. Ney and Company, manufacturers of Hartford, was born in Lorraine, France, the son of John Ney.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Clarke, died January 8, 1901.

In college Ney was a member of the College Choir, 1904 Freshman Glee Club, was Leader of the Apollo Glee Club and on the University Glee Club. He is a member of the Class of 1904 Triennial Committee and of Psi Upsilon and Wolf's Head societies.

He is at present junior member of J. M. Ney and Company, manufacturers in gold and silver, etc., 265 Asylum St., Hartford, Conn. He lives at 1015 Asylum Ave., Hartford.

James Knight Nichols (B.A. 1903) was born in Milwaukee, Wis., March 28, 1881, prepared at the Lawrenceville (N. J.) School and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Rev. Gideon Parsons Nichols (Union College 1860), was born in Windsor, Mass., in 1837, the son of James Nichols, a farmer.

His mother's maiden name was Delia Briggs Nichols. She was the daughter of a clergyman who served as chaplain in the Civil War.

Two brothers, Robert H. Nichols (1894) and Henry J. Nichols (1899), are Yale graduates.

In college Nichols was a member of the Freshman Glee Club, editor of the Yale Daily News and a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

He writes: "I was employed by the Hartford Courant of Hartford, Conn., from the Sunday after Commencement until September 1, 1905. I left there to study law at Harvard, where I hope to be allowed to remain and graduate (in 1908) and add a bachelor of laws degree to the long list of trophies won by 1903 from Harvard, excluding the freshman football game.

"My permanent address is 95 Carroll Street, Binghamton, N. Y."

William Penn Nixon, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Chicago, Ill., December 17, 1881, prepared at the Chicago Latin School and entered with the Class.

His father, William Penn Nixon (Farmers' College, Richmond, Ind., 1855, LL.B. University of Pennsylvania 1857), is United States Collector of Customs at Chicago. He was born in Fountain City, Ind., in March 1832, the son of Samuel Hubbard Nixon and Hannah (Hubbard) Nixon.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Elizabeth Duffield, was the daughter of Charles Duffield, a porkpacker of Louisville and Chicago, and of Sarah Elizabeth (Cloon) Duffield.

Nixon held in college an Oration Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

In the fall of 1903 he entered the Northwestern University Law School, remaining there four months. He is now a traveling salesman of Marshall, Field and Company, wholesale dry goods, 200 Adams St., Chicago. He lives at 177 Lake View Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Alfred Trecartin Ogden (B.A. 1903) was born July 18, 1880, in Brooklyn, N. Y., prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Alfred Ogden, of the Ogden Realty Company of New York, was born in England July 31, 1848, the son of John Ogden and Catherine (Robinson) Ogden.

His mother, whose maiden name was Kate Trecartin, was the daughter of John Trecartin and Henrietta (Hall) Trecartin.

In college Ogden was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon, and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes, April 1906: "I put down my occupation on the class statistics, ranching, as that was what I was doing at the time I received your letter. I am now giving all my time to the real estate work. Since leaving college I have been in Texas most of the time on the ranch, with the exception of about eight months when I was working with Lawrence and Company, New York City, commission merchants. I am not married but have hopes. Of course you know I have not done any post-graduate work; I never did any work in that line. I have written several letters but no books or pamphlets. I am afraid I have been a little lax in my religious work. As for journeys, I have had two very disagreeable trips to Texas, but have not been out of this country.

"You can address me at 41 Park Row or 80 Washington Square, New York City. I have a few plans for the future but they are not for publication as yet."

Augustus Kountze Oliver (B.A. 1903) was born in Pittsburg, Pa., July 19, 1881, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and at the Shadyside Academy, Pittsburg, and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, George Tener Oliver (Bethany College, W. Va., 1868), was born in Ireland, the son of Henry William Oliver and Margaret (Brown) Oliver.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Dorothea Kountze, was the daughter of Christian Kountze and Margaret (Zerby) Kountze.

Oliver's Yale relatives include a brother, George Sturges Oliver (1899), and thirteen first cousins: John C. Oliver (1885 S.), Henry Oliver (1885 S.), Charles Oliver (1907), Daniel Leet Oliver (1907 S.), Berne H. Evans (1899), Harold Kountze (1907), W. DeLancy Kountze (1899), Barclay W.

Kountze (1897 S.), Charles B. Berger (1888 S.), George B. Berger (1888 S.), William B. Berger (1893 S.), W. F. B. Berger (1899), and George B. Berger (1908).

In college he was a member of the Hockey team, editor of Yale Record, a Class Historian, Chairman of the Triennial Committee, a member of Kappa Psi, Psi Upsilon and Wolf's Head, and held a First Colloquy Junior and the same Senior appointment.

He writes, November 29, 1905: "In accordance with your request that your 'fellow-classmates' write you as soon as possible, I make haste to put pen to paper and, through you, to inform the rest of the anxiously-awaiting students of the noble Class how I have been behaving since I crawled from the shade of the elms into the fierce glare of sunlight which all those who enter into the arena of this hard, cold world must encounter. So far, however, I have not been 'investigated'.

"Answering your questions in order: (1) I left college to the best of my recollection late in June 1903 and traveled for several months in Europe with Bill Frew, Harry Potter, Shirley Fulton, et al. Returning to the paternal roof-tree at 1044 South Negley Avenue, Pittsburg, Pa., I ensconced myself beneath it, and sallied forth occasionally to look for a job. Finally (and here 'modesty' causes me to say that it was probably because my father owned the paper) I was hired at what seemed to me to be an extremely low salary as a reporter on the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph. After reporting for somewhat over a year I went to work in the composing room, then for a time acted as assistant night editor on the Pittsburg Gazette, an affiliated morning newspaper. Last June the proprietors of the paper (my father and brother), recognizing my real worth, put me in the business office, where, it was expected, I could do less actual harm than in any other position. Upon my youthful shoulders were placed the titles of 'Secretary' of the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph and 'Assistant Secretary' of the Pittsburg Gazette. And here I am at present, waiting patiently for the Triennial Reunion.

"(2) Married? Unfortunately no, but you never can tell, though just at present the outlook is discouraging.

"(3) No post-graduate work of any kind.

"(4) My literary ability has been confined almost entirely to writing up ministers' meetings and golden weddings for the daily paper, and I have not even contemplated having these outbursts gathered into book form.

"(5) Member of Yale Club, New York City, Pittsburg Golf Club, Allegheny Country Club, University Club, Pittsburg, Duquesne Club, Pittsburg.

"(6) In Europe three months, summer of 1903. West Indies one month, winter of 1905.

"(7) Permanent address: Care Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph, Pittsburg, Pa.

"(8) As my attention to business since graduation has been all-absorbing (though Bill Frew and Don Thompson may laugh) I consider Question No. 1 a sufficient answer to this query. I am not acquainted with any fellow-classmates who are overburdened with modesty.

"(9) I would answer this but it might upset the stock market."

And later, August 1906: "Since I wrote my Triennial letter to you I have again changed my job. If you have me in type it isn't worth while changing what you have, but I am now Secretary of the Pittsburg Gazette-Times, Secretary of the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph and Advertising Manager of the Gazette-Times."

His residence is South Negley Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.

Daniel Lawrence Joseph O'Neill (B.A. 1903, LL.B. 1905) was born in East Hartford, Conn., July 29, 1879, prepared at the East Hartford High School and at the Hartford Public High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Francis O'Neill, a moulder, tobacco raiser and farmer of East Hartford, was born in County Leitrim, Ireland, May 10, 1838, the son of Daniel L. O'Neill and Susan J. Cook O'Neill.

His mother, whose maiden name was Anne McGuirl, was the daughter of Hugh McGuirl and Mary (Foley) McGuirl.

In college O'Neill held an Oration Junior appointment and an Oration Senior appointment.

Since graduation he studied law at Yale for two years and is at present an Investigator and Adjuster of the Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn. His residence is Hockanum, Conn.

Frederick Lorraine Orlady was born in Huntingdon, Pa., February 27, 1880, prepared for college at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and by private tutor, and entered with the Class, leaving during Freshman year.

His father, George Boal Orlady, a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College, Pennsylvania State College and of the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, has been Judge of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania since 1895. He was born in Petersburg, Pa., February 22, 1850, the son of Henry Martin Orlady, M.D., a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, and of Martha Caldwell (Boal) Orlady.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Irvin Thompson, was the daughter of Hardman Phillips Thompson, M.D., a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, and of Martha (Irvin) Thompson.

He writes: "The years since I left college have been mostly spent on the outside of life. 1900 was spent in Arizona, traveling about. 1901 was spent in the study of the law. 1902 and 1903 were spent in New Mexico in charge of the construction work of the Santa Fe Central Railroad, I being in the employ of the Pennsylvania Development Company. Part of 1903 and 1904 was with H. S. Kerbaugh on railroad construction. 1904 was spent in the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania, where I took a special course. 1905 finds me in an office in Pittsburg: Dalzell, Scott and Gordon, 450 Fourth Avenue, where I have the pleasure of having Billy Frew for a fellow student.

"Huntingdon, Pa., is my permanent address, the old family home is there, and letters will always be forwarded. My only affiliations with organizations are Mount Moriah Lodge of Masons, Standing Stone Chapter of Masons and Delta Chi, legal fraternity. My plans now are centered upon becoming a member of the Allegheny County bar."

His present address is 6016 Walnut St., Pittsburg, Pa.

William Robert Orthwein (B.A. 1903, LL.B. St. Louis Law School 1905) was born in St. Louis, Mo., October 16, 1881, prepared at the Smith Academy, St. Louis, and entered college at the beginning of the Freshman year.

His father, William David Orthwein, President of the Kinlock Telephone Company and of the William D. Orthwein Grain Company, was born in Stuttgart, Wurtemberg, Germany, February 9, 1841, the son of Frederick Charles Orthwein and Louise (Lidle) Orthwein.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emily Thummler, was the daughter of Trangoth Thummler and Sophia (Schlueter) Thummler.

In college Orthwein was a member of the Swimming team, Water Polo team, College Baseball team and of the Dramatic Association, and held a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He was married in St. Louis December 27, 1905, to Miss Nina Kent Baldwin, daughter of Kent Kane Baldwin of the W. B. Bingham Hardware Company, Cleveland, Ohio.

He writes: "After graduating in 1903 I came back to St. Louis, attended the St. Louis Law School for two years and graduated in June 1905 as the President of my class. I am now practicing with the firm of Blodgett and Davis. I have also taken quite an interest in our big athletic club here, known as the Missouri Athletic Club, and have had the honor to be elected to its Board of Governors for a three-year term. I am also chairman of its athletic and swimming committee.

"While in Law School I invested a bit of money and engaged in the automobile business. We have the St. Louis agency for the 'Packard', 'Franklin', 'Stevens Duryea' cars, and I am pleased to say are doing very well. In company with E. P. Hellmuth, Harvard 1904, I got up and edited a history and complete resume of our athletic club in the shape of a year book of two hundred pages this spring. My permanent address, where mail will surely be forwarded to me, is 15 Portland Place, St. Louis, Mo. You see I have dabbled in pretty much everything since leaving college."

Erling Cornelius Ostby (B.A. 1903) was born in Providence, R. I., October 13, 1880, prepared at the Providence English and Classical School and at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Engelhardt C. Ostby, of the Ostby and Barton Company, manufacturing jewelers, of Providence, was born in Christiania, Norway, the son of Christian Ostby, a manufacturer of Norway, and of Josephine D. (Paulson) Ostby.

His mother, whose maiden name was Lizzie Macy Webster, died November 26, 1899. She was the daughter of Charles A. Webster, a merchant of Providence, and of Sarah B. (Arnold) Webster.

In college Ostby was a member of the University Hockey team and of Alpha Delta Phi.

He is with the firm of Ostby and Barton Company, manufacturing jewelers, in their New York office at 13 Maiden Lane, New York City. His residence is the Yale Club, 30 West 44th St., New York City. His home address is 61 Cooke St., Providence, R. I.

George Grant Parkhurst was born in Oswego, N. Y., October 12, 1881, prepared at The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and entered college in September 1899, leaving in June 1900. He later returned and completed Sophomore year with the Class of 1906.

He is the son of George W. Parkhurst of Buffalo, N. Y.

He is at present living in Buffalo at 560 Delaware Ave.

George Henry Parr was born in Albany, N. Y., April 25, 1880, prepared at the Albany Academy and entered college with the Class, leaving during Sophomore year.

His father, Henry Parr, proprietor of the Abbey Hotel, Glenmont, was born in Grand Duchy Hesse Darmstadt, June 8, 1848, the son of Heinrich Parr, a soldier and farmer, and of Marie (Rohledder) Parr.

His mother, whose maiden name was Johanna Francis Wächter, was the daughter of John Wächter, a Civil War veteran and proprietor of the National Hotel, Albany, and of Katherine (Wollensack) Wächter.

He writes: "After leaving Yale I attended the Albany Law School for one year, accepting the kindness of Mr. Lewis R. Parker to use his books and remain in his office during that period. Then once more returned to the labors of my earliest attempts in the business of my father.

"I am not married but have determined to produce second class animals, i. e. horses, cattle, etc., in many instances more useful and easier to keep than a wife, by the looks of published divorces. No engine of advancement is moving with the rate that my bodily fuel will produce steam for under the direction of my mind as the throttle. I am enrolled as a member of Jay Chapter law fraternity Phi Delta Phi."

His address is Glenmont, Albany, N. Y.

Charles Seymour Parsons (B.A. 1903) was born in Akron, Ohio, February 4, 1882, prepared for college at the Rectory School, New Milford, Conn., and at the Western Reserve Academy, Hudson, Ohio, and entered with the Class.

His father, William Cheney Parsons (Western Reserve College 1863), a manufacturer of Rutland, Vt., was born in Brimfield, Portage County, Ohio, February 19, 1841, the son of Edward Parsons, a farmer of Brimfield, and of Clementina (Janes) Parsons.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Day Seymour, was the daughter of Nathan Perkins Seymour, a professor of Latin and Greek in Western Reserve College, and of Elizabeth (Day) Seymour.

Parsons' Yale relatives include a brother, William Edward Parsons (1895), a grandfather, Nathan Perkins Seymour (1834), a great uncle, Thomas Mills Day (1837), and several cousins, Thomas Mills Day, Jr. (1886), Arthur Pomeroy Day (1890), Clive Day (1892), and Charles Seymour (1908).

In college he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, winning a Benjamin F. Barge Mathematical first prize in Sophomore year. He held a High Oration Junior appointment and a High Oration Senior appointment and in Senior year was a member of the University Whist team.

He writes: "During my Senior year at New Haven I decided to make mechanical engineering my profession. Through Professor Richards, the head of that department in Sheff., I obtained a position in the draughting room of the Riter-Conley Manufacturing Company of Pittsburg, and about the middle of July 1903 I left Connecticut to take up my work. While with this concern I was in their Gas Department and obtained a good knowledge of the construction and equipment of a modern gas plant. I also grew familiar with the details of the work in a large draughting room.

"In March 1904 through Jimmy Putnam I heard of an opening with the Colonial Steel Company, also of this city, at their plant twenty-five miles down the Ohio. Their master mechanic was looking for a draughtsman and after talking the work over with him I decided to accept the position. My work was right out in the mill and gave me a very good chance to get the practical experience that I wanted. Any time when I was not busy with my own work I spent in learning what I could about the manufacture of crucible steel, which was their specialty. Being in personal contact with the master mechanic a good deal of the time, I made myself familiar with his work, and when, after I had been there a year, he was laid up for a month as the result of an accident, I was able to look after a large part of his work during his absence. While working with the Colonial Steel Company, I lived at New Brighton, a town of about 10,000, and had the distinction of being the only Yale man there although there were several others in other parts of the county. In August 1905 I left and took a position with the A. Garrison Foundry Company of the South Side, Pittsburg. This company made a specialty of rolling mill construction, for which my experience at the Colonial Steel Company was a very good preparation. My work there was also in their draughting room, but it was a much more responsible position. Most of my time with them was spent on the plans for a 'three-high universal mill' which they were building for the National Tube Company. In November I received an appointment as assistant night instructor in mathematics in the Carnegie Technical Schools of this city. They are giving a five-year night course in the various branches of engineering which will correspond to their three-year day course. The night course (three evenings a week) is designed for men who are unable to give up their time to take the day course. Many of the men were over thirty years old and held responsible positions. For three months I spent the day in the draughting rooms and three evenings a week at the school buildings teaching. About the 1st of February, 1906, Mr. Hamerschlag, the Director of the Carnegie Technical Schools, offered me a position in his office, which I decided to accept, keeping on with the teaching evenings. So I left the A. Garrison Foundry Company and up to May 1st my work was that of Acting Purchasing Agent and from then on has been that of Acting Registrar. On return from my vacation in July I expect to take up my work as engineering assistant, in connection with the equipment for the new buildings which are to be erected this fall. I expect to obtain valuable experience with my new work, which will fit me for a good position inside of a year or two. If in that time a good opening with the Schools should appear I may be permanently connected with them, although I do not expect to do any teaching. I think that I have covered my occupation and plans for the future. The answers to questions 2, 3 and 4 are a blank, as I am not married, have done no post-graduate work and have written nothing that will be published except for this letter. I am a member of the Yale Alumni Association of Pittsburg and of the Engineers Society of Western Pennsylvania. My permanent address is care Carnegie Technical Schools, Pittsburg, Pa. I will keep them posted as to my address in case I should leave, so that anything addressed in their care will always reach me. I hope that I have written enough, as I see you have called my attention to the sentence 'do not be afraid to write too much.'"

And later: "A change in my plans has come about rather suddenly. After October 15, 1906, I expect to be with Ralph Melcer in the Frank Hagny Company, heating and ventilating contractors, 1133 Broadway, New York City. After that date all letters should be addressed there." (See Addenda.)

John Hinsdale Partridge was born in Norfolk, Conn., June 18, 1880, prepared at the Enfield (Conn.) Public High School and entered in September 1899, joining the Class of 1904 in 1900. He left Yale at Christmas of 1902.

His father, Frank Henry Partridge, of the F. H. Partridge and Son, Rockville, Conn., laundry, was born in Winchester, Conn., January 10, 1850, the son of John Partridge and Mary Ann (Freeman) Partridge.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ida Lemira Ferguson, was the daughter of William James Ferguson of Canaan, Conn., and of Lura (Rood) Ferguson.

Partridge is at present in the laundry business with the firm of F. H. Partridge and Son, 69 Brooklyn St., Rockville, Conn. He lives at 60 Elm St.

William Leslie Patterson (B.A. Acadia 1902, B.A. Yale 1903, M.A. 1904), was born in Amherst, Nova Scotia, December 24, 1881, prepared at the Amherst High School and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Charles Edward Patterson, a manufacturer, was born in Amherst, N. S., in 1845, the son of James M. Patterson and Marie (Cahill) Patterson.

His mother, whose maiden name was Jane Elizabeth Bowser, was the daughter of E. B. Bowser and Ruth M. (Cahill) Bowser.

Patterson graduated with an Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "In 1903-4 I was a member of the Graduate School of Yale University and held the Eldridge Fellowship and was Assistant in Political Economy in Yale College. I received in 1904 the degree of M.A. from Yale University. In 1904-1905 I was a member of the First Year Class in the Yale Medical School. In 1905-1906 I entered Boston University Medical School as a Second Year student, where I am at present. Member of Phi Alpha Gamma, Boston University.

"Permanent address always, Amherst, Nova Scotia."

Oscar Columbus Payne (B.A. Baylor University, Waco, Texas, 1902, B.A. Yale 1903) was born January 15, 1881, at Rome, Ga., prepared at the Burleson College, Greenville, Texas, and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Jesse Neal Payne, a farmer of Waco, was born in Franklin County, Georgia, June 15, 1852, the son of N. M. Payne, a farmer of Georgia, and of Sara (Guess) Payne.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sara Elizabeth Isbell, was the daughter of W. F. Isbell, a Georgia farmer, and of Mary E. (Garner) Isbell.

Payne was married August 9, 1904, at Crockett, Texas, to Miss Mittie Royall Baker, daughter of Murdock McIntosh Baker, a farmer of Crockett, Texas.

He writes: "Since leaving Yale I have taught one year at Crockett and one at Lovelady, Texas, in the public schools. The year ending I have been editor of The Houston County Times, an independent weekly newspaper, and have also supplied as pastor of the Crockett Baptist church. I leave the last of August 1906 to enter the Theological Seminary of Baylor University at Waco, Texas."

His address is Crockett, Texas.

Wheeler Hazard Peckham (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Newport, R. I., August 2, 1880, prepared at the Black Hall School, Lyme, Conn., and entered college with the Class.

His father, Walton Milderberger Peckham, at present resides at 27 Rue Pierre Charron, Paris, France. He was born in New York City, the son of Walter Hazard Peckham, M.D., and Margaret Augusta (Milderberger) Peckham.

His mother, whose maiden name was Marie Louise Chesebrough, was the daughter of Robert John Chesebrough (Yale 1817) and Anne (Birmingham) Chesebrough.

In college Peckham played right tackle on the Freshman eleven and was a member of Kappa Psi, Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Elihu Club.

He writes: "On graduating from college I spent the summer abroad. Returned in September and entered the Harvard Law School. During the Christmas holidays 'Steve' Clark and I took a short trip to Canada. On completing the year at the Law School I worked in Brown Brothers and Company, bankers, 59 Wall Street, New York, from July 5 to September 19, then went with 'Bob' Granniss to the St. Louis Exposition, spending a week there, during which time we were joined by 'Bear' DuPuy and 'Rubberfoot' McCormick (at the time an alderman of Chicago). Then another year of the Law School, at the end of which time I went to camp with the First Corps Cadets Massachusetts militia, which I joined the first year up here, at Westfield, where all the troops were mobilized under General Miles. I then went abroad, returning last September, and started in the last lap (I hope) of law school endeavor. I forgot to mention that I have been rooming with 'Ginger' McClintock and that we have retained the same apartments all three years, as they are the best the house affords. I expect the degree of LL.B. or J.D. (they haven't decided which it will be, probably the former), J.D. standing for Doctor of Jurisprudence. In politics, I arose one morning at four o'clock this winter (it was very cold) in order to be a 'watcher' at the polls in the municipal election of Boston. On arriving out in Charlestown I found that my services were of no value and was told so. Came home rather discouraged. The only permanent address I can give at this time is 3 Winthrop Hall, Cambridge, Mass., as my plans for the coming year are unsettled. I expect to be present at Triennial, go to camp again and then abroad for the summer. What I will do on my return in the fall is uncertain.

"Toby, Jr., has been attending the law school with me and has been spending the summer with 'Mort' Fitch and 'Dusty' Miller, 1904. He is just as good as ever."

And later, August 1906: "Until I let you know of a permanent address, please send all communications care Mrs. W. G. Steel, 'Cresheim,' Mt. Airy, Philadelphia, Pa."

Julius Deming Perkins, Jr., was born in Litchfield, Conn., June 4, 1880, prepared at the Taft School, Watertown, Conn., and entered at the beginning of Freshman year, leaving Yale during Junior year.

His father, Julius Deming Perkins, of Litchfield, was born in Litchfield March 16, 1830, the son of Charles Perkins, a lawyer, and of Clarissa (Deming) Perkins.

His mother, whose maiden name was Margaretta Warner Dotterer, was the daughter of Davis H. Dotterer, a civil engineer, and of Anne Emlen (Warner) Dotterer.

He writes: "The 'suggestions for letters' you sent me is soon answered: (1) Residence for past two years, Colorado. Left college about November 1, 1901. Entered law office of Thomas H. Hardcastle October 1, 1905, as an employee only. (2) Does not apply to my case. (3) Entered Colorado College at Colorado Springs March 1, 1904, and remained about two and a half months studying principally mineralogy, but also took a course in English. Entered the Law School of the University of Denver on October 1, 1905. No degrees taken. (4) Have no literary aspirations. (5) Member of 'Town and Gown Golf Club' at Colorado Springs from about December 1, 1903, to June 1, 1904, when I resigned. Elected a member of 'The Denver Country Club' February 18, 1905, and of 'The Overland Park Club' July 7, 1905, of both of which I am still a member. No political experiences. (6) Was in Europe during April, May and June 1903. (7) Permanent address: 'The Lindens,' Litchfield, Conn. (8) and (9) I have done nothing but loaf about till this fall, and my plans are altogether too uncertain to write about."

His present address is 1068 Pearl St., Denver, Col.

Byron Ainsworth Pierce (B.A. 1903) was born in Altmar, N. Y., April 12, 1880, prepared at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, William Polleys Pierce of the James Pierce Leather Company, manufacturers of Olean, was born in Medford, Mass., July 5, 1841, the son of John Pierce, a shipbuilder of Medford, and of Charlotte Maria (Cutter) Pierce.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Converse Pearson, was the daughter of John Fay Pearson, a violin maker of Woburn, Mass., and of Martha Maria Converse (Caldwell) Pearson.

In college Pierce was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and held a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "Shortly after graduating in 1903 I left New York (July 15) with Erling Ostby, Wilson Wing and Lucian Kirtland (1903) and Richard Blanding, Brown 1903, an old Andover chum, for a trip around the world. We went west across the continent and sailed from San Francisco. In San Francisco we met Kenneth Schley and Sam Reeves, 1902 S., just returning from a trip around. We stopped at Honolulu, where a Yale dinner was given in honor of our party. We spent some time in Japan and China. While in Japan the members of our party formed themselves into the Knights of the Royal Dragon and adopted appropriate insignia. We proceeded by boat from Hong Kong to the Straits Settlements, Ceylon, Arabia, Egypt, to Marseilles, thence via Paris and London to New York again. We arrived at our homes just in time for Thanksgiving dinner. The trip was a glorious success.

"On January 12, 1904, I went to Boston in the employ of the J. B. Pearson Company, a manufacturing and wholesale mercantile house, of which my uncle is president, to gain some business experience. I remained there until the middle of the following October, when I decided to learn the leather business in my father's factory in Olean, N. Y. After a short course in book-keeping in Burdett's Business College in Boston, I began work in Olean, November 14, 1904. While in Boston I roomed with Charlie Day and Paul Mann, both 1903. I remained in Olean until July 1905. At that time owing to working in damp rooms I had contracted rheumatism, and on being overcome by the heat one day, July 14, I was compelled to stop and abandon the factory work. I spent last summer recuperating on the St. Lawrence River with my family. In September, while on my way to Boston in search of a position in a wholesale leather store, I visited Erling Ostby in Providence, was offered a position with Ostby and Barton Company, manufacturing jewelers, and soon after accepted it, starting work on October 11. I am now most pleasantly situated at very agreeable work among friends."

His business address is care Ostby and Barton Company, 118 Richmond St., Providence, R. I. His residence is 56 Waterman St. His home address is 316 Laurens St., Olean, N. Y.

Claude Meek Pitcher was born in Scranton, Pa., January 20, 1880, the son of Charles R. Pitcher. He prepared at the School of Lackawanna, Scranton, and entered college with the Class, leaving at Christmas 1899.

He is a member of the Lackawanna bar with an office at 306 and 307 Commonwealth Building, Scranton, Pa. His residence is 1415 Price St., Scranton.

Howard Albert Plummer (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City October 18, 1881, prepared at the Berkeley School, New York City, and entered college at the beginning of the course.

His father, John Franklin Plummer, was born in Boston, Mass., October 2, 1840, the son of Nathaniel Plummer and Agnes (Pennell) Plummer. He is a capitalist and was Government Director of the Union Pacific Railroad under President Harrison, 1889-1893. He has been an active organizer and was the first President of the Business Men's Association of New York City, also Treasurer of the Republican County Committee in 1888.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emily Maria Atkins, was the daughter of Joshua Atkins and Emily (Hews) Atkins.

A brother, John Franklin Plummer, Jr., (1891) preceded him at Yale.

In college Plummer was Secretary and Treasurer of the Freshman Baseball Association. He was a member of the University Tennis team for the four years and its Captain, winning with S. L. Russell (1902 S.) the Intercollegiate Doubles in 1901. He won the University championship twice in singles and three time in doubles and was also President of the Intercollegiate Tennis Association. He was editor of the Courant and Banner, Treasurer of the Junior Promenade Committee, Class Poet and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Chi Delta Theta, Kappa Psi, Alpha Delta Phi and Wolf's Head societies. He held a High Oration Junior appointment and an Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "As to a class letter, you must realize that the lower rungs of the ladder of success are not apt to be the most eventful and since I am still 'heart-whole and fancy-free' I have no alluring details to give you in answer to number two. I started in after graduation with the North American Trust Company, which was merged last year with the Trust Company of America, now about the largest trust company in New York. Since March I have had the complete charge of the Foreign Exchange Department with the title of 'Manager' thereof—taking care (or trying to) of our foreign relations, foreign drafts, letters of credit, etc. Have published no works of art except the song, 'Everybody Works but the Convicts.' As to number five, am at present on the House and Admission committees of the Yale Club. My permanent address is 135 Broadway, New York City. Most eventful circumstance since graduation undoubtedly was the Triennial at New Haven."

He lives at 7 East 43d St., New York City.

Horace Burton Pomeroy (B.A. 1903, M.A. 1906) was born in Troy, Pa., June 3, 1879, prepared at the Lawrenceville (N. J.) School and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Charles Burton Pomeroy, a retired farmer of Troy, was born in Troy April 11, 1839, the son of Ebenezer Pomeroy, of Coventry, Conn., and Bradford County, Pa., and of Laura (Brewster) Pomeroy.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sophia Webber, died April 23, 1905, and was the daughter of Lorenzo Webber, of Vermont and New York, and of Jane Albina (Welch) Webber.

In college Pomeroy was a member of the University Banjo and Mandolin Club and of Psi Upsilon. He held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: "I still continue with the Bankers Trust Company, 7 Wall Street, New York City. The business is agreeable, and although progress is not as fast as desirable, yet hope and ambition keep the ball a-rolling—the same old story I suppose throughout the Class.”

He lives at 103 Clark Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

George French Porter (B.A. 1903) was born in Chicago, Ill., July 26, 1881, prepared at the Lawrenceville (N. J.) School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Henry Homes Porter (railroads), was born in Machias, Me., December 7, 1835, the son of Rufus King Porter and Lucy Lee (Hedge) Porter.

His mother, whose maiden name was Eliza Thayer French, was the daughter of George Haskell French and Elizabeth E. (Thayer) French.

In college Porter was a member of Psi Upsilon and held a Second Colloquy Junior and a Second Colloquy Senior appointment. H. H. Porter, Jr., (Yale 1898 S.) is a brother and George S. Isham (1881) a brother-in-law.

He writes: “The summer of 1903 I spent abroad, returning in September, and the winter of 1903-1904 at the Northwestern Law School in Chicago. I had no intention of becoming a lawyer but simply wished the general information for its value in business, and I have found it very useful. The following summer I spent in Europe and returning in the early fall went into my father’s office to imbibe a general knowledge of business in general and his affairs in particular.

“In the spring I became connected with the Chicago Transfer and Clearing Company and the Chicago Union Transfer Railway Company as director, secretary and treasurer. My father is largely interested in these properties, which are not in active operation, thus explaining my connection. My outside interests are not worth thinking of; have taken considerable interest in Bert McCormick’s campaign and in non-partisan organizations for clean municipal politics. Am sailing for Europe again February 27, 1906, but sincerely hope to be back for Triennial.”

His business address is Room 1622, 143 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. His residence is 311 Erie St.

Henry Potter (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Washington University, St. Louis, 1905) was born in St. Louis, Mo., October 4, 1881, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered college in the fall of 1899.

VANDERBILT-SCIENTIFIC.

HAMMOND MINING LABORATORY.

WHITE. BERKELEY. LAMPSON. FAYERWEATHER.

BYERS. MEMORIAL. UNIVERSITY. SOUTH SHEFF. KIRTLAND.

His father, Henry Saunders Potter (Yale 1872), is President of the St. Louis Steel Barge Company. He was born in Madison, Ind., June 10, 1850, the son of Russell Potter.

His mother's maiden name was Margaret Lionberger.

In college Potter was on the University Hockey and Golf teams, winning the University golf championship in the fall of 1902. He was a member of Hé Boulé, Alpha Delta Phi and Scroll and Key societies. Clarkson Potter (Yale 1901) is a brother.

He is now holding the position of Chief Clerk of the Treasury Department of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad, 904-10 Frisco Building, St. Louis, Mo. He lives at 5814 Cabanne Avenue.

Charles Franklin Pratt (B.A. 1903) was born in Hartford, Conn., September 10, 1880, prepared at the Hartford Public High School and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Charles William Pratt, a dealer in ladies' cloaks, suits and furs, Hartford, Conn., was born in Saybrook, Conn., December 8, 1851, the son of Charles Augustus Pratt, a builder of Saybrook, Conn., and of Mary E. (Randall) Pratt.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ella Barnard Cone, was the daughter of Sylvanus Franklin Cone, a farmer of Hartford, and of Delia Maria (Barnard) Cone.

Pratt's Yale relatives include a brother, Warren Cone Pratt (1909), an uncle, William R. Cone (1830), and three cousins, James B. Cone (1857), Charles E. Gross (1869) and Charles W. Gross (1898).

He writes: "Two days after graduation I sailed for Antwerp for a trip through Europe. During the trip I was in the following countries: Belgium, Holland, Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, France and England. Most of my time was spent in visiting the art galleries and cathedrals, with various excursions to special points of interest. Many were the pleasant meetings with Yale men everywhere, both men of 1903 and of other classes. The name of Yale was the cause of many a pleasant evening which otherwise would have been dull. Through the name of Yale I also met many Oxford and Cambridge men who had many questions to ask of Yale and Harvard. I returned home the latter part of September just in time to begin the busy season in my father's store, where I started in at the bottom. Now I hold a position second only to my father. Since I graduated I missed just one big game at New Haven and I am looking forward to the biggest game of all next June (1906)."

His business address is 73-77 Pratt St., and his residence 466 Farmington Ave., Hartford, Conn.

James Osborne Putnam (B.A. 1903) was born in Buffalo, N. Y., July 30, 1880, prepared at the Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and entered college with the Class.

His father, George Palmer Putnam, Secretary and Treasurer of the Perth Amboy Terra Cotta Company, was born in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1842, the son of James Osborne Putnam (Yale 1839).

His mother, whose maiden name was Agnes Adelia Hall, was the daughter of Edward J. Hall and Mary (Hoy) Hall.

Among his Yale relatives are two brothers, George Palmer Putnam, Jr., (1896 S.) and Edward Hall Putnam (1904 S.); five uncles: E. J. Hall (1873 S.), W. C. Hall (1875 S.), Gilbert Colgate (1883), Samuel Colgate, Jr., (1891) and S. R. Hall (1895 S.); and two cousins: W. C. Hall, Jr., (1904) and E. J. Hall, Jr. (1906 S.).

In college Putnam held a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "After spending two months vacation your humble servant took a position in The Colonial Steel Company, Pittsburg, Pa. This event took place September 1, 1903. During my connection with that company I filled several positions. At first I was sort of general utility man, then invoice and voucher clerk and finally assistant paymaster. As time went on a number of things which had at first not come to my attention thrust themselves upon me. All the good positions in the company were held by members of the president's family and such secondary positions as others held were underpaid. So it was necessary to either get into the family or leave the company. After due deliberation yours truly decided on the second alternative and resigned his position in March 1905. New York for a month and then off to seek my fortune in the 'Golden West'. At present the fortune does not seem to be materializing, but we are still young. The only club or organization of any kind to which I belong is the Kansas City Country Club.

"Letters will always reach me if addressed care Missouri and Kansas Telephone Company, Kansas City, Mo. If it is possible, next June will see me in New Haven, but at present it looks as though I would have to forego the pleasure of attending our Triennial."

His residence is 3724 Baltimore Ave., Kansas City, Mo. His home address is 216 West 70th St., New York City.

John Ferson Putnam (B.A. 1903) was born in Columbus, Ohio, July 26, 1880, prepared at the Columbus Latin School and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, David E. Putnam (Marietta 1864), who is in the real estate and banking business in Columbus, was born in Jersey, Licking County, Ohio, February 23, 1842, the son of the Rev. Charles Marsh Putnam (Yale 1826) and of Abby (Edgerton) Putnam.

His mother, whose maiden name was Susan Euphemia Ramsey, died in 1900. She was the daughter of John Ramsey, a farmer of Columbiana County, Ohio, and of Keziah (Hamilton) Ramsey.

Besides his grandfather, Putnam's Yale relatives are his great grandfather, David Putnam (1793), and a great uncle, Douglas Putnam of the Class of 1826.

He writes: "Three days after graduation I went to work with the Columbus Buggy Company, and have been with them ever since. Have taken but one vacation of ten days in the last three years. I doubt if many other members of the Class can show a longer period of work since leaving college. Am living at home with my father, 61 South 6th Street, Columbus, Ohio."

Hugh Rankin (B.A. 1903, M.A. 1904) was born in Nassau, N. Y., May 30, 1881, prepared at the Newark (N. J.) Academy and at the Mt. Pleasant Academy, Ossining, N. Y., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, the Rev. Isaac Ogden Rankin (Princeton 1873), literary editor of the Congregationalist and of the Christian World, was born in New York City November 22, 1852, the son of Rev. Edward E. Rankin (Yale 1840) and of Emily (Watkinson) Rankin.

His mother, whose maiden name was Martha Clark, was the daughter of Rev. Perkins K. Clark (Yale 1838) and of Hannah Smith (Avery) Clark.

Besides his grandfathers, his Yale relatives include an uncle, Edward Perkins Clark (1870), and three cousins: Charles U. Clark (1897), John K. Clark (1899) and George M. Clark (1901).

In college Rankin was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Zeta Psi societies. In Sophomore year he took honors in English Composition and held in Junior and Senior years the Thomas Glasby Waterman Scholarship. He won the Bennett prize in 1903. In Junior year he held a Philosophical Oration Junior appointment and received honors in Economics in Junior and Senior years. He was Salutatorian of the Class.

He writes: "I spent the college year after we graduated in the Graduate School at New Haven rooming with Douglas Moffat. He was assistant in English, I in Political Economy. This meant in my case at least no actual teaching, some marking of papers and an opportunity to get to know in a different way from in college some of the professors. The year was as different from the preceding ones as two years could be in the same place and surroundings but was a very pleasant one. There was a crowd who ate together of graduate students, young instructors and graduates, including several of our own class—George Hurst, Tony Waring, Bob Smith, Harry Van Deventer—which especially made the life pleasant. At the end of the year I got an M.A. in Political Economy or Economics, I can't recall which, but I don't believe there is much difference.

"Through August and September of 1904 I was at Ebensburg, Pa., tutoring two boys who had a total of twenty conditions and wanted to get in Yale that fall. They got in, greatly to my relief, and not a little to my surprise. Then I took October off, spending part of the time in a trip to Maine, where Harold Clark, Robert Black, Alan Fox and I spent a few days at a cottage of Harold's out on Cape Elizabeth.

"On November 1 I began work in the Auditor's and Fourth Vice President's office of the New York Central as main office boy. Here I became a shark on copying letters in a letter press, dealing with that part of the general public which had business, real or alleged, at our office, and answering more bells and buzzers than anyone who has not heard them all go off at once could have any idea of. Not long after I began there, I had an opportunity to go to the Railroad Gazette, which I did, largely at the advice of Mr. Marshall L. Bacon, the Auditor, a man of the Henry P. Wright type, on January 1, 1905. Since that time I have been associate editor under Ray Morris (1901). In this position I have naturally had a good many articles published, some of which have also been published in other papers afterward, one in a recent number of the Weekly. I have also had an article on the 'Railroad Situation Present and Future' in the New York Times Annual Financial Review (January 7, 1906) and an editorial (not under my name of course) in the Commercial and Financial Chronicle (July 29, 1905) on 'Government Railroad Policy in Canada.' In connection with my work last summer I spent three weeks getting acquainted with the railroad situation in Chicago and two or three weeks more traveling and seeing western railroads, going as far west as the Pacific slope of the Continental Divide, some 125 miles west of Denver on the new 'Moffat' road, the Denver, Northwestern and Pacific. This trip, which included crossing the divide 11,660 feet, I took with 'Lottie' Collins, with whom I had a fine visit in Denver. He is a reporter on the Rocky Mountain Times and when I was out there had the police 'run,' which involved being 'Johnny on the spot' in case of accident or crime. In consequence he rode in the ambulance more than in the street cars. With one exception (I believe) he had not seen a classmate between the time he left the East soon after we graduated to the time I got out there.

"Another reunion that I think is worth mentioning is the 'Table 12' reunion which we had at Cambridge at the time of the Harvard game the fall of 1905. Of the thirteen members of the table ten were there—Alan Fox, Harold Clark, Robert Black, Douglas Moffat, D. K. Johnston, Eugene Kingman, Arthur Collens, Dudley Lewis and Ralph Melcer. Heimie Butts (1902 S.) would have come if he had not arranged to get married that week before he knew about the reunion. Stanleigh Arnold was too busy doing three men's work teaching in Sheff. and taking all the honors in sight in the Law School to get off even for those two or three days, and Charles Parsons could not tear himself away from Pittsburg.

"My permanent address for the present at least is Peekskill, N. Y. This is not my current address, which is 83 Fulton Street, New York, but a place where letters may always be sent. Not Poughkeepsie or Newburg."

John Dougan Rea (B.A. Earlham College 1902, B.A. Yale 1903, M.A. 1905) was born in Minneapolis, Kansas, September 20, 1880, prepared at the Richmond (Ind.) High School and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Robert Morgan Rea (M.D. College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, 1865), was born in Hackettstown, N. J., March 10, 1846, the son of William Rea, M.D., and Mary (Valentine) Rea.

His mother, whose maiden name was Cora Georgia Anderson, was the daughter of George Anderson, a farmer of Venice, Ohio, and of Harriet (Rees) Anderson.

In college Rea was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and held a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment, graduating sixteenth in rank.

He writes: Since leaving Yale I have been engaged in teaching at Farmington, Conn., for two years, doing at the same time graduate work at Trinity and Yale. Received my M.A. last June. For the present school year have been teaching Latin in the Winchester High School. Have not gotten engaged, into politics, or in jail."

His residence is The Randolph, Winchester, Indiana. His home address is Richmond, Indiana.

John Joseph Reilly (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York University 1906) was born in Mineville, Essex County, N. Y., November 6, 1880, prepared at the Colgate Academy, Hamilton, N. Y., and at the Fairport (N. Y.) High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Bernard Reilly, who died in 1891, was born in Ireland in 1851 and was a mining engineer and tunnel constructionist.

His mother, whose maiden name was Margaret Flynn, is deceased.

In college Reilly was an alternate on the Sophomore Debating team, won honors in social science and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since leaving college in 1903 I have lived one year in Rochester, N. Y., where I was working as wholesale manager for Brown Brothers, who have the largest nursery business in that city. In October 1904 I came to New York and entered the Law Department of New York University, where I shall have taken two years of law study in June 1906 and from which school I hope to get the degree of LL.B. in June of this year (1906). I expect to remain in New York City for a year or two after leaving the Law School and at the end of that time move to some smaller city. The only organizations with which I have become affiliated since leaving college are the Intercollegiate branch of the Y. M. C. A. at 129 Lexington Avenue, and the Delta Chi legal fraternity. Any letters directed to 129 Lexington Avenue, New York City, will reach me for some time to come."

James William Reynolds (B.A. 1903) was born in St. Louis, Mo., June 15, 1879, prepared at the Smith Academy, St. Louis, Mo. and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, George Delachamette Reynolds (University of Illinois 1859), of the law firm of Reynolds and Reynolds, St. Louis, was Lieutenant Colonel, U. S. V., 1860-1865, and U. S. District Attorney, Eastern District of Missouri, 1888-1893. He is the son of William Morton Reynolds and Anna (Swan) Reynolds.

His mother, whose maiden name was Julia Vogdes, was the daughter of Augustus Summerfield Vogdes and Maria Cornelia (Evans) Vogdes.

A brother, George Vogdes Reynolds, graduated from Yale in 1901.

In college Reynolds was on the Freshman Glee Club, Apollo Glee Club and was President of the University Glee Club. He was Treasurer of the Sophomore German Committee and a member of the Junior Promenade Committee, also Secretary of the Corinthian Yacht Club. He was a member of Eta Phi, Alpha Delta Phi, and Scroll and Key societies, and held a Second Colloquy Senior appointment. He edited and published in collaboration with Thomas G. Shepard, 'Yale Melodies', a collection of Yale songs covering the period between 1893 and 1903.

He is in the Bond Department of the Commonwealth Trust Company, Broadway and Olive Sts., St. Louis, Mo. He lives at 4239 Lindell Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Samuel Wheaton Rhoads (B.A. 1903) was born in Lake Carey, Pa., July 19, 1882, prepared at the Taft School, Watertown, Conn., and entered college with the Class.

His father, Samuel R. Rhoads, who died in May 1882, was born in Williamsport, Pa., May 24, 1853.

His mother's maiden name was Jessie Evelyn Wheaton.

In college Rhoads was a member of Zeta Psi and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment. F. W. Wheaton (Yale 1877) is an uncle.

Since graduating he has been studying law and has been in the office of Woodward, Darling and Woodward, 24 Coal Exchange, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

His residence is 85 Carey Ave.

Joseph Foster Rhodes (B.A. 1903) was born in Chicago, Ill., November 18, 1881, prepared at the Harvard School, Chicago, The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year. He is the son of John Foster Rhodes and Margaret White (Patterson) Rhodes.

He was married February 14, 1906, in Pasadena, Cal., to Miss Louise Pierce Bond, daughter of Joseph Bond of Chicago, Ill.

October 1, 1903, to July 1, 1904, Rhodes was with the Geo. A. Fuller Construction Co. of New York. November 1, 1904, he started in with the Blow Planing Mill, Pasadena, Cal., later becoming secretary and manager. In September 1905 he formed a partnership in the contracting business: Brandt and Rhodes, 412 Byrne Building, Los Angeles, Cal. His residence and permanent address is 336 Bellevue Drive, Pasadena, Cal.

George Huntington Richards (B.A. 1903) was born in Bath, Maine, August 1, 1882, prepared at Leal's School, Plainfield, N. J., and entered with the Class.

His father, the Rev. William Rogers Richards, D.D., (Yale 1857), is the pastor of the Brick Church of New York City. He is the son of Rev. George Richards (Yale 1840) and of Anna Maria (Woodruff) Richards.

His mother, whose maiden name was Charlotte Barrett Blodget, was the daughter of Henry Blodget (Yale 1848), a missionary to China, and of Sarah Franklin (Ripley) Blodget.

Richards' Yale relatives, beside his two grandfathers, include three uncles: George Richards (1872), Henry Blodget (1875), and Dickinson W. Richards (1880).

In college he took honors in English Composition in Sophomore year, won the Henry James Ten Eyck Prize in Junior year and held a First Dispute Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "My history since graduation is brief. Taught mathematics for two years at Phillips Andover. Entered New York Law School October 3, 1905, hoping for a degree of LL.B. two years from that date. 14 East 37th Street, New York City, is both temporary and permanent."

Roland George Dwight Richardson (B.A. Acadia 1898, B.A. Yale 1903, M.A. 1904, Ph.D. 1906) was born in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, May 14, 1878, prepared for college at the Lawrencetown (N. S.) High School and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, George Richardson, who died November 2, 1898, was a teacher. He was born May 14, 1828, at Isaac's Harbor, Nova Scotia, the son of Rev. George Richardson and Sarah (Williams) Richardson.

His mother, whose maiden name was Rebecca Newcomb, was the daughter of Judson Newcomb, a farmer and merchant of Nova Scotia, and of Greselda Detchmann (Archibald) Newcomb.

In college Richardson won a DeForest mathematical prize and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi societies. He graduated with a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment, being thirteenth in rank.

Since graduation he has been studying in the Yale Graduate School, taking his Ph.D. in 1906. He is an instructor in mathematics in Yale University and resides at 120 York St., New Haven, Conn. His present address is 821 Yale Station, New Haven. His home address is Lawrencetown, Nova Scotia.

Harry Albert Rightmire (B.A. 1903) was born in Fairport, N. Y., October 15, 1881, prepared at the Fairport High School and entered with the Class.

His father, Nathan Albert Rightmire, Superintendent of the Monroe County Chemical Company, formerly Mayor of Fairport, was born in Berkshire, N. Y., September 4, 1841, the son of Squire Rightmire and Persis (Raymond) Rightmire.

His mother, whose maiden name was Anna Burns, died August 13, 1892, and was the daughter of Patrick Burns and Alice (Anderson) Burns.

In college Rightmire held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment. After graduation he took a position with the Fourth National Bank of New York and then with the National Bank of Commerce of New York. He "left the National Bank of Commerce January 1, 1905. Since that time I have been with the American Chemical Manufacturing and Mining Company, manufacturers of inks, wax, shoe polishes, etc. I was first in Minneapolis, Minn., then in Chicago and I have now been several months in Philadelphia. I will undoubtedly be there some time, but might change most any time. I like my work very much and am getting on nicely."

His address is 840 Salem Ave., Elizabeth, N. J., or Fairport, N. Y.

Stephen Garrett Roach was born in New York City May 18, 1880, prepared at the Wilson and Vail School, New York, and entered with the Class, joining 1904 at the end of Freshman year. He left college at Christmas 1901 and returned in the fall of 1902 for one term.

His address while in college was care Mrs. Sarah E. McPherson, Langham Hotel, 657 Fifth Ave., New York City. His present whereabouts are unknown.

George Roberts, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Hartford, Conn., November 3, 1880, prepared at the Hartford Public High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, George Roberts, formerly President of the Hartford Carpet Company, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., December 20, 1845, the son of George Roberts, for many years President of the Hartford Carpet Company, and of Elmira (Evans) Roberts.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ida Marsh Hamilton, was the daughter of Henry Hamilton and Harriet Emmeline (Marsh) Hamilton.

Roberts' Yale relatives include an uncle, Gov. Henry Roberts (1877), and a cousin, J. T. Roberts (1905).

In college he was a member of the Dramatic Association, Superintendent of the Bethany Mission, and Manager of the Cross Country Association. He was a member of Psi Upsilon and held a Second Dispute Junior appointment.

He writes: "June twenty-something, 1903, did not see me a Yale graduate as it did most of my classmates. For I was one of ten who preferred a more distinctive diploma dated the Ides (perhaps it was the Kalends, ask the Latin Faculty) of November. But the night that saw so many in the bosoms of their families as a Yale 'alumni' (as a United States Senator once put it) saw me studying until 9 A. M. the next morning for the exam. that P. M. I passed it, so no more of that.

"My next act was to go to a boy's camp on the shores of the Delaware, where I spent nine weeks teaching the 'young idea how to shoot,' fish, walk, swim, etc., etc. Of course I was at the same time learning how to be a father in case any one should ever consent to share a home with me.

"The fall saw me starting in on the straight and narrow path which one walks in a theological seminary. I have been there ever since and graduate (on graduation day, faculty willing) this May (1906) to take up a church and parish of my own. I already have the latter two (but am not a 'Reverend' as yet). They may be called a by-product of my seminary work. My three years here have changed me—a change which I trust may be noticed at Triennial time. I do not fold my hands nor act like Carrie Nation when I smell tobacco smoke, but the cares of a pastorate are, I believe, already showing themselves in my outward appearance.

"My second summer saw me again leading a camper's life in Pennsylvania; but before I went there I taught school in Ossining (Sing Sing) N. Y.—(Not in a striped suit!). My only comment on those six weeks is that I am glad I don't have to always teach unruly boys. As one of my pupils left me to enter West Point, you may hear of me when he is a distinguished general in 1950. That same summer saw me traveling hurriedly, briefly and lonely to the St. Louis Fair, only to quickly return and continue to learn how to be good and make others good.

"The third summer saw me 'loafing' on Long Island Sound playing tennis with thirteen-year-old lassies and sailing with Spen Goodwin. The reason for my thus idling away three months was—('tell it not in Gath,' for it may not be believed)—because I was tired out from overwork, and needed a rest, and I can show a bona fide doctor's certificate to back my own words.

"As to the future—but why talk of that? I haven't it yet, and never will have it.

"My permanent address is 63 Washington Street, Hartford, Conn. My address after May (1906) remains with those as yet unknown to me who will call me to them before that date. In the meantime I study hard (honestly!) waiting for that date—and for the Triennial a month later."

And later: "The only addition to my humble conditions of life are graduation from Union Theological Seminary on May 15, 1906,—without any attendant suffixes to my name. June 27 I began my work here as stated supply of the Presbyterian church of Teaneck, N. J. After October I shall be ordained and hence a full-fledged pastor. My address is Teaneck, Englewood, N. J. Nihil faciens amatorially."

John Randolph Robinson (B.A. 1903) was born in Baltimore, Md., November 11, 1879, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, John Moncure Robinson (Harvard 1856 S. and Virginia 1857), who died in 1893, was President of the Seaboard Air Line, serving during the Civil War as Colonel in the Confederate army. He was born in Philadelphia, Pa., the son of Moncure Robinson (railroads) and of Mary (Biddle) Robinson.

His mother, whose maiden name was M. Champe Conway, died in 1901. She was the daughter of Charles Conway, a physician of Richmond, Va., and of Ellen (Bradfute) Conway.

In college Robinson was Chairman of the Sophomore German Committee, a member of the Junior Promenade Committee, and of the Triennial Committee. He was an editor of the Pot-Pourri, a Cup man and on the Board of Governors of the University Club. He was on the campaign committees of Eta Phi and Alpha Delta Phi and was a member of Scroll and Key.

He is at present the New York agent of the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company of Pittsburg, Pa., with an office in the Life Building. He lives at 19 West 31st St. His permanent address is the Maryland Club, Baltimore, Md.

Cleveland Rogers (B.A. 1903) was born at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., February 11, 1880, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered with the Class.

In college he was a member of Zeta Psi and held a Dissertation Junior appointment and an Oration Senior appointment.

Since graduation he has been studying law at Harvard. He was taken sick last winter and is at present recuperating in Wakefield, R. I.

William Journey Roome, Jr., was born in Plainfield, N. J., December 27, 1880, prepared at Leal's School, Plainfield, and entered college with the Class, leaving in November of Junior year.

His father, William Journey Roome (B.S. New York University 1878) is in the real estate business and also President of the Excelsior Savings Bank of New York. He was born in New York June 20, 1857, the son of William H. Roome and Adelaide (Miller) Roome.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Marsh Sandford, was the daughter of Joseph W. Sandford and Mary Jane (Lewis) Sandford.

In college Roome was a member of the Apollo Banjo Club and Zeta Psi. Howard LeC. Roome (Yale 1907) is a brother.

He was married on leaving college November 4, 1901, in New York to Miss Florence Louise Weed, daughter of the late Henry Frank Weed, formerly of Weed and Brother, wholesale dry goods, of New York. A first son, Sandford Roome, was born February 8, 1903. A second son, William Journey Roome, 3rd, was born December 4, 1905.

Roome is in the real estate business in the office of his father, 11 West 34th St., New York, and is also director and Secretary and Treasurer of the Sandford Realty Company. His present residence is 41 Sycamore Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

*Henry Ide Root died January 17, 1901. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 2, 1882. His family soon afterwards moved to New Haven, and it was there that he prepared for college, graduating from the Hillhouse High School at the head of his class.

His father, William Judson Root, who died December 3, 1892, was a mechanical engineer. He was born in New Haven, Conn., October 28, 1844, the son of Rev. Judson Adoniram Root (Yale 1823), a Congregational clergyman, and of Emily M. Peck Root.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Louisa Kilburn, was the daughter of George Kilburn, a cotton manufacturer of Lonsdale, R. I., and of Laura (Hooper) Kilburn.

A brother, Robert Kilburn Root, graduated from Yale in 1898 and an uncle, Rev. Nathaniel W. T. Root, in 1852.

On entering college he divided with Harry Van Deventer the Hugh Chamberlain Prize for the best entrance examinations in Greek. In the Freshman year he won the McLaughlin Prize in English composition. In general scholarship he stood near the head of the Class. He mingled very little with his classmates, partly because he lived at home, but chiefly because his tastes differed from theirs. He delighted in long walks through the country, and he devoted much time to a loving study of literature, music, and art.

In his Sophomore year he was troubled with insomnia, brought on presumably by overwork. On the evening of January 17th of our Sophomore year he left his home soon after dinner. Later a note was found in his room in which he confessed that he meant to take his life, and in which he asked his mother's forgiveness. Early the next morning his body was found in a vacant lot near his room on Grove Street. He had drunk carbolic acid. Resolutions were drawn up and sent to his family, signed for the Class by a committee consisting of D. B. MacLane, W. B. Arvine, G. R. Tillson, H. C. Kelly, W. S. Searles, and H. T. Clark.

Harry had few friends, but those who knew him will never forget the influence of his personality. He carried into all his work a profound scholarly spirit. He lived much in the realm of music, poetry and art, and showed a rare and lofty taste in all three, being possessed with a passion for what was noblest and best in them. And the same high ideals with which he tested Art he carried into his whole life. He was extremely conscientious and sensitive, and morbidly conscious of his own shortcomings. So his high ideals at once separated him from his fellows and made him dissatisfied with himself. This fact together with his insomnia explains his end as much as such a thing can be explained.

Donald B. MacLane.

Joseph Clinton Roraback (B.A. 1903, LL.B. 1905) was born in Canaan, Conn., February 14, 1882, prepared at the Robbins School, Norfolk, Conn., and by private tutor and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Alberto T. Roraback, has been Judge of the Superior Court of Connecticut since 1897. He was born in Sheffield, Mass., August 23, 1849, the son of John Christian Roraback and Maria (Hoysradt) Roraback.

His mother, whose maiden name was Minnie Elizabeth Hunt, was the daughter of Edward P. Hunt and Mary E. (Peet) Hunt.

Albert Edward Roraback (Yale 1902) is a brother.

While in the Yale Law School he played center for two years on the University Football team.

He writes: "After graduation in June 1903 I was somewhat undecided as to whether or not I should go to the Yale Law School or Harvard Law, but along the middle of September, when I was about to make up my mind to enter Harvard Law, I received a letter from Captain Rafferty requesting me to report in New Haven the following Monday for early football practice. I got the fever immediately and decided to return to Yale to study law and play football, the former predominating in my thoughts of course.

"To be brief, as I know you would prefer, I did the required law work in two years and graduated June 1905 from the Yale Law School and about the same time passed the Connecticut bar examinations and was admitted to the bar July 6, 1905. I intended not to begin work until fall, but business became so pressing in my uncle's office, where I intended embarking into the profession, that I found myself about the middle of July head over heels in abstracting titles and the like. I have worked since then in the office of my uncle, J. Henry Roraback, Canaan, Conn."

Arthur Jesse Rosenthal (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City, June 22, 1882, prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Jesse Rosenthal, a retired merchant, was born in New York City January 15, 1851, the son of Joseph Rosenthal, of J. Rosenthal and Company, importers, and of Caroline (Fleishman) Rosenthal.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emma Bernard, was the daughter of Benjamin Bernard, a dry goods merchant of New York City, and of Sarah Fredericka (Wurzburg) Bernard.

In college Rosenthal was a member of the Gun team, and held a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "I left Yale about July 4, 1903, after every possible excuse for remaining longer was exhausted. I spent the next six months camping and hunting in the Adirondacks, New Foundland and New Brunswick. Started in work on November 23, 1903, as an office boy at Ladenburg, Thalmann and Company, 25 Broad Street, New York City, foreign and domestic bankers and brokers, and am still there. I regret that as yet I cannot furnish the names of any partners.

"I am not married. My only study has been technical and connected with my business, i. e. railroad work, theoretical, practical and financial. My course has been planned entirely by myself, and although I have studied with practical and theoretical men I have not taken a definite course or one that would lead to a degree. My only publications have consisted in writing lists of bond offerings and bond descriptions the real nature of which is advertising.

"I belong to the Yale Club here in New York and the New Rochelle Yacht Club. Have been a delegate to various Republican and citizens' Union conventions, but have not had time to really take an active interest in politics. On my hunting trips I have been all through the maritime provinces of Canada and New Foundland. On railroad inspection trips I have been south to Birmingham, north to Montreal and west to the coal regions of Pennsylvania.

"My permanent address is 9 East 61st Street, New York City, My future plans are to keep whacking away at it, so that at some future reunion I will be in a position to report a list of my partners, including one of the feminine variety."

Carleton Ferriss Rowell (B.A. 1903) was born in St. Louis, Mo., June 25, 1882, prepared at the Rugby Academy, St. Louis, and at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class.

His father, Clinton Rowell (Dartmouth 1863), a lawyer of Rowell and Ferris, St. Louis, was born in Concord, Vt., November 12, 1838, the son of Guy Carleton Rowell and Clarissa (Rankin) Rowell.

His mother, whose maiden name was Caroline Maria Ferriss, was the daughter of Charles Ferriss and Mercy (Macomber) Ferriss.

Since graduation Rowell has been studying law at the Washington University, St. Louis. His address is 4579 West Pine Boulevard, St. Louis, Mo.

Henry Moore Russell, Jr., (LL.B. University of Virginia 1903) was born in Wheeling, W. Va., July 6, 1879, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered Yale with the Class of 1902, joining 1903 at the beginning of Sophomore year. He left college in June 1901.

His father, Henry Moore Russell, a graduate of Georgetown and a lawyer of Russell and Russell of Wheeling, was born in Wheeling April 5, 1881, the son of Charles W. Russell of Wheeling and Baltimore, a member of the Confederate Congress, and of Margaret (Moore) Russell.

His mother, whose maiden name was Matilda Heiskell, died in 1892, and was the daughter of Otho Heiskell, of Wheeling, and of Matilda (Paxton) Heiskell.

Russell was married at Wheeling April 25, 1905, to Miss Eleanor Letitia Brice, daughter of Sylvester L. Brice, who is in the newspaper business in Wheeling. A daughter was born May 8, 1906.

He graduated from University of Virginia Law School in 1903 and is now practicing with his father in the firm of Russell and Russell, 1421 Chapline St., Wheeling, W. Va. His residence is 146 South Penn St.

Henry Clarence Sanford (B.A. 1903) was born in Bridgewater, Conn., April 16, 1875, prepared at the New Milford (Conn.) High School and at the Newtown (Conn.) Academy and entered the Class of 1904 in the winter of our Junior year, becoming a member of 1903 at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Horace Nehemiah Sanford, died September 1889. He was a farmer of Bridgewater, where he was born January 4, 1841, the son of Henry Sanford and Anna (Canfield) Sanford.

His mother, whose maiden name was Dora M'Call Kasson, was the daughter of George M. Kasson, of Bethlehem, Conn., and of Lucretia M. (Turner) Kasson.

Sanford was a member of the College Choir and graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes, December 1905: "I graduated June 1903, then returned to my home in Bridgewater, Conn. April 21, 1904, I entered the employ of the National Biscuit Company, 15th Street and 10th Avenue, where I have been ever since. I intend to take up 'agriculture' again at my home town (Bridgewater, Conn.) April 1, 1906, for I like it and copy Lincoln's aphorism, 'If people like that sort of thing then that's the sort of thing they like.'

"I made my 'journey to foreign countries' before I went to Yale, in 1900-1901, when I went to India via England, France, Port Said, Aden, Colombo (Ceylon), returning the same way, with side trips to Palestine and Egypt. Am going again as soon as I raise the price."

And later, April 14, 1906: "My address is now Bridgewater, Conn., and will be so permanently."

Ziegler Sargent (B.A. 1903) was born in New Haven, Conn., December 10, 1881, prepared at the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, and entered with the Class.

His father, Henry Bradford Sargent (Yale 1871 S.), is

Vice President of Sargent and Company, hardware manufacturers of New Haven, and a member of the Yale Corporation. He was treasurer of the Yale Field for the first twenty years. He was born in New York City March 4, 1851, the son of Joseph Bradford Sargent, President of Sargent and Company, formerly Mayor of New Haven, and of Elizabeth Collier (Lewis) Sargent.

His mother, whose maiden name was Harriet Amelia Oaks, was the daughter of Charles Henry Oaks, a merchant of New Haven, and of Rhoda (Miles) Oaks.

Sargent's Yale relatives, besides his father, include a brother, Murray Sargent (1905), six uncles: Henry A. Oaks (1875), Edward R. Sargent (1880 S.), Joseph D. Sargent (1881 S.), G. Lewis Sargent (1881 S.), Russell Sargent (1884 S.) and John Sargent (1904 S.); three uncles by marriage: Bruce Fenn (1877 S.), William A. Rice (1886 S.), and Samuel H. Fisher (1889); a first cousin, Frederick P. Miles (1876 S.), and a great something grandfather, Rev. Timothy Collins (1718).

In college he was a member of the Freshman crew, a substitute on the University crew in 1901 and stroke of the College crew in 1902. He was on the University Tennis team the spring of 1903 and held a First Colloquy Senior appointment. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and of the Elihu Club.

He writes: "After seeing Pierre Foster safely married, I took a trip abroad with Condict, sailing from New York on June 30, 1903, on the good ship Armenian for parts unknown (to us). During our three months European travels we made additions to our party which included two Williams men, a Princeton and a Harvard man, also a delightful band of Condict's relatives of various ages. We soaked our feet in London rains, took many exhilarating tramps in Switzerland, filled ourselves in Germany with Wagnerian opera and Munich beer, and looked at Paris. We returned home about the first of October in the Kaiserin Maria Theresa, a rocking horse with a beautiful name.

"At the present writing my chief occupation since graduation seems to have been the compilation of this book. I began work October 19, 1903, as hurry clerk in the Superintendent's office of Sargent and Company, hardware manufacturers, and have been hurrying ever since."

His address is 247 Church St., New Haven, Conn.

Harold Merriam Sawyer (B.A. 1903, M.A. 1906) was born in Troy, N. Y., June 2, 1882, prepared at the Bridgeport (Conn.) High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Walter W. Sawyer, was born in Providence, R. I., in 1855, the son of Andrew Sawyer and Mary C. (Filer) Sawyer.

His mother, whose maiden name was Alice Lilian Merriam, was the daughter of John O. Merriam and Sarah Maria (Potter) Merriam.

In college Sawyer was a member of the University Orchestra, and held a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "Immediately after Commencement I sailed for Europe accompanied by my parents. The summer of 1903 was spent in travel and in study in Freiburg in Germany. In October I went to Berlin, and I was engaged in work at the university there two semesters. The work I did was specialization in history, and for this work (it was submitted to Prof. Adams and by him to the M.A. committee) I am to be awarded the M.A. degree in June (1906). I remained in Berlin until July 1904, at which time we did some more traveling, sailing for America late in August.

"Shortly after my return to this country I entered the Harvard Law School, where I am at present. During the summer of 1905 I went to Europe with a Law School classmate, returning again in the fall to resume work at Harvard. I would gladly give you information in regard to future plans had I anything definite in view. This much I am able to say. I expect to practice law in some one of the States of the Union. Beyond that I cannot say what the future has in store for me."

His permanent address is care Burr and Knapp, Bridgeport, Conn.

Lewis Albert Sayre (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City September 18, 1881, prepared at the St. Paul School, Garden City, L. I., and entered college in the fall of 1899.

He is the son of Lewis Hall Sayre, a lawyer of New York. In college he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

After graduation he entered the Columbia Law School. He was obliged to give up his law school studies, however, on account of an accident he had in the winter of 1905, resultant of slipping and falling on the ice. In Columbia he was a member of the Temple Moot Court Club. He is now in the brokerage business in New York. His address is 228 West 44th Street, New York City.

Reeve Schley (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Columbia 1906) was born in New York City April 28, 1881, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered college with the Class.

His father, William T. Schley of the law firm of Bliss and Schley, was born in Canandaigua, N. Y., August 19, 1840, the son of Evander Schley and of Olive Hawley (Higbee) Schley.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Antoinette Reeve, was the daughter of Gen. Isaac Van Duzer Reeve, a veteran of the Seminole, Mexican and Civil wars, and of Elizabeth (Shepherd) Reeve.

Schley's Yale relatives include an uncle, Charles McC. Reeve (1870), and three first cousins: Chaloner B. Schley (1900 S.), Kenneth B. Schley (1902 S.) and Evander B. Schley (1904 S.).

In college he was Captain of and number seven on the Freshman crew, editor of the Banner, Manager of the Hockey team and a member of the University Tennis team. He was a member of Kappa Psi, Psi Upsilon and Wolf's Head societies. In Junior year he won a Henry James Ten Eyck third prize, and held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "After graduation I spent the following summer traveling in Europe with W. B. Tyler and H. W. DuPuy (1903). As there were a number of our class abroad at that time we were seldom alone. In the fall I entered the Columbia Law School, New York City. In June 1905 I took my examinations for the New York bar, which I was fortunate enough to pass. During that summer C. L. DuVal (1903) and I took a most interesting trip to Constantinople, Asia Minor and Greece. Returning in the fall I was admitted to practice at the bar, but continued at the Columbia Law School in order to get my degree, LL.B. The course is three years."

In the summer of 1906 he entered the law office of Lord, Day and Lord, 49 Wall St., New York City. He lives at 17 West 52d St.

William Schroeder, Jr., was born in New York City June 22, 1880, prepared at Dr. Julius Sach's School, New York City, and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year, leaving at the close of Junior.

His father, Carl Schroeder, died March 12, 1888. He was a silk importer of William Schroeder and Company, New York City. He was born in Crefeld, Germany, the son of William Schroeder, a silk merchant.

His mother, whose maiden name was Pauline Andreae, was the daughter of Otto Andreae, of Central Valley, Orange County, N. Y., and of Gertrude (Gale) Andreae.

In college he held a Dissertation Junior appointment.

He writes: "1. Occupation: Silk business, at 469 Broome Street. Left college at end of Junior year, 1902, having still five hours to pass before receiving degree. Hope to pass these off at earliest convenience. Since then have been in the above business, William Schroeder and Company.

"2. Am not married.

"3, 4, and 5. No post-graduate work; not connected with any other institutions or publications. Member of Company B, 71st Regiment, National Guard, New York.

"6. Two trips abroad since leaving Yale, through Holland and Germany; purely business trips.

"7. Residence address uncertain. Mail sure to reach me at 469 Broome Street, care William Schroeder and Co., or 1 West 81st Street, New York City."

William Sperry Searles (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Cleveland Law School 1906) was born in Mansfield, Ohio, September 1, 1880, prepared at the West High School, Cleveland, Ohio, and entered college in September 1899.

His father, the Rev. Francis Marion Searles (Ohio Wesleyan University 1863), died in November 1885. He was a Methodist minister and was born in Hinckley, Ohio, February 22, 1840, the son of Hurom Searles, a farmer, and of Velina (Kellogg) Searles.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Ellen Sperry, was the daughter of Chilion Sperry, a farmer, and of Sylvia Ursula (Gee) Sperry.

In college Searles won a Berkeley Premium in Latin Composition, second grade, in Freshman year, was the Learned Scholar in Sophomore and Junior years and the Scott-Hurtt Scholar in Senior year. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, held a Philosophical Oration Junior appointment and a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment, graduating sixth in rank.

He writes, December 1905: "It needs only a few words to give you my life since leaving New Haven in 1903. At once entering the office of the Cleveland Electric Railway, I have been there continuously till the present time. Although advanced twice I am yet in a very subordinate position, a victim of the soulless corporation. Along with the office work I have been carrying on law studies, one year at Western Reserve University, and the last two at a night school. I intend to take the bar examinations in the coming June. Pray for me. I blush to own that many of the old names of college life and the associations are slipping from my memory, but I hope the Triennial will revive them all. I am not married nor has my life contained anything other than I have mentioned of interest to the Class or posterity. I have seen very few of the fellows, much to my regret."

And later: "Graduated from Cleveland Law School in June, degree of LL.B. Admitted to the bar of Ohio in June 1906."

His address is 10 The Manhattan, Cleveland, Ohio.

Harold Frank Sheets (B.A. 1903) was born in Rochelle, Ill., May 3, 1883, prepared at the Northwestern Academy, Chicago, Ill., and entered the Class of 1904 from Northwestern University at the beginning of Sophomore year, joining 1903 in Senior year.

His father, Rev. Frank D. Sheets (Northwestern University 1880), was born in Mt. Morris, Ill., October 25, 1859, the son of Col. B. F. Sheets and Alice Victoria (Hill) Sheets.

His mother, whose maiden name was Minnie Louisa Ellinwood, was the daughter of Marvin B. Ellinwood and Anna (Bryce) Ellinwood.

In college Sheets was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and held a High Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since leaving college I have been continuously in the employ of the New York Life Insurance Company, holding various positions, from office boy to director of said company's branch in Portugal. I have been stationed during this period of time at the following points: Chicago, Havana, Bilbao, Madrid, and Lisbon, with intermittent sojourns in Paris and London.

"My business has so occupied my time that I have been unable to pay any attention to the gentler sex, and consequently have made no entangling alliances, either permanent or for a ten year period as suggested and advocated by George Meredith.

"My literary efforts have consisted in various short articles on the business and social conditions of the countries in which I have been located. Said articles have been published in the local papers of my home town and caused a great sensation. My journeys in foreign countries are as above stated. I expect to go to Brazil and the Argentine Republic in January of 1906. While in Madrid I had the pleasure and honor of rooming with John R. Freeman (1903). He has been residing since graduation in various parts of France, Germany, Austria and Switzerland. I may add that he has become an excellent linguist.

"I wish to say by way of closing that for over a year I had the distinction of being the only Yale graduate in the land of the Don, i. e. sunny Spain, and that there is a large field for Yale missionary work which should direct itself towards the suppression of the bull fight and the inculcation of American 'do it nowness.'"

His address is 99, Rua d'El Rei, Lisbon, Portugal. His home address is 614 Peach St., Rockford, Ill.

Joseph Martin Skrable (B.A. Western College, Iowa 1902, B.A. Yale 1903) was born in Elberon, Iowa, November 28, 1880, the son of John Skrable. He entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year, graduating with an Oration Senior appointment.

Since graduation he has studied law at Harvard. Illness prevented his taking his LL.B. degree in June 1906. He is spending the summer of 1906 abroad and expects to practise in Iowa. His address is Elberon, Iowa.

Brockholst Mathewson Smith (B.A. 1903) was born in Providence, R. I., October 17, 1881, prepared at the Providence High School and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, George Mathewson Smith (Brown 1869), is the Treasurer of the Eagle Mills, manufacturers of cotton goods. He was born in Providence in 1849, the son of Amos Dennison Smith and of Amy Ann (Mathewson) Smith.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Elizabeth Taft, was the daughter of Royal Chapin Taft and Mary (Armington) Taft.

In college Smith played left field on the Freshman nine, was a member of the College nine and a substitute on the Hockey team. He was a member of Eta Phi, Psi Upsilon and Scroll and Key societies. He held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

After leaving college he traveled for a year with F. J. O. Alsop and A. D. Dodge around the world. He has since been with the Eagle Mills, manufacturers of cotton goods. His address is Box 1413, or 165 Hope St., Providence, R. I.

George Arthur Smith (B.A. 1903) was born in Hartford, Conn., December 15, 1880, prepared at the Hartford Public High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Edwin Jones Smith, Sheriff of Hartford County, was Fire Commissioner for twelve years, President of Fire Board six years, and for twenty-five years was a retail merchant. He was born in Washington, Conn., June 19, 1844, the son of David Tilton Smith, a merchant of Hartford, and of Maria (Jones) Smith.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Henrietta Moses, died May 6, 1890, and was the daughter of Luther Moses, a blacksmith of Hartford, and of Mary (Lamson) Moses.

In college Smith was a member of the Dramatic Association and held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment. Henry D. Smith (Yale 1908 S.) is a step-brother.

He writes: "There still remain a great many rocky and labyrinthine paths for me to traverse before I launch out in the highway. The October following graduation I entered the medical department of Johns Hopkins University. Here I have done little except study, study, study in an endeavor to acquire honesty, truth, accuracy and thoroughness in medicine. Often dark and threatening clouds have crossed my path, but these were soon dispelled and the sun shone brighter than ever. I expect to get my M.D. in June 1907, and then serve an internship in one of the large hospitals for a year or two. After that my future plans are undetermined. The present has enough in store for me to think about. Any letters sent to 42 Seyms St., Hartford, Conn., will reach me until June 1907, or they may be sent to 111 Jackson Place, Baltimore, Md."

Lowell William Smith was born in Casnovia, Mich., March 19, 1878, prepared at the Albion (N. Y.) High School and entered college in September 1899, leaving in Freshman year.

His father, William M. Smith, a farmer of Albion, N. Y., was born in Albion October 22, 1849. He was the son of Col. Russell Smith, and of Lidia (Warren) Smith.

His mother, whose maiden name was Rosetta E. Blanchard, was the daughter of Chandler Blanchard, a farmer, and of Lucy (Lindsley) Blanchard.

Smith was married in Rochester, N. Y., October 28, 1905, to Miss Alice Shearer, daughter of Frank Shearer, a dentist.

He writes: "As you remember, I was in college but one year. In January 1901 I enlisted in Detroit, Mich., to go to the Philippines. Was sent to Presidio, San Francisco, where our regiment was drilled for about five weeks, and was then sent on to Manila. I was in 'L' Company, 26th Infantry. Sailed on transport Sheridan February 16, 1901, and returned in July via Japan aboard the transport Logan. On the way over we stopped at Honolulu for three days. This gave us a good opportunity to see that place. Reached Manila March 19, 1901, and it was during the time that we were in Manila Bay that Aguinaldo was taken prisoner.

"My regiment was stationed for the larger part of the time in southern Luzon, but we served for nine months, during the Samar campaign, on the Island of Samar under Gen. Smith. We helped capture Gen. Larbau, the Filipino leader. For a large part of the time I served on special duty in the quartermaster and commissary departments and Adjutant's office. My regiment was engaged in several small skirmishes, but I was under fire but once. On the return home a favorable opportunity was given for seeing something of the life in Japan. We stopped in Nagasaki three days. I spent some time in Fort Brown, Texas, after returning to the United States and was discharged there.

"After returning east I studied medicine for a year in the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, but did not continue it on account of my health. Went west for a few months and came back much benefited. Last October I married and have taken up farming. My health is better living an outdoor life and I am doing fairly well, so will probably continue farming, making a specialty of fruit growing."

His address is Albion, N. Y.

Robert Seneca Smith (B.A. 1903, M.A. 1905, B.D. 1906) was born in Clarendon, Vt., November 18, 1880, prepared for college at the Rutland (Vt.) English and Classical Institute and entered in the fall of 1899.

His father, Seneca Eugene Smith, a farmer of Clarendon, was born in Clarendon October 20, 1852, the son of Nathan Smith and Alzina (Button) Smith.

His mother, whose maiden name was Martha Fuller Everest, was the daughter of Heman Everest and Theresa (Ewing) Everest.

In college Smith was a member of the Freshman Glee Club, a member of Zeta Psi and Vice President of Phi Beta Kappa. He won a second Henry James Ten Eyck prize in Junior year, held a Philosophical Oration Junior and the same Senior appointment, graduating ninth in rank.

For the last two years he has been University General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and has also studied theology in the Yale Divinity School, graduating in June 1906.

He was married since Triennial to Miss Emma Wyman Kingsley, daughter of J. H. Kingsley of East Clarendon, Vt.

His permanent address is Clarendon, Vt.

William Burr Wright Smith (B.A. 1903) was born in Bridgeport, Conn., September 16, 1881, prepared for college at the University School, Bridgeport, and entered with the Class.

His father, Eli Couch Smith, died January 9, 1901. He was born in Greens Farms, Conn., December 16, 1850, the son of Horace Smith and Mary Elizabeth (Couch) Smith.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Elizabeth Wright, was the daughter of William Burr Wright and Mary (Sanford) Wright.

Daniel Sanford Smith (Yale 1901 S.) is a brother.

Smith is in manufacturing with the Wheel and Wood Bending Company of Bridgeport. His business address is 171 John St., or P. O. Box 552, Bridgeport, Conn. His residence is 304 Beechwood Ave.

Levings Hooker Somers (B.A. 1903) was born in Greenwich, N. Y., September 10, 1881, prepared at the Auburn (N. Y.) High School and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Warrington Somers (Dartmouth 1877), a teacher in the Auburn High School, was born in July 1849, the son of Bartholomew Gilbraith Somers, a farmer, and of Margaret (Harvey) Somers.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Addie Hooker, was the daughter of Rev. Levings Hooker Hooker and Sarah (Blanchard) Hooker.

In college Somers was a member of the Freshman Glee Club and held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment. Carl W. Somers (Yale 1906) is a brother.

He writes: "Very few of your suggestions for this letter apply to my case, for I have been since graduation leading the humble, humdrum life of a school teacher in an academy in a very small village. The academy is large and the work plentiful so I have no time for outside interests, and beside the small town offers none. My work has been mostly in mathematics with some Latin. One pleasant phase of my work has been in the association of our classmate, Sam Brereton, who has been in the work here for the last two years. My plans for the future are at present air castles. They may involve an early change of location and field of labor, with a year's study and travel abroad. These, however are just idle dreams of spare moments. My permanent address is 22 Westlake Avenue, Auburn, N. Y."

His present address is Lock Box 7, Mercersburg, Pa.

George Phelps Spencer (Ph.B. 1903) was born in Watertown, N. Y., September 23, 1878, prepared for college at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and at the Holderness School, Plymouth, N. H., and entered with the Class. He left during the fall term of Freshman year and entered the Sheffield Scientific School the following September.

His father, James Decker Spencer, M.D., is a physician and surgeon (Doctors Spencer, Bibbins and Pierce), graduating from the Bellevue Hospital Medical College in 1870, and was one time President of the Medical Society of the State of New York. He was born in Denmark, Lewis County, N. Y., April 14, 1849, the son of Henry Gordon Percival Spencer, M.D., of Watertown, a surgeon in the War of 1812, and of Deborah (Mallery) Spencer.

His mother, whose maiden name was Frances Eleanor Phelps, was the daughter of George Benjamin Phelps, a railroad contractor of Watertown, and of Agnes (Phillipson) Phelps.

In college Spencer was President of the 1903 Freshman Football Association, was a Cup man, Vice President of the University Club and a member of Delta Psi.

He writes: "Started to work the following autumn, October 26, 1903, in the St. Regis Paper Company's mill at Deferiet, N. Y., February 20, 1905, was transferred to Toggarts Company's paper mill at Felts Mills, N. Y. November 18, 1905, took charge of the Petoskey Paper Fibre Company's sulphite mill at Petoskey, Michigan. Left February 1, 1906. I do not know just where I shall go next, either North Carolina or Maine."

His address is 59 Washington St., Watertown, N. Y.

Frederick Randolph Stauffer (B.A. 1903) was born in Reading, Pa., August 28, 1881, prepared at the Reading High School, and entered Yale in September 1899.

His father, Abner Keely Stauffer (Franklin and Marshall College 1858), a lawyer, was born in Boyertown, Pa., October 11, 1836, the son of Judge John Stauffer and of Elizabeth (Keely) Stauffer.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary High Keim, died August 2, 1891, and was the daughter of John H. Keim, a banker of Dubuque, Ia., and of Martha Elizabeth (Randolph) Keim.

In college he was a member of the University Banjo and Mandolin Club, a member of Alpha Delta Phi and was Business Manager of the Yale Record. He held an Oration Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment. John K. Stauffer (Yale 1895) is a brother.

He writes: "On October 1, 1903, I began the study of law in the office of Baer, Snyder and Zieber in Reading, Pa., and at the same time took the position of court reporter for the Reading Herald, which I held until May 1, 1904. In the fall of the same year I took part in the presidential campaign, being one of the speakers for the Republican County Committee, and have been in various campaigns since. In the spring of 1905 Herbert R. Green (1887) and I organized the Yale Club of Reading, of which I have since been Secretary.

"December 4 and 5, 1905, I passed my examinations for admission to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania and the courts of Berks County and was admitted to practice on February 13, 1906. Have opened an office for the general practice of law at 521 Court St., Reading, Pa."

He lives at 1513 Hill Road, Reading, Pa.

Warren Merrill Steele (B.A. Acadia University 1902, B.A. Yale 1903, M.A. Yale 1904) was born in Amherst, Nova Scotia, November 20, 1876, prepared at the Horton Collegiate Academy, Wolfville, N. S., and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, the Rev. David Allen Steele (Acadia 1865), was born in St. John's Wood, London, England, the son of John Steele, a government revenue officer, and of Mary (Hebb) Steele.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Whitman, was the daughter of Spinney Whitman and Martha Whitman.

After graduation Steele entered the Yale Graduate School to study philosophy. He received the M.A. degree in 1904 and then accepted the chair of philosophy in Furman University, Greenville, S. C.

He was married August 30, 1904, in Amherst, N. S., to Miss Charlotte Beatrice Fuller, daughter of Robert Charles Fuller, a pharmacist of Amherst. A daughter, Sophie Marian Steele, was born September 28, 1905.

He writes: "My work is most congenial. Greenville is the 'pearl of the Piedmont in the land of the sky,' but it is a dusky pearl—there are lots of those in the South!—and the prospects are not all sunny, but for the most part the opportunities cannot be excelled on this continent. The South is coming.”

His address is care Furman University, or 418 Choice Ave., Greenville, S. C.

Henry Root Stern (B.A. 1903, LL.B. and M.A. Columbia 1906) was born in New York City September 22, 1882, prepared at Morse's School, New York City, and Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Simon Hunt Stern (Columbia Law School 1869), of the law firm of Stern and Rushmore, New York City, was born in Richmond, Virginia, October 13, 1849, the son of Meyer Stern and Diana (Hunt) Stern.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sara Stern, was the daughter of David Stern, a merchant, and of Rose (Menderson) Stern.

A brother, Walter Thomas Stern (1899), preceded him at Yale.

In college Stern was on the Hockey team, was Chairman of the Yale Record, and a member of the Freshman Glee Club. He was Secretary and Treasurer of Cercle Francais, Manager of the first French play and a member of the Dramatic Association. He won in Senior year the DeForest Prize Medal. He was a member of Psi Upsilon and held a First Dispute Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: “1. (a) Residence. 986 Fifth Avenue, New York, since 1903. I forget just what date I left college but it was as long after graduation as I could decently make it. (b) Occupation. Law student at Columbia during academic year—work in law office during summer—and on my own hook whenever I have had the chance. Will enter employ of law firm of Stern and Rushmore permanently, I hope, next June (1906). My father is senior partner, other members, Charles E. Rushmore and Eldon Bisbee. Nature of business—managing estates, commercial and banking law.

“2. As you are probably bored to extinction with attempted witticism in answer to this question, I will merely answer—nothing doing.

“3. Have been studying for an LL.B. at Columbia Law

School and have also taken the total of about ten hours a week in the Columbia School of Political Science during the three years since graduation. I expect next June to get an LL.B. and an M.A., the latter for political science. This is all contingent on passing final law examinations and on finishing a political science thesis.

"4. Various unsigned articles in editorial department of Columbia Law Review, since January 1905.

"5. (a) What do you mean by social organizations? Dancing classes or clubs? (b) Religious—None. (c) Politics, yes. I don't know whether you could call being elected at the primaries to the Democratic Convention Committee of the 29th District and subsequently to the General Committee of the same, also to the Osceola Club Ball Committee of 'de twenty-nint', offices of honor, trust and profit. Of course the honor is immense, but so far there has been a large absence of trust and profit. However, if my meteoric rise in politics continues I may yet be the proud possessor, in the course of years, of a job in the street cleaning department. I am a member of the legal fraternity of Phi Delta Phi and President of the Temple Moot Court Club at Columbia.

"Seriously though, in the course of the last year I have taken a good deal of interest in politics. Was one of the organizers of the Columbia Political Club and am Vice President and Chairman of the Executive Committee of said club, which is similar in object and character to the City Government Club at Yale. Have just returned from Washington from an interview which Roosevelt accorded to the various delegates of these college clubs, of which interview you may have heard.

"6. No journeys except between 116th Street and Wall Street. This last fall though took a month's trip off, about ten days in Laurentian district in Canada for trout, and then into New Brunswick along the Tobique River in the moose country with Bill Ray and Jim Pierce, a couple of '98 men. Splendid shooting and fishing; got a bull moose and lots of small game, Hope to get back there for a week in June for some salmon fishing.

"7. Permanent address: care Stern and Rushmore, 40 Wall Street, New York City.

"8. (a) Nothing else I can think of except being elected an editor of the Columbia Law Review and passing my bar examinations last June (1905). Haven't been arrested yet for violating the speed laws, haven't eloped with any chorus girls nor have I yet stopped a runaway horse or saved a baby from drowning."

And later: "I received a degree of LL.B. from the Columbia Law School last June and also an M.A. from the School of Political Science, for which the aforesaid faculty charged me respectively $25 per, and which I am now prepared to sell to any respectable party at a liberal discount."

John Henry Stevens (B.A. 1903) was born in Alton, N. H., January 28, 1880, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., and entered with the Class.

His father, Nathaniel Stevens, was a lumber merchant.

After graduation Stevens took a position with the North American Trust Company, New York City, and rose to be a teller. He has recently taken a position with William A. Read and Company, bankers, Pine and Nassau Sts., New York City. (See Addenda.)

John McAllister Stevenson, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Pittsfield, Mass., August 26, 1881, prepared at the Pittsfield High School and at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, John McAllister Stevenson of the Class of Yale 1869, is Secretary of the Berkshire Mutual Fire Insurance Company and a member of Stevenson and Company, insurance agents of Pittsfield. He was born in Cambridge, Washington County, N. Y., August 31, 1846, the son of John McAllister Stevenson, a lawyer of Cambridge, N. Y., and of Seraph Huldah (Newton) Stevenson.

His mother, whose maiden name was Hattie Cooley, was the daughter of Samuel Mather Cooley, a merchant of Pittsfield, and of Almira Louisa (Tillotson) Cooley.

Stevenson's Yale relatives include two brothers, Louis Tillotson Stevenson (Yale 1906 S.) and Holland Newton Stevenson, 2d (1908 S.); a great grandfather, Rev. Timothy Mather Cooley, D.D. (1792), and an uncle, Arthur N. Cooley, of the Class of 1878. Rev. Samuel Mather, one of the founders of Yale, is an ancestor.

Stevenson received the DeForest Mathematical prize in Sophomore year, and held an Oration Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment.

He writes: "After Commencement I reached my home in Pittsfield and there lay dormant, almost comatose, for several months. On November 30, 1903, I started in with the Stanley Electric Manufacturing Company in Pittsfield, which had been recently acquired by the General Electric Company. I had worked there the summer before Senior year. I started on assembly work and learned to build transformers, generators, switchboards and instruments. After about eight months' work or in July 1904, I left them temporarily, or took a seven months' vacation. This was partly because work was very slack, partly because my brother Louis was very ill and my own health had not kept up. I must say, though, that work has agreed with me very well despite the so-called long ten hour days and that now I am ever so much stronger, healthier and capable of better work with brain and body than I ever was in school and college. I did take a look in at other jobs, e. g. the insurance actuaries, which I found well filled long ago, but found in fact that I really wanted to be an electrical engineer. I started again in March at the Pittsfield works, now the Stanley-G. I. Electric Manufacturing Company. At the end of April I was transferred to the Lynn works of the General Electric Company and began testing motors. In September they sent me to the Windsor works, late the Eddy Electric Company, to test electric automobile motors. I was there three months and returned to the Lynn works, where I have been testing the Curtis steam turbine generators. I shall be in this same line until June and after that the rest of my testing course at Lynn will probably take up the rest of the year. It is a three years course here, but how long I shall keep on it is for those over me to decide. I then hope to get some engineering or executive position at Lynn, Pittsfield or in one of the Company's various district offices. Even if they turn me adrift I shall have then acquired that mythical thing known as a technical education and be on a par with any of the output of the rate shops of Cornell and Massachusetts Tech. I want to say that this is no education, though it is a fetish that exists in the minds of many educators and employers, especially those over me. But I am going to show them engineering is a profession. An engineer should be an educated man, yes, even an academic man, and conversely an academic man should be an engineer if he so choose. This is the Pittsfield Idea. It was for this that Gordon McKay left his millions to Harvard University and it is for this that I, etc. I don't regret my four years as a loss, nor ever can because I have learned things Tech. men cannot even think of. I will say that Sheff. is the coming school because it is scientific not technical, that they are right when they say that shop work should be learned in shops. In advanced studies I have taken up a course of graduate work in absence, as is our privilege, for an M.A. This includes the electricity course I took extra in Sheff., some more mathematics and mathematical physics. I hope to finish it by June (1906), but most likely it will go over another year, perhaps longer, for I get very little leisure. In a literary way I have done nothing beyond what has been publicly confided to the Class, though I have interests in other channels. Joining the Institute of Electrical Engineers is not a recognition of any ability or achievement but simply a willingness to pay so much and receive their publications. I see Norman Hull and the Harvard Law men every week whittling their minds down to a long thin needle or dagger to try and probe into the holes in your outward semblance."

And later, August 1906: "Please kill my Lynn address in the Record, as I will have a different one when I get back."

He was elected an associate member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers June 14, 1905. His home address is 28 Reed St., Pittsfield, Mass.

Ralph Griffiths Stillman (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City February 21, 1882, prepared at the Pingry School, Elizabeth, N. J., and entered college with the Class.

His father, Frank Moody Stillman of F. M. Stillman Company, contractors, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1853, the son of William Mix Stillman, a shirt manufacturer, and of Sarah (Moody) Stillman.

His mother, whose maiden name was Caroline Amelia Griffiths, was the daughter of John Griffiths, a farmer of Ottawa, Ill.

Stillman divided with R. K. Clark a Benjamin F. Barge Mathematical third prize and held a Dissertation Junior and a Dissertation Senior appointment. Edward Stillman (Yale 1902 S.) is a cousin.

He writes: "I entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons here in New York in the fall of 1903 and since that time my chief occupation has been the endeavor to keep up with my class in that institution and not perish in the attempt. If I hold out until the spring of 1907 I expect, with the grace of Columbia University, to be the proud possessor of an M.D. The occupation is all-absorbing and aside from it I have done little. I did take a three weeks course in the Lying-In Hospital last summer and followed it by a trip south to Jacksonville and North Carolina to cool off after my work in East Side New York.

"My only political work was as a ward worker in my home town, Rahway, N. J., in the fall of 1904. Our party was completely overwhelmed and I gracefully retired, upon the suggestion that I was the hoodoo. Since that time I have not attempted to break out into any side lines at all and have led a calm and unventful existence. I still hold residence and vote in Rahway, N. J., which is my permanent address."

Charles Henry Stoll, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Lexington, Ky., September 19, 1882, the son of Charles Henry Stoll. Before entering Yale he was a member of the Class of 1901 Kentucky University. His address is care the Socorro Company, Elmendorf, N. M. (See Addenda.)

Theron Roundell Strong (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1906) was born in New York City October 30, 1881, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Theron George Strong (Rochester 1868), a lawyer of New York, was born in Palmyra, N. Y., August 14, 1846, the son of Hon. Theron R. Strong, M.C., Judge of the Supreme Court and of the Court of Appeals of New York, and of Cornelia (Barnes) Strong.

His mother, whose maiden name was Martha Howard Prentice, was the daughter of John H. Prentice, of Brooklyn, and of Sarah N. (Davis) Prentice.

Strong's Yale relatives include a brother, Prentice Strong (1901), an uncle, Payson Merrill (1865), and two cousins, Arthur J. Slade (1892 S.) and George T. Slade (1893).

In college he rowed Number two on the Freshman crew, was stroke of the College crew in 1901 and stroke of the University Four Oar in 1901. He was a member of the University Banjo and Mandolin Club and of Psi Upsilon.

Since graduation Strong has been studying law, interrupted for nearly a year by a severe illness. He received his degree from the New York Law School in 1906 and is at present practicing with the firm of Merrill and Rogers, 31 Nassau St., New York City. He lives at 29 East 65th St., New York.

William Roy Stuart (B.A. 1903) was born in Cleveland, Ohio, April 27, 1878, prepared at the Oberlin (O.) Academy and entered Yale from Oberlin College at the beginning of Junior year.

His father, William Frazer Stuart, who was in the carriage business, was born in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, May 4, 1851, the son of William F. Stuart and Elizabeth (Johnson) Stuart.

His mother, whose maiden name was Agnes Roy, was the daughter of Peter Roy and Katherine (Galloway) Roy.

In college Stuart held a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "As soon as I graduated I sailed for Europe, where I made an extensive tour of the continent along with some other Yale men. Returning in October of the same year, I took a position as Assistant Cashier of the New York Life Insurance Company at Cleveland, Ohio. I remained in Cleveland five months and was then sent by above named company to Cuba to take a position in their Santiago office preparatory to going as one of their representatives to Spain. I remained in Santiago seven months and then returned to this country to accept the position I have at present, Cashier of the Ætna Life Insurance Company at Yonkers. This past year I have taken up the study of law at the New York Law School and hope to get my degree and be admitted to the bar in June 1907. I think this rounds out my experiences."

He lives at 108 Warburton Ave., Yonkers, N. Y. His home address is Cleveland, O.

Thomas Sturgis, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City July 18, 1881, prepared at the Pomfret (Conn.) School and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Thomas Sturgis, a Civil War veteran, has been a state senator of Wyoming and Fire Commissioner of New York City. He is a banker of Strong, Sturgis and Company of New York, and was born in Hingham, Mass., in 1846, the son of William Sturgis, a New York merchant, and of Elizabeth Knight (Hinckley) Sturgis.

His mother, whose maiden name was Helen Rutgers Weir, was the daughter of Col. Robert Weir, U. S. A., and of Susan Martha (Bayard) Weir.

In college Sturgis was a substitute on the University Hockey team, played on the University Tennis team in the spring of 1903, and was a member of Eta Phi and Psi Upsilon societies.

He writes, December 1905: "Shortly after leaving college I went in to work for Strong, Sturgis and Company, bankers, New York, and worked for them nearly two years. I threw up the job last July and since then have been doing nothing, loafing in and around New York. I am thinking of going back to Wall Street about February or March of next year, but I have made no definite plans."

His address is 138 East 36th Street, New York City.

Jeremiah Barrett Sullivan (B.A. 1903, M.D. 1906) was born in New Haven, Conn., October 19, 1880, prepared at the Hillhouse High School, New Haven, and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Daniel F. Sullivan, was born in Ireland in 1851, the son of Jeremiah Sullivan and Mary (Fitzpatrick) Sullivan.

His mother, whose maiden name was Marguerite Barrett, was the daughter of John Barrett and Anne (Winters) Barrett.

In college Sullivan held a Dissertation Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment. Since graduation he has studied medicine at Yale, graduating in 1906 with honors. He has also been elected a member of Sigma Xi. November 1, 1906, he expects to go to the Rhode Island Hospital, Providence, for two years. His address is 245 Washington Ave., New Haven, Conn.

*Walter Sullivan (B.A. 1903) died on the night of July 12, 1905. He was on his way from San Francisco to the Philippine Islands to visit his sister, the wife of Col. J. L.

Clem, U. S. A., at Manila. He was lost overboard from the steamship Manchuria when near Honolulu. He was born in Indianola, Texas, October 15, 1881, the son of Daniel Sullivan of the D. Sullivan & Company, bankers of San Antonio, and of Annie (Cotter) Sullivan, now deceased.

He first attended St. Mary's College at San Antonio, Texas, then went to Rock Hill College near Baltimore, and before coming to Yale at the beginning of Junior year, spent a short time at Harvard and Georgetown universities. He entered his father's banking firm immediately after graduation and at the time of his death held the position of Assistant Cashier.

Though Sullivan entered late in the course he was elected in the spring of Junior year a member of Alpha Delta Phi. A classmate writes of him: "Sully was so confoundedly sensitive that it was hard for the average man at college to get to know him even passably well, but the men who did finally succeed in getting past his reserve certainly never had a better, truer friend. He was very unselfish in every way and what few enemies he had were made by his quick temper and the very impulsiveness which was at the bottom of his attractiveness to his friends."

At the Triennial Meeting of the Class, June 26, 1906, the following resolutions were passed on his death:—

"In the death of Walter Sullivan, we, his classmates, have sustained an irreparable loss. His genial and unselfish disposition made him widely beloved, and his frank and manly character commanded universal respect.

Resolved: That we extend our sincere and heartfelt sympathy to his family in their bereavement, and

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family and that a copy be published in the 'Triennial Record.'"

W. A. BLOUNT, JR.,

HENRY JAMES,

CARLES A. MOORE, JR.,

for the Class of 1903.

Stuart Bruen Sutphin (B.A. 1903) was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, November 26, 1881, prepared at the Walnut Hills High School, Cincinnati, and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Isaac Vanness Sutphin, a graduate of Delaware (O.) College, was born in Middletown, Ohio, November 22, 1849.

His mother, whose maiden name was Katharine Priscilla Brady, died April 30, 1891.

Two brothers, Dudley Vanness Sutphin (1897) and Samuel Brady Sutphin (1899 S.), preceded him at Yale.

In college Sutphin was a member of the Freshman and Apollo Glee clubs, played full back on the Freshman Football team and was a Cup man. He was Chairman of the Senior Promenade Committee, a member of the Class Day Committee and of Kappa Psi, Delta Kappa Epsilon and Skull and Bones societies, and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "As you know, when I graduated I entered The I. V. Sutphin Company, paper makers' supplies and iron, Cincinnati, Ohio, and have been with them ever since and will probably stay for some time to come. I lived by myself the first year and then went to live with my brother and sister-in-law where I am now. I have not been back at New Haven since graduation but went on to Chan Hamlin's and Jack Driesbach's weddings, two events not soon to be forgotten. Am sorry I seem to be unable to follow their example but such is life in the far west. However I may buck up and show some speed later on. I have spent most of my time looking after one J. B. Minor and I can assure you that it has kept me pretty busy. I spent the first summer after leaving college with Harv. McClintock and he has probably told you of our thrilling adventure in the waters of old Lake Michigan. Then I had another adventure last spring when my horse fell on me and broke my foot. But enough of the accidents of life. Otherwise I have been most happy and contented and don't feel a bit older than when I left except for a few hard business knocks which we all probably have run into. You will probably think I am younger when you see me at Triennial as I am looking forward to what might be termed 'A Time.'"

His business address is 935 West 5th St. and his residence 2915 Vernon Place, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Paul Bailey Sweet (B.A. Washburn College 1902, B.A. Yale 1903) was born in Topeka, Kansas, February 9, 1881, prepared at the Topeka High School and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Timothy Bailey Sweet, a capitalist of Topeka, was born April 11, 1841, the son of Lorella Sweet and Mary Wooster (Bailey) Sweet.

His mother, whose maiden name was Annie Eliza Brown, was the daughter of William Brown and Susan Bradford (Finley) Brown.

Sweet graduated from Yale with an Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "After leaving Yale in June 1903 I spent a little over a year with my father in looking after the property interests of the family. After returning from the St. Louis Fair I entered the Bank of Topeka October 1, 1904, where I lasted just three months. January 1, 1905, I entered the office of the Counseling Engineer, Mechanical Department of the Achison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway system. On October 1, 1905, the 'powers that be' saw fit to promote me to be chief clerk, in which capacity I am continuing my labors."

His residence is 231 Topeka Ave., Topeka, Kansas.

George Edmund Sykes (B.A. 1903) was born in Rockville, Conn., June 4, 1880, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered college in September 1899.

His father, George Sykes, President of the Hockanum Company, woolen manufacturers, was the son of John Sykes, a manufacturer of Yorkshire, England, and of Harriett (Durrans) Sykes.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah A. Fitton, was the daughter of James Fitton, a manufacturer of Lancashire, England, and of Mary (Watson) Fitton.

He writes: "My residence has always been in Rockville, Conn., and the shack on the corner is called 'Elsmere'. Since I left college my occupation has been varied. First I entered a woolen mill and learned the trade. Starting in by sorting wool and ended up by helping to run the place until my father died. Then I got married and traveled for a while and now I have bought out the Hartford Pulp Plaster Corporation and am trying to put it on a good basis. I am Secretary and Treasurer of the Corporation and sometimes work at it.

"I left college I think the day after I received my sheepskin 1903. The dates and places of entering business are as follows: in 1903 I entered the employment of my father and left that business December 23, 1904. I entered the Hartford Pulp Plaster Corporation in April 1905 and have A. L. Hills for a partner.

"In answer to question 2, 'Married?' Yes. It took place April 6, 1904, in Dorchester, Mass. My wife was Bernice Dean Heath and her father's full name is Edwin Lansing Heath, confidential Secretary to President Wood of the American Woolen Company in Dorchester, Mass. Refuse to tell the names of the children, also the dates of their birth.

"During 1904 I traveled through France, Germany, Switzerland, Holland, England, Scotland and America in an automobile, including a trip to California and return and even saw the Mormons. Rockville is my permanent address and any letters sent there will reach me safely."

Harlan Couch Taylor (B.A. 1903) was born in Guilford, Conn., August 22, 1882, prepared at the Middletown (Conn.) High School and entered college with the Class.

In college he held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

Since graduation he has been with the National Biscuit Company, 10th Ave. and 15th St., New York City.

William Hendrickson Taylor (B.A. 1903) was born in Burlington, N. J., April 5, 1878, prepared at the Pennington (N. J.) Seminary and entered with the Class.

His father, William George Taylor, died in 1882.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ella Frances Smith, died in March 1899, and was the daughter of Isaac Thomas Smith and Ann Eliza (Parker) Smith.

In college Taylor was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, held a High Oration Junior appointment, and a High Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "After the boat race the year we graduated I spent Sunday with some friends and on Monday entered the service of the International Banking Corporation at forty dollars per month, expecting to spend eighteen months in New York and six in London before coming out east. I was pushed through the different departments and before six months was over was billeted for the Orient, the first American sent out by the Corporation. Visited our branches at San Francisco, Yokohama, Shanghai and Hong Kong with a side trip to Canton, where we soon afterward opened up a branch. Since arriving here (Manila) my promotion has been more rapid than I dared hope and on August of the past year I received my promotion as a senior officer of the Corporation, a promotion I had hoped would come at the end of five or possibly three years if I made good in that time. At present I am second in the Branch and have full charge of the office, and I think that is all there is to it.

"If nothing unforeseen happens I expect my life will be spent in the International Banking Corporation. I have had several flattering offers at much higher salaries to leave but I entered the Corporation almost at its incipiency and I want to see it through. So that any letters addressed to the head office at 60-62 Wall Street, New York, will be reasonably sure of reaching me.

"I am sorry I must miss the Triennial Reunion but I will be with you all in thought. I am planning already to be present at the next one, however, for at that time I will be on my year's leave. I might add that I like the life very much out here. Every moment is filled. Business is increasing daily for us in spite of the hard times prevalent in the Islands so that I fear our gain is at the cost of our competitors, but it is a great game, the kind that makes or breaks a man, and I like it."

William Kenney Terriberry (B.A. 1903) was born in Glen Gardner, N. J., June 23, 1880, prepared at Leal's School, Plainfield, N. J., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Andrew Miller Terriberry, of Terriberry and Kenney, merchants of Somerville, N. J., was born in Junction, N. J., June 5, 1854, the son of Nathan Terriberry and Margaret (Stires) Terriberry.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Pickel Kenney, was the daughter of William J. Kenney and Eleanor (Queen) Kenney.

In college Terribery held a Dissertation Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment. William S. Terribery (Yale 1893) is a first cousin.

He writes, December 1905: "I have been existing in New York City as a medical student at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and last spring passed the New York State partial examinations in that subject, so I am half a doctor in the sight of the law. A year from next spring I expect to receive my M.D. from Columbia. No, I am not married nor have I even taken steps toward following Al Lamb's lead. My first year in P. and S. I became a member of Iota Chapter of Nu Sigma Nu and have acted as Secretary of that chapter ever since. My permanent address is Somerville, New Jersey, and anything sent there will be forwarded to me."

Menter Bradley Terrill (B.A. 1903, M.A. 1906) was born in Moberly, Mo., February 11, 1868, prepared at the Winchester (Tenn.) Normal School and entered college at the beginning of Junior year.

His father, James William Terrill, a teacher, was born in Moberly, Mo., March 16, 1837, the son of Benjamin Terrill and Delilah (Crisler) Terrill.

His mother's maiden name was Bettie Bradley. She died in 1873.

In college Terrill was a member of the College Choir and won the Cobden Club medal in 1903. He was the Valedictorian of the Class.

He was married November 18, 1891, in McMinnville, Tenn., to Miss Ada Thurman (B.A. North Texas Normal College, Denton, Texas, 1901), daughter of O. M. Thurman, a merchant of McMinnville.

He writes: "A statement of my whereabouts and work, since graduation in 1903, is of necessity quite brief. I taught mathematics for two years at The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and returned here this year for graduate work. I hope to receive the degree of M.A. at the coming Commencement (1906). My plans for the future will locate me in Dallas, Texas, where I shall open in September a small preparatory school for boys."

His address is Swiss Avenue, Dallas, Texas.

Ralph Huntington Thacher (B.A. 1903) was born in Albany, N. Y., November 23, 1881, prepared at the Albany Academy and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Ralph Wheeler Thacher (Hamilton 1859), died February 27, 1903. He was in the grain commission business and was also President of the Albany Art Union. He was born in Brockport, N. Y., April 24, 1839, the son of Ralph Thacher and Jerusha (Harrison) Thacher.

His mother, whose maiden name was Louise Clinton Huntington, was the daughter of Henry Huntington and Harriet (Douw) Huntington.

In college Thacher was a member of Psi Upsilon and held a Second Dispute Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes, January 1906: "I entered the employ of Tacks Manufacturing Company of Utica, N. Y., in August 1903 and did a good deal of traveling for the firm for about a year. Through the next year I did some traveling and some inside work. In July 1905 I resigned and in August went into the car shops of the U. and M. V. Railway Company and have been there ever since. At present I am night foreman of one of the barns."

And later, August 1906: "Since I last wrote you I have changed my occupation and for several months past have been with the Central New York Telephone and Telegraph Company. The main office is at Syracuse, N. Y., and anything addressed to me there will reach me although my home address still remains 26 Kemble Street, Utica, N. Y."

Herbert Franklin Thomas was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., December 13, 1880, prepared at the St. Paul School, Garden City, L. I., at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and at the Albany (N. Y.) Academy and entered with the Class, leaving at Christmas 1899. He returned in the fall of 1900 for one term with the Class of 1904.

He is the son of Orlando Frank Thomas, President of the Consolidated National Bank of New York, of the Hudson Trust Company of New York and of the Bank of Wayne, Lyons, N. Y., and of Emma (Van Cleaf) Thomas, who died in 1896.

Thomas was married September 18, 1900, to Miss Amanda

Wallace Caskie, daughter of the late Col. Robert A. Caskie of Richmond, Va., a graduate of the University of Virginia.

He writes: "Since leaving college I have been in business, first on the Pacific coast, at Seattle, where I remained for one year, acting in the position of assistant secretary and treasurer of the Pacific Steel Company, a corporation with headquarters at Seattle, Washington. After leaving there I came east and went to work with the Empire Trust Company of New York City, and remained there for some time, the exact length of which I do not recollect.

"I became a member of the New York Stock Exchange on July 9, 1903, and established the firm of Thomas and Ryan, which was terminated at the expiration of our agreement and succeeded by the firm of Thomas, Maclay and Company, 71 Broadway, New York City, composed of Robert Maclay, Harold H. Weekes and myself. We do a banking and brokerage business."

Joseph Brown Thomas, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Boston, Mass., January 3, 1879, prepared at the Blake School, New York City, and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Joseph Brown Thomas (Wesleyan 1872), is the son of Joseph B. Thomas and Martha (Seran) Thomas.

His mother, whose maiden name was Annie Hill, was the daughter of Ebenezer Hill and Hannah (Lyon) Hill.

A brother, Ralph Hill Thomas, graduated from Yale in 1905, and a cousin, Ebenezer Hill, Jr., in 1897.

In college Thomas was a member of the University track team four years and Captain Senior year, winning second place in the 120 hurdle and third in the 220 in the Harvard Meet 1900, fourth in 220 hurdle Intercollegiate Meet of 1902 and third place in 220 hurdle Intercollegiate Meet of 1903. He was Manager of the Musical Organizations, member of the Junior Promenade Committee, Rear Commodore of the Yale Corinthian Yacht Club and a member of Eta Phi, Alpha Delta Phi and Scroll and Key societies.

He writes: "Once upon a time, way back in the dark ages, about the year 1903 there fluttered forth from Alma Mater's protecting wings a pretty cocky little ostrich who has ever since been rushing around in an attempt to capture those evasive will o' the wisps, Fame and Fortune. Travel, Business, Sport, Love have each in turn and together occupied our time and thoughts while ambition has been the impelling power and success the goal—reached easily at times and then again only attained with the keenest pain, anguish but lastly satisfaction of conquest. Travel in Russia, Persia, Turkey and strange places has broadened our view-point. Business of new and independent nature has quickened our wits and senses. Sport has taken care of our physical manhood, has tended to add happiness to life, increase our respect for fellow men and at last but not least add zest and vigor and esprit to our everyday pursuits. Love is an interesting diversion taken as you will, and can but tend to make life the more worth while and round out one's striving for success in whatever field that striving may lie,—Politics, Literature, Affairs, The Arts. Pax Vobiscum."

His business address is 1 Madison Ave., New York City, or 403 Malley Building, New Haven, Conn. His residence is Simsbury, Conn., or 763 Fifth Ave., New York City.

Theodore Gaillard Thomas (B.A. Harvard 1904) was born in Southampton, L. I., August 5, 1880, the son of the late Theodore Gaillard Thomas, M.D. He prepared at the Pomfret (Conn.) School and entered college with the Class, leaving in the spring of 1900. The following fall he entered Harvard, graduating therefrom in 1904.

He is at present in the sign business with an office at Room 504, 103 East 125th St., New York City. His residence is 363 East 135th St.

Donald Thompson (B.A. 1903) was born in Allegheny, Pa., October 27, 1882, prepared at the Shadyside Academy, Pittsburg, and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Oliver David Thompson (Yale 1879), a lawyer, was born in Butler, Pa., September 24, 1855, the son of John McCandless Thompson, a lawyer of Butler, Pa., and of Anna Lauretta (Campbell) Thompson.

His mother, whose maiden name was Kate Wentworth

Dresser, was the daughter of John Wentworth Dresser, a manufacturer of Castine, Maine, and of Mary Moulton (Adams) Dresser.

In college Thompson played shortstop on the Freshman nine, and third base on the University nine. He was a member of Hé Boulé, Delta Kappa Epsilon and Skull and Bones societies, and held an Oration Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment.

Since graduation he has been studying law in Pittsburg in the office of Patterson, Sterrett and Acheson. He took his bar examinations in July 1906, and expects to be admitted in October. He is now in the office of Rodgers, Blakeley and Calvert, 1651 Frick Building Annex, Pittsburg, Pa., which he calls his permanent address. His home address is 124 Centennial Ave., Sewickley, Pa.

Edwin Vivian Thompson (B.A. 1903) was born in Louisville, Ky., November 20, 1882, prepared at the University School of Kentucky, Louisville, and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Edwin V. Thompson (real estate and farming), was born in Louisville, Ky., in August 1852, the son of Edwin V. Thompson and Kate (Therwell) Thompson.

His mother, whose maiden name was Annie Glazebrook, was the daughter of Austin Glazebrook and Lydia (Grinstead) Glazebrook.

In college Thompson was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Zeta Psi societies and held a High Oration Junior and Senior appointment.

He writes: "For several months after graduation I spent my time having a good time generally and doing nothing at all. In January 1904 I started to work, taking a position and I may state a very humble position, with the Union National Bank of Louisville, Ky. I remained a banker for several months until the 1st of May, 1904, when I became connected with the engineering department of the Samuel Horner, Jr., Portland Cement plant at Riverside Station, Ky. The plant was in the process of construction and I was engaged in field engineering work. Remained with the Cement Company until the completion of the plant in July 1905 when I became convinced of the uselessness of one engaging in engineering without the benefit of a technical education. Then considered going to Cornell for a mechanical course but finally decided to give it up and enter a mercantile business. Thereupon in October 1905 entered the Louisville Grocery Company, wholesale grocery of Louisville, in which my family is interested. And am still there. Am a member of the Pendennis Club of Louisville."

His address is 1407 Third Ave., Louisville, Ky.

George Jameson Thomson (B.A. 1903) was born in Wilton, Conn., March 1, 1880, prepared at the Norwalk (Conn.) University School and entered with the Class.

His father, Henry Grinnell Thomson, an artist of Wilton, was born in New York City November 24, 1850, the son of George Thomson, a wholesale merchant, and of Eva Ann (Hagadorn) Thomson.

His mother, whose maiden name was Agnes Hope Coley, was the daughter of David Coley and Jane Catherine (Sturges) Coley.

In college Thomson held a Dissertation Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since leaving college I have taken one year at the Yale Law School, i.e. 1903-1904. In the fall of 1904 I came to New York, entered the New York Law School and also the office of Bowers and Sands, 31 Nassau Street, the latter not until the middle of November 1904. I finished my law school course in June 1905, and took the bar examinations for New York on June 19, 1905. I was admitted to the New York bar in the early fall. I have every intention of remaining where I now am for some time.

"Letters addressed to Wilton, Conn., will be sure to reach me."

Herman Justus Thorstenberg (B.A. Bethany College, Kan., 1902, B.A. Yale 1903, M.A. 1904, Ph.D. 1906) was born in Assaria, Kan., January 10, 1876, prepared at the Bethany Academy, Lindsborg, Kan., and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Carl Thorstenberg, a farmer and stock-raiser of Assaria, was born in Jemshög, Sweden, April 11, 1840, the son of Haakan Thorstenberg, a farmer, and of Hanna (Olson) Thorstenberg.

His mother, whose maiden name was Pernilla Bengtson, was the daughter of Bengt Nilsson, a farmer of Sweden, and of Karin (Olson) Nilsson.

Thorstenberg graduated from Yale with a First Dispute Senior appointment. At Bethany he was an editor of the Record, President of the Adelpic Literary Society, on the General Athletic team, and won first and second prizes in oratory.

He writes, December 1905: "Since graduation I have studied history and the social sciences in the Yale Graduate School. I expect to win a Ph.D. next June and will then resume teaching as a profession. During the summer of 1904 I visited the World's Fair, my home in Kansas, Niagara, etc., travelling nearly 4,000 miles. Last summer I travelled twice as much, seeing northern Europe, Germany, and England. Besides interesting scenery I saw some monarchs, and was dined by an English lord. I studied for a month in the libraries and royal archives of Denmark to get 'stuff' for my doctor's dissertation, which I am now writing on the 'Danish West Indies.' After next June send all letters to Assaria, Kan., and they will be forwarded."

And later, August 1906: "I received the degree, Ph.D., from Yale last June, and have since then accepted a call to the chair of Economics and Sociology at the State University of Oklahoma. My address will be (after September 1, 1906) Norman, Okla."

George Rexford Tillson (B.A. 1903) was born in Norwich, N. Y., November 13, 1881, prepared at the Montclair (N. J.) High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, George Morton Tillson, a lawyer of Syracuse, N. Y., was born in Norwich, N. Y., in 1841, the son of George Tillson.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Helena Rexford, was the daughter of Benjamin Franklin Rexford, appointed by Lincoln a judge in the Costa Rica dispute, and of Elvira Priscilla (Babcock) Rexford.

In college Tillson was on the College Choir, Freshman Glee Club and Apollo Glee Club. He was a member of the Pundits and Beta Theta Pi. He won honors in English composition in Sophomore year, and held an Oration Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment. Benjamin F. Tillson (Yale 1905 S.) is a brother.

Since graduation he has been studying organ music abroad, the first two years at Berlin and the last one at Paris. His address is care D. H. Rexford, Esq., 80 Broadway, New York City. His home address is Montclair, N. J.

Edward Perry Townsend (B.A. 1903) was born in New York City, August 25, 1881, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class.

His father, Edward Townsend, President of the Importers and Traders National Bank of New York, was born in New York City July 30, 1848, the son of Oliver Hazard Perry Townsend and Phoebe Ann (Geer) Townsend.

His mother, whose maiden name was Adelaide Louise Turner, was the daughter of Myron Turner and Louise (Sherer) Turner.

Myron T. Townsend (Yale 1899 S.) and Harold Townsend (1904 S.) are brothers.

In college Townsend was Secretary and Treasurer of the Freshman Football Association, was on the Class Supper Committee and held a First Dispute Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment. He was a member of Kappa Psi, Alpha Delta Phi, the Elihu Club and the Pundits.

He was married at Sagamore, Lake George, N. Y., September 16, 1905, to Miss Fanny Proddow Simpson (Vassar 1902), daughter of John Boulton Simpson, of New York City, President of the Estey Piano Company.

Since graduation he has been with the Importers and Traders National Bank of New York at 247 Broadway. His residence is 306 West 80th St., New York City.

Arsene LeSeigneur Trenholm (B.A. 1903) was born in Charleston, S. C., November 21, 1880, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, William Lee Trenholm (South Carolina College 1855), died January 9, 1901. He was a banker, President of the American Surety Company and of the North American Trust Company. He was Comptroller of the Currency during Cleveland's first administration and Russian and Italian Consul in Charleston. He was the son of George Alfred Trenholm, of Charleston, S. C., a cotton merchant and Secretary of the Confederate Treasury, and of Anna Helen (Holmes) Trenholm.

His mother, whose maiden name was Katherine Louise Macbeth, was the daughter of James Macbeth, a merchant of Charleston, and of Mary (Barksdale) Macbeth.

In college Trenholm held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since leaving New Haven I have been completely devoted to the task of earning a living. I started to work with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad on the first of December, 1903, and have to the present day continued with this railroad. I started as night clerk in the yard department at Secaucus and then was transferred to day work at the Newark yard. Now I am car order clerk in the despatcher's office at Hoboken. Some men waste several years in finding work that is congenial to them. I was lucky enough to find at once the kind of work that is entirely suited to my tastes."

His business address is Division Office, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, Hoboken, N. J. His residence is 137 East 39th St., New York City.

John Marshall True was born in Columbus, Iowa, May 24, 1879, prepared at the Choate School, Wallingford, Conn., and entered with the Class, leaving in Freshman year.

His father, John W. True, a banker and United States Internal Revenue Collector of Eureka Springs, Ark., was Postmaster of Eureka Springs for eight years and for about ten years was Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee for Arkansas. He was born in Charleston, Ill., the son of Frederick True, an Illinois farmer, and of Cynthia (Whittington) True.

His mother, whose maiden name was Eliza Marshall, was the daughter of Col. Thomas A. Marshall, a Civil War veteran and planter of Mississippi, and later a banker in Illinois, and of Ellen I. (Miles) Marshall.

His great-grandfather, Thomas Alexander Marshall, LL.D., graduated from Yale in 1815.

After leaving college True was a bank clerk and then enlisted, being sent to Manila, P. I., as a member of Company F, 11th Infantry, U. S. A. In 1904 he received his commission as Second Lieutenant, 1st Infantry, with an appointment to the staff of the Military Secretary at Washington. On February 1, 1906, he was transferred to Manila, P. I., for two years. His permanent address is care Military Secretary, U. S. Army, Washington, D. C. His home address is Eureka Springs, Ark.

Edward Perry Truett was born in Milan, Ohio, December 5, 1877, prepared at the Denver (Colo.) High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Edward Truett, a contractor of Milan, Ohio, was born in Columbia, Tenn., December 10, 1851, the son of James Truett and Anne (Horn) Truett.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Elizabeth MacCabe, was the daughter of Patrick MacCabe and Nancy (Cameron) MacCabe.

In college Truett was Class Statistician and editor of the Senior Class Book. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and held a First Dispute Junior and Senior appointment.

He writes: "I have been with the Degnon Contracting Company since September 1, 1903, first in Baltimore and for the past year and a half in Brooklyn. That is about all there is to say about that. In October 1905 I entered the night school of the New York Law School and am plugging along at the law in addition to my daily work."

His business address is 13 Park Row, New York City. His residence is 115 South Elliot Place, Brooklyn, N. Y. His home address is Milan, Ohio.

Abraham Tulin (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Besdjev, Russia, March 31, 1882, prepared at the Boys High School, Brooklyn, N. Y., at the Bacon Academy, Colchester, Conn., and at the Hartford (Conn.) Public High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Shaia David Tulin, of Tulin, Toft and Tulin, wholesale grocers of Hartford, is President of the Hartford Hebrew Association. He was born in Chomsk, Province of Grodno, Russia, March 15, 1849, the son of David Tulin, a grain dealer and farmer, and of Eva Freda (Bialik) Tulin.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Schulmann, was the daughter of Isaac Wolf Schulmann, a merchant, and of Rachel Saphira (Shedrontsky) Schulmann.

In college Tulin was a member of the Dramatic Association, an alternate in the Harvard Debate in Sophomore and Junior years, and on the executive committee of the Yale Union. He held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes, January 1906: "I left college in June 1903, and have since then been studying at the Harvard Law School. I have lived during the school year in Cambridge, Mass. In addition to studying law I have been engaged in the following occupations with the following firms and in the following places. Some of these things I did during vacation times only, others the whole year round. From July to November, 1903, I worked as advertising solicitor for the Success magazine of New York, first in New York and then in Chicago. In November 1903 I was employed by the Atlantic Monthly of Boston also as an advertising solicitor, and have worked for that magazine ever since, with the exception of the summer months of 1904. For the Atlantic Monthly I work afternoons in and around Boston and in New York state and New England during the entire year. In July 1904 I was employed by the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Company of St. Louis, Mo., as a writer in the General Press Bureau of the Exposition, supplying World's Fair news, stories and articles to most of the newspapers and magazines of the United States and also to the press of foreign countries. I worked in this bureau for two months, when the Exposition Company sent me as commissioner to Oklahoma, and later to other states and territories. I travelled through Oklahoma, the Indian Territory, Kansas and Missouri. My business was to meet the heads of the principal cities and the governors of states as the Exposition's official representative, and arrange with them for greater and special efforts to make a good showing of their communities at the Fair.

"I have now studied for two and a half years in the Harvard Law School, and hope to receive the degree of LL.B. in June. On March 28, 1905, I represented Harvard in debate with Princeton, having won the Coolidge Prize for doing the best work in the trials for the team. The award of this prize was after the debate restricted by the Harvard Debating Council to Harvard undergraduates. I believe I am the only Yale man and non-Harvard man who ever took the prize. On December 15, 1905, Harvard again met Princeton in debate. I was a member of the Harvard team as principal. On December 6, however, I fell ill, entered the Harvard Infirmary, and stayed there in bed till January 9, the alternate speaking in my place in the debate.

"My permanent address, where letters will be forwarded to me, is 34 Bellevue Street, Hartford, Conn."

William Butler Tyler (B.A. 1903) was born in New Haven, Conn., March 11, 1878, prepared at the Hillhouse High School, New Haven, at the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, and at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college with the Class of 1902, joining 1903 at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, William Roger Tyler, of Butler and Tyler, wholesale boot and shoe merchants of New Haven, was born in New Haven, the son of Morris Tyler and Mary (Butler) Tyler.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Pierpont Coon, was the daughter of Abram Coon and Ann (Husted) Coon.

Tyler's Yale relatives include a brother, R. P. Tyler (1901), an uncle, Morris F. Tyler (1870), and three cousins: Victor Morris Tyler (1898), Ernest F. Tyler (Art School), and Leonard S. Tyler (1905).

In college he was on the Freshman Glee Club, was Leader of the Apollo Glee Club, and was a member of Hé Boulé, Delta Kappa Epsilon and Wolf's Head societies.

He was married in New Haven February 18, 1905, to Miss Mary Benham Woolverton, daughter of Charles B. Woolverton, deceased, of Albany, N. Y., and niece of the late Professor Penfield of Yale. A daughter, Elizabeth Pierpont Tyler, was born November 27, 1905.

He writes, January 1906: "Since leaving college my residence has been in New York until March 1905, when I moved to Plainfield, N. J., where I am now engaged in peacefully pursuing a railroad train every morning at 7:45, and being pretty consistently lucky. Was with the New York Telephone Company for three weeks in November 1903, then went with the Munson Steamship Line for eight months, and have been with the Railway Steel Spring Company since September 1904. The company makes steel springs for railroad cars and locomotives, and also steel tired wheels for passenger coaches and locomotives. The summer after graduation I travelled in England and Europe for three months with Reeve Schley, meeting many of the Class while there and while going and coming. As affairs look I think that Plainfield will be my permanent address, and letters sent here will be forwarded to me in case I should move elsewhere."

In April 1906 Tyler took a position with the Machine Sales Company, 35 Cedar Street, New York City. He lives at 126 East 9th Street, Plainfield, N. J.

David Benjamin Updegraff (B.A. 1903, M.A. Princeton 1906) was born in Mt. Pleasant, Ohio, July 17, 1878, prepared at the Mt. Pleasant High School and entered Yale at the beginning of Sophomore year.

His father, Rev. David Brainerd Updegraff, a Friends clergyman, was born in Mt. Pleasant in 1830, the son of David Updegraff, a farmer, and of Rebecca (Taylor) Updegraff.

His mother, whose maiden name was Eliza Jane Clark Mitchell, died July 3, 1900, and was the daughter of Rev. Benjamin Mitchell, D.D., a Presbyterian clergyman of Mt. Pleasant, and of Anne (Dinsmore) Mitchell.

In college Updegraff was a member of the College Choir, won a Henry James Ten Eyck third prize in Junior year, a Townsend Premium in Senior year and held a First Colloquy Junior and First Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "I have during the past three years done little but prepare myself for the ministry. I have spent the whole time here in Princeton, where I like the life and the work immensely. I supplied a church in Trenton two summers ago and last summer took a trip to Oklahoma, where I spent three months as a missionary among the whites. My greatest accomplishment I regard as the beginning of two churches out there.

"I have no wife and therefore no children. I have taken post graduate work in the University here and shall get my M.A. in June I suppose. I am a member of the best social organization I know of—the Benham Club—the oldest club in Princeton. My plans for the future are nil. I don't plan—I only wait for what happens. It may happen that I shall go somewhere as a foreign missionary—perhaps to China or Japan. I graduate here in May and after that all is uncertain. I shall probably fall into the right place. My permanent address will be for some years at least care H. H. Ratcliff, Esq., 137 East Gorham St., Madison, Wis."

And later, August 1906: "I got an M.A. from Princeton in June 1906. My occupation is Assistant Pastor of Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church of Buffalo, N. Y."

Fred Brown Utley (B.A. 1903) was born in Rodman, N. Y., March 15, 1880, prepared at the Gloversville (N. Y.) High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Charles Albert Utley, a retired farmer, was born in Rodman, N. Y., September 27, 1849, the son of William Wallace Utley and Sophia (McKinstry) Utley.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Jane Brown, was the daughter of Orville Brown and Mary (Hallenbeck) Brown.

In college Utley was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi societies. In Freshman year he won the DeForest mathematical second prize, divided the Benjamin F. Barge mathematical second prize in Sophomore year with B. Webster, and held a High Oration Junior appointment and a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment, graduating eighth in rank.

He writes: "The year following graduation I tutored a young hopeful in a private family. The work was not arduous and I had a very instructive year as it gave me some little travel in this country which I had not before enjoyed. The first summer we spent in California going out over the Santa Fe route, and returning by way of the Northern Pacific from Seattle. The following winter we were south as far as Augusta, spending most of the time at Aiken, S. C.

"After this year's rest I was ready to resume the study of medicine with renewed energy and entered the second year class at the Physicians and Surgeons, from which institution I hope to receive the degree of M.D. in 1907. My present address is Student's Club, 328 West 56th Street, New York City; and my permanent or home address is 248 Kingsboro Avenue, Gloversville, N. Y."

Samuel Oakley VanderPoel, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Albany, N. Y., August 22, 1881, prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Samuel Oakley VanderPoel, M.D., (Rutgers 1873), has been President of the New York Medical Society and of the County of New York Medical Society. He was born in Albany in 1853, the son of S. Oakley VanderPoel and Gertrude (Wendell) VanderPoel.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Haines Halsted, was the daughter of William Halsted.

In college VanderPoel was substitute fullback on the University eleven, substitute on the Hockey team, and a member of Kappa Psi and Alpha Delta Phi societies. William Halsted (Yale 1873) is an uncle.

He was married September 16, 1905, in Southampton, Long Island, N. Y., to Miss Mildred Moore Barclay, daughter of the late Henry Anthony Barclay.

He writes, December 1905: "After graduation in June 1903 I entered the Central Trust Company of New York to learn the business, etc., of banking. Soon after I joined Squadron A, N. G. S. N. Y., cavalry, of which I am still a member. I remained at the Central Trust for two years, or rather until last April, when I was made assistant trust officer of the institution. Soon after I had an offer from Taylor and Smith, brokers, 5 Broad Street, to become their manager of the main office, New York City, which I decided to accept, and here I am plugging along. Last summer I was married to Miss Mildred Barclay of New York City, and we are living at Woodmere, Long Island."

January 2, 1906: "I am now installed as manager of the Waldorf-Astoria branch of A. O. Brown and Company, bankers and brokers, 30 Broad Street, New York, which I am glad to say is quite a jump for me from my last position."

In the summer of 1906 VanderPoel opened an office for the sale of stocks and bonds at 30 Broad Street, New York City.

Harry Brown Van Deventer (B.A. 1903, M.A. 1904) was born in Newark, N. J., August 14, 1881, prepared at the Pingry School, Elizabeth, N. J., and entered college with the Class.

His father, Andrew K. Van Deventer, Treasurer of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company and allied lines, was born in Flemington, N. J., November 6, 1854, the son of William K. Van Deventer, a farmer of Flemington, and of Eliza (Kinney) Van Deventer.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ella H. Riker, was the daughter of James B. Riker, a manufacturer of Newark, N. J., and of Harriet (Hemingway) Riker.

In college Van Deventer divided with Root the Hugh Chamberlain Greek prize and won a first grade Berkeley premium in Latin composition in Freshman year. In Sophomore year he won a special prize for excellence in Latin composition, in Junior year first Winthrop prize, and in Sophomore, Junior and Senior years the Lucius F. Robinson first Latin prize. He was President of Phi Beta Kappa, a member of Psi Upsilon, and held a Philosophical Oration Junior appointment and a High Oration Senior appointment.

Since graduation he has been studying Latin in the Yale Graduate School, and has held a college fellowship during the three years. His present address is 1076 Chapel Street, New Haven, Conn. His home address is 531 North Broad Street, Elizabeth, N. J.

Douglass Van Dyke (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Milwaukee, Wis., January 18, 1881, prepared at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered with the Class.

His father, George Douglass Van Dyke (Princeton 1873), is a lawyer and President of the Pewabic Company. He was born in Milwaukee in 1853, the son of J. H. Van Dyke.

His mother, whose maiden name was Louise Lawrence, was the daughter of James Lawrence.

Van Dyke's Yale relatives include a brother, Lawrence Van Dyke (1900), and an uncle, George H. Lawrence (1869).

In college he was an editor of the Yale Daily News and a member of Alpha Delta Phi. He held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

Since graduation he has studied law at Harvard, receiving his LL.B. in June 1906. He is at present in his father's office, Van Dyke and Van Dyke, and lives at 44 Prospect Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.

Ernest Shelton Van Tassel (B.A. 1903) was born in Wellesley, Mass., July 21, 1881, prepared at the Lawrenceville (N. J.) School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Charles J. Van Tassel, who died January 4, 1884, was in the insurance business with Van Tassel and Toy, San Francisco. He was born in New York City June 25, 1854, the son of James Van Tassel, M.D., a surgeon in the Federal army in the Civil War.

His mother, whose maiden name was Julia Ely Shelton, was the daughter of Charles Smith Shelton (Yale 1840), a missionary to India, and of Henrietta Mills (Hyde) Shelton.

Van Tassel's Yale relatives include besides his grandfather two uncles, Dr. Charles H. Shelton (1877) and Rev. Charles W. Shelton (1882 T.S.), and four cousins, Arthur H. Bissell (1897), Dr. Shelton Bissell (1897), Henry Wood Shelton (1904) and William Shelton (1905).

He writes: "I arrived in Omaha Saturday, July 25, 1903, looking for a job. On Monday the 27th I was told that they could probably make use of me carrying stakes, driving them, dragging the chain, etc., down in Kansas. I asked Mr. Berry, Chief Engineer at that time of the Union Pacific Railroad Company, if it would give me experience. Looking the Tenderfoot over he remarked dryly: 'Oh, yes, it will give you experience all right.' So I went down that night and was sent out from Kansas City to Lawrence the next day, July 28, where I started in at noon time as chainman on an engineering gang. It was the summer of the flood and we had plenty of work—and I also had 'experience.' Many a time as I was driving '4 ft. grades' in the ballast under the hot Kansas sun, did I wish for the cool Campus; at night as I was sleeping in rickety shacks or even in depots, as I have done out in the stock country where houses are scarce, it would have seemed paradise to have had a good bed once more in 450 Fayerweather Hall; and even 'Commons' would have seemed like 'Dels.' in comparison to the grub thrown over the oil-cloth counters at most of the places we ate at. So that was my beginning at 'forty per.' Of course I had many experiences while down there but they could be better told than written. Some were comic, some were tragic,—classed in the latter was the loss of two men, whom I worked with, in the flood. Was in two cyclones, but none of us lost our lives though we had a narrow escape in one instance.

"In October of the same year the field forces were laid off for the winter and having nothing in view I came up to Omaha and took an examination for a clerkship in the accounting department. I worked in the freight auditor's office during all that winter until March 1, when I went to Fremont, Nebraska, to take the job of yard clerk. I was shortly put up to bill clerk and held the job as long as I was there (thirteen months); though in addition I managed to pick up the cashier's work, and at night I would come down to the ticket office and pick up the ticket business. In that way I secured a good knowledge of local station work.

"On January 6, 1905, I was taken sick with appendicitis, operated on and didn't get back to work for two months. On April 1 I came to Omaha to accept a job in the Superintendent's office, where I have been since. Have taken up the work on the different desks in the office and am now doing the work of an Assistant Chief Clerk."

He lives at 2045 Dodge Street, Omaha, Neb.

Axel Ebenezer Vestling (B.A. Bethany College, Kan., 1900, B.A. Yale 1903, M.A. 1905) was born in Osage City, Kansas, June 22, 1879, prepared at the Ludington (Mich.) High School and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Rev. Claus Victor Vestling (Augustana Theological Seminary 1872), was born in Linköping, Sweden, November 14, 1845, the son of Anders Erickson and Maria (Vestling) Erickson.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sofia Mathilda Swensson, was the daughter of Swen Swensson and Maria (Johnson) Swensson.

In college Vestling was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and held a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment, graduating fourteenth in rank.

He writes: "The year after graduation, 1903-1904, I was instructor in German at Dartmouth College and the two following years instructor at Yale in the same subject and at the same time have been doing graduate work in the Germanic department. Received my M.A. degree from Yale in 1905."

His address is 130 Wall St., New Haven, Conn. His home address is 216 Danaher St., Ludington, Mich.

Carroll Johnson Waddell (B.A. 1903) was born in Ottawa, Kansas, September 16, 1881, prepared at the Albany (N. Y.) Academy and entered Yale from Hamilton at the beginning of Sophomore year.

His father, Robert James Waddell, died May 23, 1903. He was born in Albany, N. Y., November 13, 1844, the son of James Waddell and Rachel (Shannon) Waddell.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Sybil Carroll, was the daughter of James Carroll and Sarah Francis (Jeness) Carroll.

In college Waddell was an editor of the Yale Daily News, a Class Historian and a member of Alpha Delta Phi and the Elihu Club.

He writes: "During the summer of 1903 Glover Beardsley and I had a month's canoe trip in the Moosehead Lake region of Maine. On October 1, 1903, I started work in the home office of the R. J. Waddell Investment Company at Kansas City, Mo., remaining there until November 1, 1904, when I was elected Secretary of the Company and placed in charge of the eastern office at Albany, N. Y. I was with that company until January 1906 and then sought the simple life in ranch life in Texas. Louis McKnight joined me there in April for a three hundred mile riding trip. I returned east in time for Triennial and on July 9 entered the New York office of N. W. Harris and Company, bankers, Pine Street corner William, New York City."

He lives at the Yale Club, 30 West 44th St., New York.

Anson Wagar was born in Middlesex, N. Y., November 28, 1879, the son of James H. Wagar. He prepared for college at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class, leaving at the end of Freshman year.

For a short time after leaving college he worked in the freight office of the Erie Railroad at Sayre, Pa., and then went west. He was married in June 1906 to Miss Deedie Sallee of South Dakota. At present he is reported to be a government land commissioner "or something of that sort." His address is care Ziebach, Wagar and Russell, Gregory, S. D.

James Reynolds Wait (B.A. 1903) was born in Whitehall, N. Y., May 2, 1882, prepared at the Auburn (N. Y.) High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Horace Reynolds Wait, a carpet merchant, was born in Amsterdam, N. Y., September 1, 1843, the son of William Wait, one of the first manufacturers of carpets in this country, and of Mary (Haigh) Wait.

His mother, whose maiden name was Nellie B. Reynolds, was the daughter of James L. Reynolds and Lucy (Webster) Reynolds.

In college Wait was a member of Zeta Psi and held a Dissertation Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment.

He writes: "My time since leaving college has been spent mostly in Auburn. Here I have been engaged in business with my father, who has real estate interests and who is also a merchant. We do a large retail carpet and furniture business in the city, and also take furnishing contracts of every description in all parts of the country. The contract department is now under my charge. I also do part of the buying for the store. The business is interesting and I am glad to say that I like it. Have been spending a good deal of time studying up interior decoration, following out a course of study laid out for me by a professor in Columbia. In addition to the store work, I am also sales manager for the Cayuga Carpet Company, which is a mail order house selling carpets at retail in all parts of the United States. Business takes me around the country quite a bit, and I am in New York frequently, so manage to keep track of many a friend in the Class. Sunday in Auburn finds me good, and I am doing some Sunday School work. Am also a director of the Auburn Y. M. C. A. My vacations have been spent in the Adirondacks. Last summer Ed. Thompson and I took a trip through the Great Lakes on a freighter and enjoyed it very much."

His business address is 77 Genesee St., Auburn, N. Y. His residence is 215 Genesee St.

Ralph Benford Wakefield (B.A. 1903) was born in Fairchance, Pa., October 20, 1881, prepared at the Thiel School, Greenville, Mercer County, Pa., and entered Yale at the beginning of Junior year.

His father, Rev. Charles Benjamin Wakefield (Waynesburg 1874), a Presbyterian clergyman of Greenville, was born in Fayette County, Pa., October 15, 1853, the son of David Hough Wakefield, a farmer, and of Mary Randolph (Covert) Wakefield.

His mother, whose maiden name was Annie Benford, was the daughter of George Benford, a druggist of Somerset, Pa., and of Mary Narcissa (Conley) Benford.

Wakefield graduated with a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "I have lived in Pittsburg, Pa., since leaving college in June 1903. I have been studying law and am registered with my uncle, J. A. Wakefield, and am studying in his office. I started in the Law School, which is a part of the Western University of Pennsylvania, in October 1904. I studied in the office a year before starting in the Law School. I do not graduate until June 1907.

"I am not married. I have received no degrees in any other institution of learning as yet. I have published no articles, books or pamphlets. I have joined no social, religious or political organizations. I have taken no journeys of any moment since leaving college. Letters will always reach me at 1102 Frick Building, or better, Greenville, Mercer County, Pa., from which point they will be forwarded to me wherever I am."

William Durrie Waldron (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1905) was born in Stonington, Conn., June 11, 1881, prepared at the Montclair (N. J.) High School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Jonathan Cooke Waldron, a stock broker, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., the son of Nathaniel Waldron, a merchant of Philadelphia, and of Emeline (Graham) Waldron.

His mother, whose maiden name was Clara Alling Durrie, was the daughter of William Augustus Durrie, M.D., (Yale 1843) and of Emma (Alling) Durrie.

Waldron's Yale relatives include, besides his grandfather, an uncle, William Augustus Durrie (1876), an uncle by marriage, Hamilton Wallis (1863), and three first cousins: Alexander Hamilton Wallis (1893), Nathaniel Wallis (1897) and Clinton Geib Wallis (1897 S.).

In college he was a member of the Cross Country team four years, being Captain in Senior year, a member of the track team, winning third place in the mile run in the Harvard meet of 1901, also a mile runner on the Yale-Harvard International Track team. He was a member of Zeta Psi and held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "Upon leaving New Haven two days after Commencement, I spent the summer at home in Montclair and in the White Mountains, and on October 1 entered the New York Law School, with the intention of completing the two years' course there and then taking examinations for the New York bar. In November 1904 I was received in the office of Opdyke, Ladd and Bristow, lawyers, at 20 Nassau Street, New York, and from then on had opportunity of observing practice while I pursued my own law school studies. On June 10, 1905, I graduated from the New York Law School with the usual degree, LL.B., and then took the June bar examinations for New York State, hearing favorably from them the middle of July. The firm that I had been studying with kept me as a clerk and I began work in that office on September 5, trying to solve the intricacies of the general practice of law.

"My home address is 79 North Mountain Ave., Montclair, N. J., which is my present residence."

James Frederick Walker was born in Denver, Colorado, August 8, 1879, prepared at the Denver High School and entered with the Class, leaving at the end of Freshman year to enter West Point.

His father, James Monroe Walker (M.D. St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons 1867), was born in Virginia September 29, 1847, the son of Alfred Walker.

His mother, whose maiden name was Caroline Moses, was the daughter of John Moses, who was a writer and historian of Illinois, a Civil War veteran and Secretary of Illinois.

Walker graduated from the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., June 13, 1905, standing 38 out of a class of 114. He received his commission as Second Lieutenant of Artillery and is at present stationed at Fort Williams, Portland, Maine. His home address is 1265 Broadway, Denver, Colorado.

Raymond William Walker (B.A. 1903) was born in Westboro, Mass., March 22, 1878, prepared for college by private tutor and entered with the Class.

His father, Melvin Harvey Walker, a retired shoe manufacturer of Gould and Walker, Westboro, was born in Westboro January 23, 1842, the son of Silas Walker, Jr., and Louisa (Everett) Walker.

His mother, whose maiden name was Annie Moses, was the daughter of William Moses and Pamela F. (Kidder) Moses.

In college Walker was a member of the Freshman Glee Club, the College Choir and Zeta Psi. He was editor of the Courant and Record, and held a First Dispute Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment. M. H. Walker, Jr., (Yale 1909) is a brother.

He writes: "Have been in New York in the advertising business since graduation except for a few months spent in recovering from eye trouble. Am now taking a course in English for an M.A. degree from Yale. Am in business with same people I went with in October 1903, then called the 'Bates Advertising Company.'"

His address is care Knickerbocker Syndicate, 320 Fifth Ave., New York City. He lives at Bryn Mawr Park, Yonkers, N. Y. His permanent address is 35 Summer St., Westboro, Mass.

Walter Bertrand Walker (B.A. 1903, LL.B. New York Law School 1905) was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., December 9, 1881, prepared at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Walter Nunns Walker, of Hodenpyl and Walker, New York City, importers of precious stones, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., October 17, 1852, the son of James E. Walker and Maria (Nunns) Walker.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sadie Dana, died May 20, 1891. She was the daughter of Daniel Dana of San Francisco and of Sarah Phoebe (Cummings) Dana.

In college Walker was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and held a High Oration Junior appointment and a High Oration Senior appointment. He received special honors in the social sciences in Senior year.

He writes: "The fall of 1903 I entered the New York Law School. On August 18 of that year I had entered the Law Department of the Manhattan Railway Company, which subsequently became the Law Department of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. Thus I was doing office work, and at the same time was attending the sessions of the Law School during the day-time. This manner of employing my time continued until June of this year, 1905, when I was graduated from the New York Law School and received the degree of LL.B. 'with honor.' George E. Leonard, my partner, likewise received his degree 'with honor.' While at the Law School I was a member of the Delta Chi legal fraternity. I continued in the employ of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company during the summer of 1905 and until the first of November, 1905, when I resigned to form a partnership with George E. Leonard, my classmate at Yale and at the Law School. I was sworn in and admitted to the practice of law in the courts of the State of New York by the Appellate Division of the First Department on October 9, 1905. The address which is the best to reach me at is 42 Broadway, New York City."

He lives at 318 West 88th St., New York City.

Henry Mitchell Wallace (B.A. 1903) was born in Ansonia, Conn., January 12, 1881, prepared at Dr. Holbrook's School, Ossining, N. Y., and at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class.

His father, John Bryant Wallace, an electrical engineer of Chicago, was born in Ansonia, Conn., July 5, 1858, the son of Thomas Wallace and Ellen (Bryant) Wallace.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Mitchell, was the daughter of Charles M. Mitchell and Mary Ann (Foote) Mitchell.

Two uncles preceded Wallace at Yale: F. W. Wallace (1889) and H. S. Wallace (1901).

In college he was captain of the Freshman eleven and played left end. He was a member of Eta Phi, Psi Upsilon and Skull and Bones societies. He has been in brass manufacturing since graduation and is now Assistant Superintendent of the Ansonia Brass and Copper Company. He lives at 76 North Cliff St., Ansonia, Conn.

Walter Franklin Wallace (B.A. 1903) was born in Chicago, Ill., May 9, 1881, prepared at the St. John's School, Manlius, N. Y., and entered college with the Class.

His father, John Florian Wallace, a hardware manufacturer, died in July 1886. He was born in Albany, N. Y., in September 1848, the son of John Florian Wallace.

His mother, whose maiden name was Josephine Mary Hurber, was the daughter of John A. Hurber.

He writes: "1. When I left college in the spring of 1903 I was pretty tired of loafing and worse. I immediately started in at A. C. McClurg and Company in the publishing department. I fancied I had a small drag but quickly discovered that small drags are worse than no drags at all. A few months later I answered an advertisement in the paper and secured a position on The American Artisan and Hardware Record. This is a trade paper, reaching the hardware retailers of the country. I worked on the paper for over two years and finally rose to a position as managing editor. I expect to leave in about a month and take up publishing trade papers on my own hook.

"4. I have not been honored by having my name appear on the title page of any publication, though of course as editor of this paper I have often rushed to print. I have contributed articles to a number of other trade papers on technical subjects. I regret that I cannot give you a list of the papers or even the titles of the articles.

"7. Although I have made very few trips since graduating from college and settling in Chicago and though these were only short business trips, I have floated from one section of the city to the other, from hotel to hotel and back and forth until I believe I have had at least eighteen different mailing addresses. I am now settled permanently at 87 Astor Street."

Arthur Allen Ward (B.A. Western College 1901, B.A. Yale 1903) was born in Odon, Ind., July 15, 1874, prepared at the Preparatory Department of Western College and at Oberlin Academy, and entered Yale at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Philip Shepler Ward, a farmer, died January 25, 1905. He was born in Winesburg, Holmes County, Ohio, September 2, 1830, the son of Jesse Ward and Rachel (Shepler) Ward.

His mother, whose maiden name was Margaret Fry, was the daughter of Moses Fry and Catherine (Bash) Fry.

In college Ward held a High Oration Senior appointment.

He writes, January 1906: "I accept the position of teacher of English literature in Jaffna College, Vaddukkoddai, Ceylon, and sailed for Ceylon in August 1903, going via Liverpool, London, Paris, Geneva, Marseilles and Port Said. I arrived at Vaddukkoddai September 20, 1903, and immediately assumed my duties trying to awaken in the Tamil youth an appreciation of the glories of our language. During the year 1904 I served as Secretary of the North Ceylon Union of Y. M. C. A's. I expect to sail for the U. S. A. on February 24, 1906, going via Hong Kong, Japan and Portland. Permanent address, Odon, Ind."

And later, July 1906: "Early in the present year my term of service in Jaffna College being completed I started for America, leaving Colombo February 25. I came home via the Pacific route, thus completing a trip around the world. En route I stopped at Penang and Singapore in the Straits Settlements, the magnificent port of Hong Kong, spent a week with a brother at Canton, the most populous and dirtiest city in China, then north to Shanghai and across to Japan, stopping at Nagasaki, Kobi, Yokohama and Tokio. The voyage from Yokohama to Seattle was made in the steamship Minnesota, one of the largest and most comfortable vessels afloat. There is a possibility that I would have been in the San Francisco disaster if I had decided to come by that route, as the ship I would have taken reached that port only a little time before the earthquake. Am spending the summer of 1906 at home, but expect to be off to the tropics again in the autumn."

His address is Odon, Ind.

Freeman Ward (B.A. 1903) was born in Yankton, S. D., August 9, 1879, prepared at the Yankton College Academy, entering Yale at the beginning of Junior year, coming from Yankton College.

His father, Rev. Joseph Ward (Brown 1865), a Congregational clergyman, died December 11, 1889. He was the founder and President of Yankton College. He was born in Perry Center, Wyoming County, N. Y., May 5, 1838, the son of Jabez Ward, M.D., of Perry, N. Y., and of Aurilla (Tufts) Ward.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Frances Wood, was the daughter of Joseph Wood, a cotton manufacturer of Central Falls, R. I., and of Phila Thayer (Freeman) Wood.

In college Ward was a member of Sigma Xi and held an Oration Senior appointment. A brother, Sheldon Ward, was in the Class of 1906.

He writes: "Ever since graduation I have been doing post graduate work in geology at Yale, with the intention of ultimately receiving a Ph.D. Have also been assistant in geology,—the first two years in the academic department under Prof. H. E. Gregory; this present year over at Sheff. under Prof. L. V. Pirsson, and also have been assisting Prof. S. L. Penfield and Dr. Ford in Mineralogy. Besides this 'assisting' I have also been teaching geology over at Sheff. this year. The summers I have spent in various ways. The first summer, 1903, I was in the hospital in New Haven nearly all the time—typhoid fever. The next summer, 1904, I worked in the University carpenter shop. This past summer, 1905, I have been working for the Connecticut State Geological Survey. I expect to be at Yale for another year at least."

His address is 569 Yale Station, New Haven, Conn. His home address is 512 Mulberry St., Yankton, S. D.

Samuel Dwight Ward (B.A. 1903) was born in Albany, N. Y., April 15, 1880, the son of Samuel B. Ward, M.D. He prepared at the Albany Academy, and entered college with the Class of 1902, joining 1903 at the beginning of Sophomore year.

In college Ward played on the 1902 Freshman eleven, was substitute half back on the University eleven and a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon. Erastus Corning (Yale 1903) is a half brother.

After graduation he took a position in the lumber camp of Alger Smith and Company, Knife River, Minn. He left them in 1906 to take a position in the electrical department of the New York Central Railroad. His address is Room 9, New York Central Railroad Company, Grand Central Station, New York City.

Antonio Johnston Waring (B.A. 1903) was born in Savannah, Ga., November 27, 1881, prepared at the Lawrenceville (N. J.) School and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Antonio de Gogorza, deceased, a cotton and lumber merchant, also Portuguese Consul, was born in Cartagena, Spain, July 17, 1852, the son of Antonio de Gogorza and Maria (Zuarez) de Gogorza.

His mother, whose maiden name was Annie Johnston Waring, resumed her maiden name of Waring in 1883. She was the daughter of James Johnston Waring (Yale 1850) and Mary Brewton (Alston) Waring.

Waring's Yale relatives besides his grandfather include a brother, James J. Waring (1904 S.); three uncles, Pinckney A. Waring, of the Class of 1881, James Johnston Waring (1887), and Thomas P. Waring (1889); and a first cousin, W. Frederick Waring (1891 S.).

In college Waring was chairman of the Yale Literary Magazine, won a Henry James Ten Eyck second prize in Junior year and was the John Bennetto Scholar in Senior year. He was Secretary of Phi Beta Kappa, a member of Chi Delta Theta, Psi Upsilon and Skull and Bones societies and held a High Oration Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment.

The first year after graduation he spent in New Haven as Secretary of the Academic Department of the Yale University Christian Association. He entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, New York City, in the fall of 1904 and expects to get his M.D. in 1908. His present address is 527 Madison Ave., New York City. His home address is 3 Perry St. West, Savannah, Ga.

Arthur Woodward Warner (B.A. 1903) was born in Thomaston, Conn., February 8, 1881, prepared at the Torrington (Conn.) High School and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Henry Randall Warner, who died January 20, 1891, was in the livery stable business in Thomaston. He was born in Thomaston August 1, 1856, the son of Frederic E. Warner, a farmer of Thomaston, and of Ruth (Sum) Warner.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emma Augusta Woodward, was the daughter of Israel B. Woodward, a banker and tanner of Thomaston, and of Caroline (Everett) Woodward.

In college he held a Dissertation Junior appointment and a Dissertation Senior appointment. Edward Thomas (Yale 1899) and Fred W. Laubin (1902 S.) are cousins.

He writes: "I have been with the Riter-Conley Manufacturing Company since graduation. About half this time has been spent in the shops getting practical mechanical experience. The rest of the time has been put in as a mechanical draughtsman at the Pittsburg offices. I hope eventually to become a mechanical engineer."

His business address is care Riter-Conley Mfg. Co., 55 Water St., Pittsburg, Pa. He lives at 416 Little St., Sewickley, Pa. His home address is Torrington, Conn.

George Plimpton Warner was born in Buffalo, N. Y., January 15, 1881, prepared at The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and entered with the Class, leaving in Junior year.

He was the son of William Carlyle Warner of Buffalo, N. Y., and of Mary Sophia (Plimpton) Warner.

In college he was a member of Zeta Psi.

He was married in Buffalo, N. Y., April 14, 1904, to Miss Emma Pearl Letchworth, daughter of Ogden Pearl Letchworth, President of the Pratt and Letchworth Company.

Warner has been since leaving college with the Pratt and Letchworth Company, 189 Tonawanda St., Buffalo, N. Y., wholesale hardware merchants, and is at present Assistant Superintendent. He lives at 605 Niagara St.

Irving Henry Warner (B.A. 1903) was born in Fairport, N. Y., December 27, 1879, prepared at the Fairport High School and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, Samuel Warner, a fruit grower of Fairport, was born in the town of Potter, Yates County, N. Y., August 9, 1843, the son of Samuel Warner, a farmer, and of Magdalene (Walters) Warner.

His mother, whose maiden name was Maria Jane Sammers, died August 30, 1893, and was the daughter of Edward Sammers and Mary (Feakins) Sammers.

In college Warner was a member of the University Gymnastic team and of the University Band. He held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment. Horace Warner (Yale 1899) is a first cousin.

He writes: "I spent the summer at home after graduation till August 5, when I went to St. Louis, Mo. The following day I began work for the Simmons Hardware Company of that city. I worked for them until the 1st of November 1905, when I resigned, having occupied positions in several of their departments. I left New Haven June 26, 1903. I have never been married and dare not entertain such hopes. Have nothing to say in answer to 3, 4, 5, 6. My permanent address would be Fairport, N. Y., R. F. D. No. 8. As far as I know my address for some time will be St. Mary's, Pa., P. O. Box 122, but perhaps the former will be the better address. I will also pass on 8 and 9. I am at present too unsettled to make any statement as to my future."

George Augustine Washington (B.A. 1903, LL.B. Harvard 1906) was born in Wessyngton, Tenn., October 27, 1879, prepared at the Central High School and Friends Select School of Washington, D. C., and entered with the Class.

His father, Joseph Edwin Washington (Georgetown 1872), is a planter of Wessyngton and was a member of Congress from 1886 to 1896. He was born in Wessyngton in 1851, the son of George Augustine Washington, a planter of Wessyngton, and of Jane (Smith) Washington.

His mother, whose maiden name was Mary Bolling Kemp, was the daughter of Wyndham Kemp, a lawyer of Gloucester County, Virginia, and of Signiora Peyton (Bolling) Kemp.

Washington's Yale relatives include a brother, Joseph E. Washington, Jr. (1905 S.), and a brother-in-law, Augustus S. Blagden (1901 S.).

In college he was a member of Alpha Delta Phi. Since graduation he has been studying law at Harvard, getting his degree in June 1906.

His permanent address is Wessnygton, Tenn.

Bradford Webster (B.A. 1903, LL.B. University of Louisville 1906) was born in Waterbury, Conn., February 18, 1881, prepared at the Waterbury High School and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Daniel Frederick Webster (Dartmouth 1874), a lawyer of Waterbury, died October 31, 1896. He was formerly Mayor of Waterbury, and a State Senator. He was born in Harwinton, Conn., March 19, 1853, the son of Frederick Buell Webster, who died in the Civil War, and of Cornelia (Buell) Webster.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Rogers Fox, was the daughter of John Bradford Fox, and Hannah H. (Hall) Fox.

A brother, Benjamin Webster, is in the Class of 1907 Yale.

In college Webster was a member of the Whist team and of Phi Beta Kappa. He won the DeForest Mathematical second prize in Freshman year, the Lucius Robinson third prize in Sophomore year and divided with Uteley the Benjamin F. Barge Mathematical second prize in Sophomore year. He held a Philosophical Oration Junior appointment and a High Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "1. I left college in June 1903 and spent the summer in Waterbury tutoring and studying law. In September I went to Brees Military Academy in Macon, Mo., which I left together with the superintendent and the other nine instructors or captains on the academic staff, to work out its future destiny without our assistance. I spent the summer of 1904 in Waterbury tutoring and studying law, and in September came to Louisville to teach mathematics, history and civil government in the University School of Louisville and to manage their athletics and coach the football and basketball teams. In August 1905 I discovered what appeared to be good oil land in Shelby County, Ky., about thirty miles from Louisville, whereupon I leased 250 acres of land, organized the Kentucky Oil and Mining Company with $5,000 capital, raised the necessary money, purchased a drilling outfit, boiler, and engine, secured a field manager and driller and started work about a month ago. This well will probably be completed sometime in January or February. In October I entered the University of Louisville Law School in the senior class, from which I shall graduate next April (1906) and start practicing law in Louisville.

"2. Not married.

"3. Law; in University of Louisville Law School, one year. Expect to receive the degree of LL.B. next April (1906).

"4. No publications except a few newspaper articles.

"5. I am a Mason and a member of Louisville Lodge, No. 400; a member of Broadway Methodist Church, Louisville. I have given what little assistance I could to try to throw the rotten machine out of power in Louisville by serving as a poll worker during the days of registration and election in the tough precincts of Louisville this fall.

"6. My journeys have been all in the United States. I have visited Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburg, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City, Louisville and Mammoth Cave.

"7. Permanent address: 900 Fifth St., Louisville, Ky."

After graduating from the Law School he formed a partnership with Arthur C. Popham for the general practice of law with an office at 605 Louisville Trust Building, Louisville, Ky. His home address is Waterbury, Conn.

Edward Franklin Webster (B.A. 1903) was born in Rutland, Vt., March 15, 1881, prepared at the Rutland High School and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Edward Harvey Webster, a machinist and master mechanic of Rutland, Vt., was born in Middlesex, Vt., June 27, 1835, the son of Jonathan Webster and Philena (Currier) Webster.

His mother, whose maiden name was Eleanor Millington, was the daughter of John Millington and Rachel (McKinney) Millington.

In college Webster was a member of the Apollo Glee Club, a substitute on the University Glee Club and held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Dispute Senior appointment.

He writes: "Since I left college at Commencement 1903 I have been learning the hardware business at the jobbing house of the Bronson and Townsend Company, New Haven, Conn., as receiving and stock clerk. I started here on July 1, 1903, and shall probably remain with this concern until at least five years are completed, when I shall consider whether or not it is profitable to continue. Owing to the nature of the work I have not entered into any outside activities to mention."

His residence is 1305 Chapel St., New Haven, Conn. His home address is 13 Eugrem Ave., Rutland, Vt.

George Unangst Wenner (B.A. 1903) was born in Tallula, Ill., October 20, 1881, prepared at the St. John's School, Delafield, Wis., and at the Chapin Collegiate School, New York City, and entered college with the Class.

His father, Uriah Jacob Omega Wenner, of the Class of Yale 1871, who died September 19, 1891, was a lawyer. He was Judge of Probate, Salt Lake County, Utah, and was born in Bethlehem, Pa., July 31, 1849, the son of George Wenner, a commission merchant and California "forty-niner," and of Sarah Ann (Unangst) Wenner.

His mother, whose maiden name was Kate Yates Greene, was the daughter of William Graham Greene, a banker, and of Louisa Hurt (White) Greene.

Wenner held in college a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Colloquy Senior appointment. An uncle, Rev. George Unangst Wenner, graduated from Yale in 1865.

He writes: "I spent the summer of 1903 in New York City as salesman for the J. B. Williams Company. In September I entered the Harvard Law School in the Class of 1906. By the summer of 1904 I began to realize the wisdom of Iago's famous advice to Cassio, and set out to 'put money in purse.' I entered the employ of McArthur Brothers Company, railroad contractors, on July 19, 1904, and remained with them until about the first of May 1905. They were building the Western Maryland Railroad, and my headquarters were in Cumberland, Md. I worked as Assistant Purchasing Agent, Time-keeper, Commissary Clerk, Line Rider, Paymaster, had charge of four different jobs, ran a canal boat, and branded mules. When I left McArthur Brothers I went to Utah, where I worked with sheep and cattle and on the Great Salt Lake. I 'rushed' the Uintah Indian Reservation at its opening in August, traveling over six hundred miles on horseback. I got lots of glory from this trip but not much else. In September I came to Seattle, and entered the senior class in the Law School of the University of Washington. I left the Law School about the middle of October, continuing the study of law in the offices of Shank and Smith. On January 12, 1906, I was admitted to the bar and since then have practiced with Shank and Smith, 1002 Alaska Building.

"My plans for the future are unsettled. I shall probably either remain in Seattle or go to Alaska. In either event I shall continue practicing law. My permanent address is care the Alaska Club, Seattle, Wash."

He lives at 4200 14th Ave. N. E., Seattle, Wash.

Ethan Pryor Wescott (B.A.1903) was born in Haddonfield, N. J., December 14, 1881, prepared at the Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, John Wesley Wescott (Yale 1872), Judge of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, was born in Waterford, N. J., February 21, 1849.

His mother's maiden name was Frances Pryor.

Wescott's Yale relatives, besides his father, include two brothers, Harry D. Wescott (1901) and Ralph W. Wescott (1906), and two first cousins, Irving Fisher (1888) and Herbert W. Fisher (1898).

In college he was Substitute Pitcher on the Freshman nine and on the University nine. He is at present studying law in the office of Wescott and Waln, 125 South 5th St., Philadelphia, Pa. He lives at Haddonfield, N. J.

William Burns Weston was born in Whitefield, N. H., February 3, 1880, the son of Mrs. Ellen J. Weston. He prepared for college at the Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., and entered in the fall of 1899.

In college he was on the University track team in Freshman and Sophomore years, winning second in the mile run in the Harvard meets of 1900 and 1901, and second in the mile run in the Intercollegiate Meet in 1901. He was a member of the College Choir, University Glee Club, University Banjo and Mandolin Club, and of Delta Kappa Epsilon. He held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment, was associate editor of the Senior Class Book, and a member of the Class Supper Committee.

Since June 1903 he has been connected with several firms: Cleveland Grains Drying Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a bond salesman with Lamprecht Brothers and Company, Cleveland, and is now with the Mason, Lewis and Company, bonds, 60 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

Edwin Reynolds Whitcomb (B.A. 1903) was born in Milwaukee, Wis., April 11, 1881, prepared at the Milwaukee Academy and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Henry Franklin Whitcomb, President of the Wisconsin Central Railroad Company, was born in Harmon, St. Lawrence County, N. Y., June 26, 1848, the son of Henry Franklin Whitcomb, M.D., and Maria Lydia (Torrey) Whitcomb.

His mother, whose maiden name was Louisa Margaret Clock, was the daughter of James Barnet Clock, a railroad official, and of Eliza Jane (Simmons) Clock.

In college Whitcomb was a member of the Apollo and University Glee clubs, Manager of the Basketball Association and a member of Alpha Delta Phi. He held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Colloquy Senior appointment. Henry Franklin Whitcomb, Jr., (Yale 1906) is a brother.

He writes: "Left college in June 1903. Traveled abroad for a few months and then returned to Milwaukee, Wis. Entered Wisconsin University October 1903 in civil engineering department. Could not stand the pace after pleasant memories of Yale and left there December 1903. Entered General Superintendent's office, Wisconsin Central Railway, January 11, 1904. Worked there and in the Auditor's office of same railway until July 1905. Appointed Assistant Train Master Wisconsin Central Railway and commenced at that August 1, 1905. Still in same position. Was made Vice President of the Central Wisconsin Land Company of Fond du Lac January 1905."

He was married October 11, 1905, in Kenosha, Wis., to Miss Annis Louise Palmetier, daughter of the late Charles Palmetier.

His business address is care Wisconsin Central Railway, Fond du Lac, Wis. His residence is 310 East Division St.

Howard Sage White (B.A. 1903) was born in Bridgeport, Conn., April 10, 1880, prepared at the Taft School, Watertown, Conn., and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Edward Luther White (Yale 1875 S.), died in 1893. He was born in Waterbury, Conn., in 1853, the son of J. Watson White and Anna S. (Wells) White.

His mother, whose maiden name was Laura Virginia Ogden, was the daughter of James L. Ogden and Emily M. (Wandell) Ogden.

White's Yale relatives besides his father include a brother, Ogden W. White (1901), and two cousins, W. H. White (1900 S.) and G. L. White, Jr. (1901).

In college he was a member of Alpha Delta Phi and held a Dissertation Junior appointment and the same Senior appointment.

Since graduation he has been engaged in brass manufacturing with the American Ring Company of Waterbury. His residence is 21 Cliff St., Waterbury, Conn.

John Richards White (B.A. 1903) was born in Providence, R. I., November 24, 1880, prepared at the St. Mark's School, Southboro, Mass., and entered college in the fall of 1899.

His father, William Wurts White (University of Pennsylvania 1860), a coal merchant of Providence, was born in Philadelphia November 3, 1842, the son of John Richards White and Caroline (Wurts) White.

His mother, whose maiden name was Kate Merwin, was the daughter of Elias Merwin, a lawyer, and of Annie (Childs) Merwin.

William Wurts White, Jr., (Yale 1905) is a brother.

In college White was a Catcher on the Freshman nine and on the College nine. He was a member of Hé Boulé, Psi Upsilon and Skull and Bones societies, and held a First Colloquy Junior appointment and a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

After graduation he taught school for one year at the St. Mark's School, Southboro, Mass., and then went into the coal business with his father with the firm of John R. White and Son, 27 Weybosset St., Providence, R. I. In the spring of 1906 he gave up this work on account of health and in October 1906 he will take up teaching permanently at the St. Mark's School.

His permanent address is 150 George St., Providence, R. I.

William Otis White (B.A. 1903) was born in Terre Haute, Ind., June 5, 1879, prepared at The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and entered with the Class.

His father, William Harvey White, a lumber manufacturer of Terre Haute, was born in Mertz, Ind., April 13, 1849, the son of Granvel White and Evaline (Smith) White.

His mother, whose maiden name was Martha Elizabeth Murphy, was the daughter of Isaah Murphy and Margaret (Williams) Murphy.

In college White was a member of the Class Supper Committee and of Delta Kappa Epsilon. He held a Second Colloquy Junior appointment and a First Colloquy Senior appointment.

Since graduation he has been in business with his father, William H. White and Sons, manufacturers of lumber and railroad ties, 513 Ohio St., Cairo, Ill. His home address is 1130 South Sixth St., Terre Haute, Ind.

Everett Martin Whittemore was born in Dennis, Mass., February 21, 1874, prepared at the Mt. Hermon (Mass.) School and entered college in September 1899, leaving in the fall of Freshman year.

His father, Henry Mastin Whittemore, who is in the painting and glazing business, was born in Dennis, Mass., September 28, 1841, the son of Hiram Whittemore.

His mother, whose maiden name was Helen Burckes, was the daughter of Martin Burckes.

Whittemore was married October 16, 1901, in Waterloo, Iowa, to Miss Elsie Maud Franklin, the daughter of Charles E. Franklin, a real estate broker of Kansas City, Mo. A daughter, Maud Franklin Whittemore, was born October 3, 1904.

Since leaving college he has been with the Burnham, Hanna, Munger Dry Goods Company of Kansas City and holds now the position of Cashier. He lives at 3624 Garfield Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

Willis Savage Whittlesey (B.A. 1903) was born in Morris, Conn., April 18, 1875, prepared at the Mt. Hermon (Mass.) School and entered college with the Class.

His father, Samuel Averill Whittlesey, a farmer of Morris, was born in New Britain, Conn., August 7, 1845, the son of David Waller Whittlesey, a farmer, and of Dolly B. (Averill) Whittlesey.

His mother, whose maiden name was Ada Isabel Savage, was the daughter of Willis S. Savage, a farmer, and of Ulyssa (Morse) Savage.

In college he was a member of the College Choir and Zeta Psi. A great uncle, Gen. Eliphalet Whittlesey (1842), and a first cousin, Wilfred W. Savage (1894 S.), are among Whittlesey's Yale relatives.

He was married November 17, 1904, at Mile Square Road, Yonkers, N. Y., to Miss Emily Henderson Craven, daughter of Alfred Craven, the Deputy Chief Engineer of the Rapid Transit Commission of New York City and a graduate of the United States Naval Academy in 1867.

Whittlesey is the Treasurer of the Charles E. Sholes Company and of the Georgetown Chemical Works, with an office at 164 Front St., New York City. He lives at Mile Square Road, Yonkers, N. Y.

Theodore Harry Wickwire, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Cortland, N. Y., April 6, 1879, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college with the Class.

His father, Theodore Harry Wickwire, of Wickwire Brothers, was born in Cortland, N. Y., March 30, 1851, the son of Raymond Wickwire, a farmer, and of Elmira (Greenman) Wickwire.

His mother, whose maiden name was Emma Viola Woodmansee, was the daughter of Jere Woodmansee, a farmer, and of Harriet (Redfield) Woodmansee.

Two brothers have also attended Yale: Jere Raymond Wickwire (1906) and Ward Alington Wickwire (1908 S.).

He writes: "Since leaving Yale with the Class of 1903 I have been employed by Wickwire Brothers, Cortland, N. Y., a firm composed of my father and uncle, also three first cousins, A. Stilson, E. Stilson and C. Wickwire. The firm manufactures steel, steel wire rods, wire of all kinds, wire nails, wire netting and wire cloth. I am now a director.

"I was married on October 1, 1903, to Sophie Bremner Hedge, daughter of Charles Gorham Hedge of Brooklyn, the Vice President and Treasurer of the M. K. & T. R. R. system. We have not had any children.

"I am a member of the Yale Club of New York, Secretary of the Cortland Science Club, member of the American Chemical Society, Syracuse Technology Club, Municipal Civil Service Commission as President at present, director Second National Bank of Cortland, director Cortland Water Works.

"My work has been with the above firm as Assistant Chemist, Chief Chemist and then Superintendent of Open Hearth and now I am General Manager of Steel Department."

His residence is 64 Tompkins St., Cortland, N. Y.

*Thomas Edward Wilde was born January 12, 1879, at Fort Madison, Iowa, prepared for college at the Central High School, Washington, D. C., and entered Yale with the Class of 1902. He left after a year to teach school, returning at the beginning of Sophomore year as a member of 1903. Soon after Christmas he was suddenly taken ill with typhoid fever, and died in New Haven, Saturday, February 23, 1901, having been a member of the Class for only one term.

His father, Thomas Arthur Dack (deceased), was of Revolutionary stock.

His mother, Emily Jane (Sargent) Wilde, now living at Fort Madison, while of English descent, has spent most of her life in this country. She is the daughter of Richard Bell Sargent, a farmer, born at Barrow-on-Humber, Lincolnshire, England, and of Sarah E. (Sheppard) Sargent.

As a boy he loved the companionship of his mother, with whom he read constantly. He early showed a fondness for literature and history, and he particularly loved biography. At twelve he had begun what he called his "constitution"—putting down what he read, and what he thought of things going on about him. As he grew older he determined to study law either at Harvard or at Columbia, with the hope of eventually entering political life—holding before himself as an ideal, the highest type of statesmanship. His marked fearlessness would have proved of great service to him. This trait of character was well known to his boy friends, for if they ever did anything which he knew to be wrong, he was quick to tell them on what ground he stood, and in so doing he never lost their friendship.

In 1895 his family moved to Washington, D. C., where he entered the Central High School. The following tribute, written by a schoolmate and published shortly after his death, shows plainly the place he held in the hearts of those whom he knew in Washington: "Never have I seen him do a thing or utter a word that would indicate malice toward any person, or even indifference to the feelings of others. Never have I known him to take advantage of another's weakness or use an artful evasion to escape any responsibility. In fact he had the instinct, the training, and the inborn manner of a gentleman. He was generous and brave and tender and true. The innate chivalry of his nature won him many friends, and so endeared him to them that in their hearts his loving memory will abide forever. He was a splendid type of Western manhood in his great physical strength, mental vigor and moral firmness. He needed a big body to hold his big heart, and a fine physique to correspond with his healthy mind. It was his great heart and clean mind that made his friendship and companionship so wholesome and so precious."

THOMAS EDWARD WILDE.

He remained in the high school until the end of junior year, when he changed his plans and determined to prepare for college at once. Day in and day out, during one of the longest and hottest summers, he accomplished an enormous amount of work, and entered Yale in the fall of 1898 with the Class of 1902. A teacher who early recognized his exceptional qualities writes of his work in preparation for the Yale examinations,—“The task was almost superhuman, but he had to pull himself up and he did—nothing ever stood in his way when once he made up his mind. He had a splendid mind and an excellent memory.”

After Christmas of Freshman year with 1902 he showed his spirit and love for athletics by going out for the crew. He stood six feet in height and weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds. In the preliminary work he did well, but on account of a severe cold which developed into pneumonia he was kept out of college till after the Easter vacation. By the end of the year, notwithstanding his illness, he had made up the work in which he had been conditioned on entering—handicapped as he had been because of but three years of preparation.

In the fall of 1899 on finding it necessary to give up college for a year he taught mathematics and history at Dummer Academy, South Byfield, Massachusetts. The work proved most enjoyable to him, associated as he was with both Harvard and Yale men, and in his diary he wrote,—“I have at the most only two days more in this fairyland, and were it not against my principles to be sad for any cause, I should certainly be sad at leaving here. I wonder if any subsequent year of my life will ever be crowded with such pleasant and beneficial experiences. The study, the teaching, the disciplining, the becoming familiar with the workings of an academy from a teacher's standpoint, the uplifting associations, the sports, the initiation into the social life of a strange place in the rôle of teacher, the habituation to responsibility, the adventures, and the everlasting influence of a simple healthful existence, make my heart beat with thanksgiving to Him who has thrown all these happy things about me. I am not sorry I did not return to college last fall, but I will rejoice to return in September." The head master of the Academy writes, "His physical size and strength conveyed the impression of manly force and character, which his conduct well bore out. His frank boyish manner, genial open-heartedness and high-minded purity, drew our hearts to him. In all of his work he was cheerful but earnest, working for the best results with high ideals. He entered into the boys' sports with the same good fellowship which he displayed in our faculty literary meetings. We constantly remember him and frequently recall to one another the enjoyable hours we had with him."

"Ed" Wilde, as he was known in 1902, became a member of our Class at the beginning of Sophomore year. He made in 1903 a few very close friends, but most of his friendships had been formed earlier among the members of the class ahead. Again he expressed his fondness for athletics by trying for the football team, which he enjoyed to the fullest extent.

Dean Wright has sent this tribute—"I shall never forget Wilde. He was an earnest, conscientious student, though not a high scholar; rather retiring; always sincere; manly and true. He must have been a delightful companion to those who knew him intimately."

While with us his classroom work revealed his eagerness to know things and to know them through and through. He was one of the small number of men who take an equal and serious interest in the widely separated pursuits of mathematics on the one hand and literary and linguistic studies on the other.

It is impossible to remember him without thinking of the sweet smile which always lighted his face. Never was there visible to his most intimate friends a trace of sorrow or despondency. His whole-souled infectious laugh was typical, and nothing was more characteristic than his perception of the humorous side of life. He was appreciative, but not only this, he constantly showed his appreciation to those about him. He was the sort of fellow whose unconscious influence tended to uplift even those who did not know him well, for his outlook upon life was always bright and hopeful. He knew the evil in the world and in the college world, but he would not allow it either to shake his optimism or to enter his own life.

One of the leading men in the Class of 1902 adds—"His judgment of men and of things, though kindly, was keen, and he was fitted for knightly service in life's battle. His fellowship was genial, his ideals pure. I never have known a man more honest and transparent in his friendships and in his daily life. I valued him highly as a friend, and 1903 sustained by his death a distinct loss."

Dudley P. Lewis.

Frederick William Wilhelmi (B.A. 1903) was born in Fort Randall, Dakota, September 7, 1879, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered with the Class.

His father, Louis Wilhelmi, who died April 19, 1886, entered the United States army in 1875 and at his death was a first lieutenant and adjutant in the First Infantry. He was born in Berleburg, Prussia, October 1, 1849, the son of Frederick William Wilhelmi, a major in the 17th Royal Prussian Infantry, and of Wilhelmina Stark (Von Wittenstein) Wilhelmi. Mrs. Wilhelmi was the daughter of Prince Ludwig Von Wittenstein, an officer under Frederick the Great.

His mother, whose maiden name was Julia Pauline Malsan, was the daughter of Henry Morris Malsan and Sarah Elizabeth (White) Malsan. Mr. Malsan was a great-grandson of Robert Morris, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. Mrs. Malsan was the granddaughter of Judge Hugh White of Whitestown, N. Y.

In college Wilhelmi played right half back on the Freshman eleven and substitute end on the University eleven. He was a member of the Sophomore German Committee, the Junior Promenade Committee, and the Class Day Committee. He was on the campaign committees of Eta Phi and Delta Kappa Epsilon and was a member of Skull and Bones.

Since graduation he has been in the lumber business. His address is care Walker County Lumber Company, Elmina, Texas.

Lewis Alfred Williams, Jr., (B.A. 1903) was born in Lakeside, Ohio, June 24, 1883, prepared at the Mount Pleasant Academy, Ossining, N. Y., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Lewis Alfred Williams, of the Publishing Society of New York, was born in Bellevue, Ohio, January 22, 1849, the son of David Williams and Rebecca (Elliot) Williams.

His mother, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Boalt, was the daughter of Stephen Boalt and Charlotte M. (Shourds) Boalt.

Since graduation Williams has been in business with his father with the Publishing Society of New York, 41 Lafayette Place, New York City. He lives at 48 Albert St., Plainfield, N. J.

Orion James Willis (B.A. 1903) was born in Prairie Plains, Tenn., January 25, 1878, prepared at the Winchester (Tenn.) Normal College and entered Yale at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Thomas Henderson Willis, a planter of Manchester, Tenn., was born in Prairie Plains, Tenn., May 19, 1855, the son of Peter Willis and Amanda (Arnett) Willis.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Clark, was the daughter of James Andrew Clark and Emilia (Wilkinson) Clark.

H. H. Clark (Yale 1903) is a first cousin.

In college Willis was editor of the Pot-Pourri, President of the University Baseball Association, a member of the Ivy Committee, President of the Southern Club and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Alpha Delta Phi and Scroll and Key societies. He held a High Oration Junior appointment and an Oration Senior appointment.

He writes: "On leaving college I began work, or rather labor, in the mills of my present company (American Sheet and Tin Plate Company) at Vandergrift, Pa. The following winter I spent in their sales office in New Orleans. I was then returned to mill work in Ensley, Ala., where six months were spent in open hearth furnace work, after which four months were spent in the tin plate mills at Cambridge, Ohio, Bridgeport, Ohio, and Wheeling, West Virginia. I then spent a month in their general offices at Pittsburg, Pa., before coming to their sales office in Chicago, where I am now located."

His business address is care American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, Chicago, Ill. His residence is 30 Walton Place. His home address is Manchester, Tenn.

William Ladd Winch was born in Enfield, Conn., November 29, 1879, prepared at the Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., and entered college in September 1899.

His father, Rev. George William Winch (University of Vermont 1870), is a Congregational clergyman. He was born in Northfield, Vt., August 4, 1845, the son of William Winch and Lydia (Nye) Winch.

His mother, whose maiden name was Hannah Elizabeth Ladd, was the daughter of Jabez Ladd and Martha (Wright) Ladd.

Winch entered the employ of the American Writing Paper Company of Holyoke, Mass., in the fall of 1903. In September 1905 he entered the Yale Law School and expects to get his LL.B. in 1908. His present address is 114 High St., New Haven, Conn. His home address is 57 Pearl St., Holyoke, Mass.

Wilson Gordon Wing (B.A. 1903) was born in Valparaiso, Chili, August 1, 1881, prepared at Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., and entered college at the beginning of Freshman year.

His father, Wilson Dorr Wing, a retired lumberman of Bangor, Maine, was born in Somerset Mills, Me., the son of Wilson Wing, a lumberman of Somerset Mills, Me.

His mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Flint, was the daughter of Ambrose Cushing Flint, Register of Probate of Bangor for 30 years, and of Caroline (Farnsworth) Flint.

In college Wing was a member of the University Banjo and Mandolin Club, and of Alpha Delta Phi. He took special honors in Economics, and graduated with a Second Colloquy Senior appointment.

He writes: "Soon after graduation Erl Ostby, Byron Pierce, Lucian Kirtland and I, together with a Brown 1903 man named Blanding, took a corking trip around the world. We visited in the aggregate, Honolulu, Japan, China, Straits Settlements, Ceylon, India, Arabia, Egypt, Italy, France, England and one or two small trips. All of us did not go to all the places I have mentioned, but some went to some, some to others. We took a unique trip in a house boat far into the interior of China and all in all received a finishing touch to our college course that worked wonders with every one of us. Soon after my return I received an offer from an influential man in Boston to come out here on a trip to California to look into some fruit interests he had out here. I did not expect to be gone more than six weeks but found things in bad shape, took hold and was rewarded by being made Superintendent towards the last of the season of 1903-1904. The head man of the business having died and left affairs much involved, I took charge and practically ran things until this last October, when, owing to many complications and internal changes in the company I was working for, I left the company for good and all, withdrawing from the unhealthy excitement and worry of the fruit business here, which was throwing me into a rut and also making an old man of me before my time.

"It occurred to me in view of the spare time I had on my hands until next June, when I expect to return east, that a knowledge of business law would be most practicable and valuable in every way, so I have just returned from a visit to Stanford University, where I went to see what I could get out of a course there. I find that I can get what I want and so will be located there for six months, at least, after January 1, 1906. Have been mixed up in a small way in village politics and was elected a director in a water company here, capital over a million, and the manager of which is a Yale man, E. P. Newton, '97, I think. It made it pleasant for both of us to be associated in the same line. The name of the Company is the Temescal Water Company, made famous by recent important water litigations. Although I am not active in any business at the present moment I am on one or two directors' boards, principally in the drug business. Have not made any fortune yet but have done as well as I expected though not as well as I hope to some time.

"After my law course I may return east to look into one or two openings, but my heart is in the lumber business; it is bred in the bone of course, for the lumber industry has called the Wing family for four successive generations. In this case I may go to Seattle."

His home address is Bangor, Maine.

William Basil Wood was born in Tuscaloosa, Ala., May 4, 1881, prepared at the University School, Nashville, Tenn., and entered college with the Class, leaving at the end of Sophomore year.

His father, William John Wood (Wesleyan University, Florence, Ala., 1872), a lawyer of the firm of Blakey and Wood, Evansville, Ind., has been Indiana State Railroad Commissioner. He was born in Florence, Ala., March 30, 1850, the son of Sterling Alexander Milton Wood, a lawyer, and of Lelia (Leftwich) Wood.

His mother, whose maiden name was Eugenie Ringold, was the daughter of Henry Morris Ringold, a planter, and of Euphemie (Story) Ringold.

In college Wood was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

He writes: "I left Yale in June 1901, the end of Sophomore year. September 1 entered the Division General Freight Office of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company at Evansville, holding various desks until January 1, 1902, when I resigned to go to Howell, Ind., with the same company, as Weigh Master, Inspector, Yard Clerk and Switchman. December 1, 1902, was appointed local agent at Eldorado, Ill. Held this place until August 1, 1903, when was promoted to Chief Clerk, to Local Freight Agent, Henderson, Kentucky. On April 20, 1904, was promoted to position of Local Agent and General Yard Master for the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company at Earlington, Ky. In August 1905 was appointed Chief Clerk to General Agent of Traffic Department of same company at Birmingham, Ala. In October 1905 was sent to Louisville, Ky., to handle rate desk in General Freight offices of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. On December 1, 1905, was appointed Contracting Freight Agent of the Illinois Central Railroad Company with headquarters at Evansville, Ind., which position I now hold.

"I am a non-resident member of the Eldorado, Ill., City Club, Southern Club of Birmingham, Ala., also Country Club of Birmingham. I am a resident member of the following Evansville organizations: Crescent Club, Country Club, Business Association, Accountants' Club, Winston Club, Assembly Club."

His business address is 126 Main St., Evansville, Ind. His residence is 1054 South First Street.

George Edward Woodbine (B.A. 1903) was born in Boston, Mass., April 29, 1876, prepared at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered college with the Class of 1902, joining 1903, after a year's absence, at the beginning of Sophomore year.

His father, Mark Woodbine, was born in Worcestershire, England, November 11, 1849, the son of George Woodbine and Mary (Mogg) Woodbine.

His mother, whose maiden name was Maria Townshend, was the daughter of Edward Townshend and Mary (Bushell) Townshend.

In college Woodbine was a member of the College Choir, 1902 Freshman Glee Club and the Apollo Glee Club. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and of the Elihu Club, and held an Oration Junior appointment and a Philosophical Oration Senior appointment, graduating twelfth in rank.

He writes: "The only facts in my career since leaving college that you could make use of are that I have held the Larned Fellowship and Foote Fellowship and have been assistant in history while working for a Ph.D."

His present address is 245 York St., New Haven, Conn. His home address is Harding, Mass.

Harris Spring Woodman (B.A. 1903) was born in Auburn, Maine, March 11, 1881, prepared at the Columbia Classical Institute, Waterville, Maine, and after a year at Colby entered Yale in September 1899.

His father, Joseph Cushman Woodman, who died January 11, 1888, was born in New Gloucester, Maine, the son of Prentis Mellen Woodman and Elizabeth (Cushman) Woodman.

His mother, whose maiden name was Kitty E. Spring, died June 11, 1881, and was the daughter of Charles A. Spring.

In college Woodman was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Since graduation he has been in oil cloth manufacturing in Winthrop, Maine, first with the C. M. Bailey's Sons and Company and at present with Wadsworth and Woodman.

John Eastman Woodruff (B.A. 1904) was born in New York City January 8, 1881, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered with the Class, joining 1904 in September 1901.

His father, Timothy Lester Woodruff (Yale 1879), is the President of the Smith Premier Typewriter Company and of the Provident Savings Life Assurance Society and was Lieutenant Governor of New York from 1898 to 1903. He was born in New Haven, Conn., August 4, 1858, the son of John Woodruff, M.C., of New Haven, and of Harriet Jane (Lester) Woodruff.

His mother, whose maiden name was Cora Eastman, died April 17, 1904. She was the daughter of Harvey G. Eastman, Mayor of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and of Minerva (Clark) Eastman.

In college Woodruff was a member of Psi Upsilon and Wolf's Head societies.

He was married in Columbus, Ohio, May 26, 1905, to Miss Eugenie Gray Watson, daughter of the late Otway Watson. A daughter was born May 27, 1906.

He writes: "I took my degree in June 1904 and spent the first summer after graduation in the Adirondacks. I spent the following winter in traveling about this country a good deal and for two months worked in the Smith Premier Typewriter Company of Syracuse as an ordinary repair man. I entered the state of matrimony in May following and sailed abroad the first week of June. On arriving in England we went aboard the yacht 'Erin' and with that popular English baronet who has tried so hard to lift the 'Cup' we spent a week sailing about the waters of the Solent. Then we took what I believe to be a record breaking automobile tour. We left Paris in our new 'Flat' car, which was delivered to us there on July 1, and returned to Paris on July 28, having been gone just 27 days. During that time we covered 3000 miles, or 110 miles a day, and traversed all of France, Switzerland, Germany, part of Austria, all of Holland, Belgium and back through France. We took in all the chateau district of France, the Gordon-Bennett automobile race in Auvergne, France, climbed the two highest passes of the Alps, took in the exposition at Liege, Belgium, and got back to Paris without a hitch or breakdown of any serious character. I have read of several trips like this one but never of one in which so much ground was covered in so short a time. It was also a record breaker in the number of punctures, which amounted to 14, which cost us $620.

"On my return I organized The Pneumelectric Machine Company for the manufacture of coal mining machinery, with a capital of $500,000. I hope to remain here in Syracuse about five years."

His address is 716 James St., Syracuse, N. Y.

Howard Spencer Woodward (B.A. Hiram College, Ohio, 1902, B.A. Yale 1903) was born in Lordstown, Ohio, August 16, 1877, attended the Preparatory School of Hiram College, and entered Yale at the beginning of Sophomore year. He took the Sophomore year at Yale, spent the next year at Hiram College and returned again at the beginning of Senior year.

His father, Delbert King Woodward (fruit growing and insurance), was born in Lordstown August 8, 1855, the son of Leonard Woodward, a farmer of Lordstown, and of Ann (Moherman) Woodward.

His mother, whose maiden name was Anna Elizabeth Spencer, was the daughter of C. B. Spencer, a farmer of Chardon, O., and of Sophia (Foote) Spencer.

In Yale he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, held a High Oration Junior appointment and a High Oration Senior appointment. In Hiram he was President of the senior class and of the D. L. Society. He was the college representative in the Ohio Intercollegiate Oratorical Association and the winner and representative of the Ohio Association in the Interstate Oratorical Association.

He writes: "Nothing of particular significance has happened to me since June 1903. Have been in no earthquakes, have no children, no wife, am not even engaged—at present—and can't tell when I am going to be. Went straight home from Yale after graduation and on account of my father's illness staid there until February 1904. The rest of that year and last year I spent at Harvard in the English department of the Graduate School. I remained in Cambridge a number of weeks last summer doing some library work, spent some time at home and began my work at the Illinois State Normal University the 11th of last September. I have to teach thru summer term of six weeks and consequently must miss Class Reunion, which I was hoping to be able to attend. Think at present there is nothing of particular significance even in my plans, which are in general to keep better things coming my way and do further university work. The how and when and where are problematical at the present stage of the game.

"Have seen more or less of a number of the boys since leaving New Haven—had a large contingent at Cambridge—and Bill Searles and I have had a number of good times at Cleveland and at my home; but I think I have no particular revelation to make regarding any of them."

His address is Box 62, Normal, Ill. His home address is Warren, Ohio.

Gerald Stanton Work was born in Akron, Ohio, May 28, 1880, prepared at the St. Paul School, Concord, N. H., and entered with the Class, leaving at the close of Freshman year.

His father, Alanson Work, who died October 29, 1881, was Vice President of the B. F. Goodrich Company. He was born in Quincy, Ill., March 1, 1842, the son of Alanson Work and Aurelia (Forbes) Work.

His mother, whose maiden name was Henrietta Willcox Lane, was the daughter of Anthony Lane and Elisabeth (Willcox) Lane.

Since leaving college Work has been in rubber manufacturing with the B. F. Goodrich Company, Akron, Ohio. His address is Warkwolde, Perkins Hill, Akron, Ohio.

THE NEW YORK DINNERS.

THE FIRST DINNER.

That spirit which did so much for Yale when the Class of 1903 was an undergraduate body evidently remains in the Class as a graduate body. Since the time of the Hadley inaugural procession, 1903 has always been noted for the spirit, dash and vim with which it did anything it started out to do.

The dinner at the Yale Club in New York, January 2, 1904, proved it. In spite of the fact that the members of the Class are widely scattered, never could there have been a more enjoyable affair of the kind. Seventy-six gathered around the festive board the day after New Year to give each other and the absent friends, many of whom were on the farther side of the globe, the toast of the season.

The eminent medical prodigy and erstwhile thespian, Erastus Corning, did himself proud as master of the feast and well were his calls for speeches responded to by the following venerable graduates of the University.

1903 at the Bar—not any old bar, . . . . . Harry Stern.
Representing his Step Alma Mater.

1903 in Medicine, . . . . . A. R. Lamb.
The sheep has sought pastures new.

1903 in Society, . . . . . Gifford A. Cochran.
Put not your trust in dogs—nor girls.

A Blow from Chicago, . . . . . R. R. McCormick.
He toiled not, neither did he spin.

(This number on the program proved a real blow—Bertie having departed for Panama on a rush order—in spite of the fact that C. A. Moore, Jr., dispensed liquid air in place of the dweller on the banks of the Chicago river.)

The Minutes of Our Last Meeting, . . . . . Ziegler Sargent.
A hard working cuss with a cussed hard job.

1903 as Viewed from the Faculty, . . . . . Prof. Williams.
Would that there were more like him.

It was the privilege and the pleasure of the Class to have as their guest Frank Lea Short, whose stories added greatly to the pleasure of the evening. Just previous to the singing of "Bright College Years," the "long distance cup" was presented by the Toastmaster, amid much glee and keen controversy as to the number of ties the various applicants had walked, in their endeavors to be present at the dinner. One, Ritchie McKee, a mule driver in the Scranton coal mines, having put in a claim that he had counted two million, was finally awarded the precious trophy.

The committee in charge consisted of R. A. Granniss, Chairman, B. Ellsworth, C. D. Green, and J. B. Thomas, Jr.

The following members of the Class were present:—Berman, Bogue, Bond, Bragaw, Clement, Cochran, A. M. Collens, Conduct, Corning, Cory, Craighead, Ellsworth, Fachiri, Fairbank, Fairbanks, Farrel, Fitch, Foster, Fox, Fulton, Furst, Gaines, Gleason, Granniss, Green, Greene, Haas, Hamlin, Hazard, Hess, Hooper, Hyatt, H. James, D. K. Johnston, W. P. Johnston, Knox, Lamb, Lane, Langley, Leonard, Lewis, McKee, McKesson, H. C. MacLean, Melcer, C. A. Moore, Jr., F. W. Moore, Moulton, Plummer, Pratt, Rhoads, Rhodes, Roberts, Rogers, Rosenthal, Sargent, Sayre, Stern, Stevenson, Stillman, Strong, Terriberry, J. B. Thomas, Jr., Townsend, Tulin, Tyler, Updegraff, Utley, VanderPoel, Waldron, S. D. Ward, H. S. White, J. R. White, Williams.

Joseph B. Thomas, Jr.

---

THE SECOND DINNER.

The second annual dinner of the Class of 1903 was held at the Yale Club, New York City, on Friday, February 24, 1905. Eighty-five members attended. The long distance cup was claimed by L'Hommedieu, Minor and Bennethum. It developed however, during cross-examination, that the first man had travelled on a pass and had stopped on the way. The second lost on a similar technicality, and the prize went to Bennethum, of Minneapolis, Minn. A hoarse voice naming Yonkers as his point of departure was heard at frequent intervals during the discussion, but he was excluded from consideration on the ground that it was the distance from New York, not from civilization, that was being measured.

When the "blackmail and tribute committee" had rifled the congregation to their satisfaction, Erastus Corning, toastmaster, introduced the Faculty guest of the evening, Prof. Wm. B. Bailey. Prof. Bailey's former relations with so large a majority of the Class, together with an exceedingly clever and interesting speech, brought him most cordial greetings. Mr. Frank Lea Short, former coach of the Yale Dramatic Association, was the guest of honor. He also was warmly welcomed, and his stories, as usual, were full of life, and wit. Ziegler Sargent, Secretary, Albert R. Lamb and George S. Hurst represented the Class and one at a time stood on his feet and alternated remarks with the Class at large. An unexpected speech, probably on the subject of rowing, was delivered, a la spirite, by another member under inspiration. The poet-laureate of Pittsfield was prevailed upon to read an extemporaneous paper, which he did. Some one near by said later that it was poetry.

The Committee, R. A. Granniss, Jr., C. Douglass Green, J. B. Thomas, Jr., and Bradford Ellsworth were suitably extolled and reharnessed for another year's service.

WORD-MAKERS.

Toastmaster, Rat Corning Booth.

- An Advertisement of "Alumni Insurance Review and Obituaries," . . . . . George Hurst.
"How long, how long, O Lord?"—6 ft. 4.
- Three Bleats and a Damn, . . . . . by Lamb.
- From Poli's to Yale Dramatics, . . . . . Frank Short.
"I am Short—but full of spirit."
- American Social Conditions as exemplified by 1903. For unsocial conditions see 1902, . Prof. William Bailey.
"Eighty-three per cent. of Vienna's female population are not what they should be."
- 1903 Notes—Quite a number, . . . . . Ziegler Sargent.

The following were present:—T. Andrews, Archbald, Atwater, Beardsley, Bennethum, Berman, Bill, Bogue, Bowers, Clement, Cochran, Condict, Corning, Cory, Craighead, Crowe, Denno, Dodge, Dreisbach, DuPuy, DuVal, Ellsworth, Fairbanks, Fitch, Fulton, Furst, Gaines, Gans, F. C. Gilbert, Gleason, Goss, Granniss, Green, Greene, Haas, Hart, Howard, Hurst, Hyatt, Henry James, W. P. Johnston, Knox, Lamb, Lane, Leonard, Lewis, L'Hommedieu, Lockwood, McKesson, MacLean, Minor, F. W. Moore, Mullen, Ogden, Peckham, Plummer, Pratt, Rankin, Roberts, Rogers, Rosenthal, Sanford, Sargent, Sayre, Schley, B. M. Smith, Stern, Stevenson, Stillman, Stuart, Terri-berry, J. B. Thomas, Jr., Trenholm, Truett, Utley, VanderPoel, Van Deventer, Waddell, R. W. Walker, W. B. Walker, Waring, H. S. White, Wickwire, Williams, Woodbine, and in addition the two guests of the evening, Frank Lea Short and Prof. W. B. Bailey.

Joseph B. Thomas, Jr.

---

THE THIRD DINNER.

Sixty-one men sat down to the third annual dinner of the Class of 1903 at the Yale Club, New York City, Saturday, April 21, 1906. Much food and some drink were provided by the Committee, but, thanks to the generosity of George Sykes, the Class was not allowed to go dry. The reunion was a happy and informal one. Three of Africa's best enlivened the game with gentle strains of music. "Scut" Ellsworth's yodel had lost none of its popularity and was called for again and again. No formal toasts had been arranged. The ex-boy actor, Dr. Corning of Albany, presided and dispensed liquid air with a siphon bottle. He first called upon the guest of honor; Mr. Charles J. Fay, '93, who received a warm welcome and whose speech was frequently interrupted with applause and other signs of approval. Oliver, Chairman of the Triennial, reported that he came clean from Pittsburg to tell the Class some news of the coming big reunion and to exhibit a real Triennial convict. After a few impromptu remarks from Cochran, J. McAllister Stevenson, Jr., was called upon to read an original poem which he happened to have in his pocket. Chairman Grannis, of the Dinner Committee, apologizing for inability to exhibit the Long Distance Cup, which had not yet arrived from the engraver's, called for candidates. West Lynn (Mass.), Albany, Easton (Pa.), Cincinnati, Rockland (Me.), Waterbury, Brooklyn, Ansonia (Conn.), Hartford, Cambridge (Mass.), New Haven, Philadelphia, Meriden, Pittsburg, and Yonkers all had claims. At first Oliver seemed to have it, but when Thorne Baker, from Cincinnati (744 miles), speaking at length offered to eat his hat if he had not come more than 431 miles to attend the dinner, the Class was unwilling to witness such a painful operation, and the longest man won. The short distance mug, a beautiful stein of massive proportions, was tossed to Ellsworth, who presented an unverified claim to a room on the floor below. An unusual feature was the informal visits made by several members of 1904, including Woodruff, once of 1903. When Winslow, 1904, besought by loud applause and cries for "speech," expressed a wish for a winning Triennial game, the resulting applause was more than half serious, for the Class has been witness to many Commencement baseball defeats. With a long cheer 1903 adjourned to the piano to sing the old songs and to talk over the coming Triennial.

Those present were:—Baker, Beardsley, Berman, Betts, Bloomer, Bowers, Bristol, Clement, Cochran, Condict, Corning, Craighead, Digney, Dreisbach, Dunham, DuVal, Ellsworth, Farrel, Frisbie, Gaines, Gans, Gleason, Granniss, C. D. Green, Haas, Hart, Hartjen, Hess, Hyatt, H. James, N. R. Jones, Knox, Lamb, Lane, Leonard, Littlefield, Lockwood, McKesson, D. B. MacLane, H. C. MacLean, Oliver, Plummer, Pratt, Roberts, Robinson, Sargent, Sayre, Schley, Stern, Stevenson, Stillman, Stuart, Sykes, Terribery, Townsend, Trenholm, Van Deventer, H. M. Wallace, Waring, H. S. White.

THE CLASS OF 1492.

---

The First Annual Class of 1492 Dinner was held at the Yale University Dining Hall on Tuesday, June 26, 1905. Any man returning for Commencement week, whose class has not a regular reunion, is a member of the "Class of 1492." The name started so long ago that there is conflicting testimony as to its origin. At any rate, it is a good scheme, and members of 1903 who hereafter return to New Haven in "off" years are advised to try it.

The dinner was excellent, but a little late in starting. This, coupled with one or two long speeches, caused a large part of the three hundred and fifty alumni present to adjourn to the Campus to help celebrate the winning of the baseball championship, and thereby to miss Corning's speech, the best of the evening. Judge William K. Townsend, '71, presided over what he called the dinner of the class of "7 to 2" (referring to the afternoon's baseball victory), and Frank H. Simmons, '98, led the singing. The toast list contained some of Yale's best names: Hart Lyman, '73, William H. Kelsey, '77, Howard H. Knapp, '82, and Erastus Corning, '03. Two unplanned events caused much enthusiasm. The baseball team headed by Captain Bowman appeared after their dinner smoking long fat cigars and were greeted with prolonged cheers. The other feature was of a different kind and suggested the "stunts" and the Glee Club reunion of this year (1906). William N. Runyon, '92, sang two remarkable solos: "Komeo and Juliet" and the "Antigone." It is unnecessary to mention the long lists of committees in charge; 1903 was officially represented on the committee by Henry James. Besides Corning, who sat on the platform, the following members of the Class of 1903 were present: Condict, Granniss, Hess, Hogan, McClintock, Peckham, Roberts, Sargent, Sayre, W. B. W. Smith, and Woodbine.

The second annual dinner was held at the time of our Triennial banquet and report makes it even more successful than the first. Speech-making has given way to singing and "stunts."

George S. Hurst, 1903, acted as Treasurer this year. With the baseball game on Tuesday afternoon, followed by the "1492" dinner in the evening, and the Alumni dinner on Wednesday noon as prime objects, it is planned to hold annual reunions of the Class of 1903 in New Haven during Commencement week.

YALE ALUMNI UNIVERSITY FUND.

---

Sixteen years ago the Alumni Fund was started with the object of permanently endowing the University by means of small subscriptions from the entire body of alumni. This year $129,000 was raised in this way, about a third of which is given to the University for current running expenses. The residue is added to the principal which now amounts to over $200,000.

1903 has thus far done its fair share in this work. During the first year after graduation, which is by far the most difficult one as the average graduate of one year's standing knows little or nothing about the Fund, Howard A. Plummer had charge as class agent. He succeeded in obtaining seventy-seven contributors for a total of $386.50. Owing to pressure of business Plummer found it necessary to resign his position, and the present agent was appointed by the Board of Directors of the Fund. In 1905 there were eighty contributors and $405.50 was collected. In 1906, it being the year of the Triennial Reunion, a special effort was made for a larger gift, following the example set by other classes, and $626.55 was collected from seventy-six contributors. This amount, known as the Class of 1903 Fund, is kept separate from the ordinary yearly contribution, and is added to only in reunion years.

To sum up, one hundred and fourteen men have in different years subscribed to the Fund, and a total of $1,418.55 has been contributed. This compares very favorably with the contributions given by the other classes during an equal amount of time. It is hoped that the same generous spirit which has characterized the gifts from the minority of the Class may make itself felt among a greater number, so that 1903 may respond to the needs of Yale with a larger number of contributors rather than a larger amount in contributions.

Reeve Schley.

CLASS SECRETARY'S FINANCIAL REPORT.

RECEIPTS.

From 198 Subscriptions, . . . . .	$1,425.26
Class Day Committee, . . . . .	528.26
Senior Promenade Committee, . . . . .	176.75
Interest and increment, . . . . .	473.39
	$2,603.66

EXPENDITURES.

To Commission for collecting, . . . . .	$57.29
Printing and circulars, . . . . .	41.80
Postal cards, postage stamps and stamped envelopes, . . . . .	72.44
Letter File Cabinet, . . . . .	19.38
Card Index, . . . . .	6.50
Class Secretaries Association, . . . . .	14.00
50 Copies Yale Alumni Weekly, . . . . .	3.50
Binder for class statistics, . . . . .	2.50
1 Copy Senior Class Book, . . . . .	4.00
	$221.41

Investment: $1,500 3½% Convertible

Bonds N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., . $1,741.04

Cash in Savings Banks, . . . . . 641.21 $2,382.25 $2,603.66

Attest: ZIEGLER SARGENT,
Class Secretary.

Audited June 22, 1906.
GEORGE S. HURST.

FINANCIAL REPORT 1903 TRIENNIAL COMMITTEE.

---

Debit.

Received from Subscriptions, . . . . .	$1,906.95
"    "    Z. Sargent for Boat Race Tickets, . . . . .	52.50
	$1,959.45

Credit.

To James F. Grady for Costumes, Banquet, etc., . . . . .	$1,430.50
H. C. Knapp for Printing and Mailing Circulars, . . . . .	43.25
Z. Sargent for Boat Race Tickets, . . . . .	65.00
Tickets for Ball Game, . . . . .	165.00
H. C. Nicholls for Band, . . . . .	125.00
Young Men's Republican Club for Hall for Dinner, . . . . .	100.00
Sloan Typewriting Bureau for Addressing first Notices, . . . . .	3.50
	$1,932.25
Cash on hand . . . . .		$17.20

C. L. DUVAL,
J. M. DREISBACH,
BROWER HEWITT,
J. R. ROBINSON,
A. K. OLIVER,
Chairman.

CLASS BIBLIOGRAPHY.

---

ALDRICH.

1903. Thomas Deloney: his Thomas of Reading and Three Ballads on the Spanish Armada. Edited with Notes and Introduction by Charles Roberts Aldrich and Lucian Swift Kirtland. N. Y.: J. F. Taylor & Co.

ALSOP.

1905. The Holy City of the Hindus. Illustrated with photographs by the author. Outing, April 1905.
1905. The Taj Mahal. Illustrated with photographs by the author. The Metropolitan Magazine, October 1905.

BLACK.

1905. The Forest Service. The Outlook, September 1905.

CAMERON.

1904. Article in collaboration with W. M. Steele in Yale Psychological Studies. Vol. I. New Series.

CORNING.

1905. Retention Cyst and Diverticulum of the Vermiform Appendix. Albany Medical Annals, December 1905.

HAMLIN.

1905. The Power of the Federal Congress to Regulate Corporations. Daniels Prize Essay, University of Buffalo Law School. Published in the Brief, vol. v., no. 425.

KIRTLAND.

1903. Thomas Deloney: his Thomas of Reading and Three Ballads on the Spanish Armada. Edited with Notes and Introduction by Charles Roberts Aldrich and Lucian Swift Kirtland. N. Y.: J. F. Taylor & Co.

LEWIS.

1904. Wage-Earners' Opinions of the Church. The Outlook, February 6, 1904.
1905. Mary Origgie's Part in the Success. The Sunday School Times, June 25, 1905.

MOFFAT.

1905. The American College. Poem. The Reader Magazine, August 1905.
1906. St. Cecilia. Poem. The Reader Magazine, January 1906.

C. A. MOORE, JR.

1904. The Political Horoscope. By Lindon W. Bates, Jr., and Chas. A. Moore, Jr.

RANKIN.

1905. Government Railroad Policy in Canada. An unsigned editorial in the Commercial and Financial Review, July 29, 1905.
1906. The Railroad Situation Present and Future. New York Times Annual Financial Review, January 7, 1906.

STEELE.

1904. Article in collaboration with E. H. Cameron in Yale Psychological Studies. Vol. I. New Series.

J. B. THOMAS, JR.

1903. An illustrated article on Russian Wolfhounds, Rider & Driver & Outdoor Sport, December 12, 1903.
1903. The Ideal Barzoi—Russian Wolfhound. The Illustrated Sporting News, December 26, 1903.
1904. Untraveled Russia. Illustrated with photographs by the author. Outing, April 1904.

NECROLOGY.

---

March 29, 1900.	Maurice Fitch Hawks.
July 21, 1900.	Charles Tracy Brown.
January 17, 1901.	Henry Ide Root.
February 23, 1901.	Thomas Edward Wilde.
September 27, 1901.	Edward Warren Dorman.
June 3, 1903.	Thomas Henry Curran.
November 15, 1903.	Irving McDonald.
July 12, 1905.	Walter Sullivan.
August 28, 1905.	David Uzal Cory.

STATISTICS.

---

(Closed with the Triennial Reunion, June 1906. The names of men who did not graduate with the Class are printed in italics.)

B.A. 1903's:	Living, 306
	Dead, 4	310
Other members:	Living, 68
	Dead, 5	73
		383
Total,

DEGREES.

B.A.

Yale University.

1903. Aldrich, Alsop, Anderson, C. T. Andrews, T. Andrews, Archbald, G. S. Arnold, Arvine, Atwater, Atwill, C. C. Auchincloss, C. R. Auchincloss, Bacon, Baker, Baldwin, W. L. Barber, Jr., Beardsley, Becker, Bendell, Bennethum, Benton, Bergen, Berman, Betts, Bill, Bishop, Black, Blaisdell, Blount, Bogue, Bond, Bowers, Brady, Bragaw, Brereton, Bristol, Bumstead, Bushong, Calmer, Cameron, Campbell, Carter, Chadwick, E. R. Clark, H. T. Clark, H. H. Clark, K. D. Clark, R. K. Clark, S. C. Clark, Clement, Cochran, Coffey, Coleman, A. M. Collens, W. G. Collins, Conant, Condict, Corning, *Cory, Cowling, Cramer, Cronan, Crowe, *Curran, Curtis, Cushman, Davidson, C. O. Day, Jr., R. D. Day, Denno, Digney, Dodge, Donohoe, Douglass, Draper, Dreisbach, Drury, Dukeshire, Dunham, DuPuy, DuVal, Eliason, Engelhardt, Evans, Everts, Ewell, Failing, Fairbank, Fairbanks, Farrel, Ferguson, Ferry, Fitch, Fitzgerald, Fluhrer, Foster, Fox, Freeman, Frew, Frisbie, Fulton, Furst, Gaines, Gans, F. C. Gilbert, G. B. Gilbert, Gillespie, Gleason, Goodhue, Goodwin, Goss, Granniss, Green, Greene, Griffin, Haas, Hackett, Hamlin, Handel, Har-mount, Hart, Hartjen, Hartridge, Hazard, Hedges, Henry, Hess, Hewitt, Hileman, C. Hitchcock, Jr., Hofstead, Holbrook, Holt, Hooker, Hooper, Howard, Hull, Hunt, Hurst, Hyatt, Irvine, H. James, D. K. Johnston, W. P. Johnston, N. R. Jones, Keep, Kelly, Kennedy, Kent, Kilburn, Kingman, Kinney, Kirtland, Lamb, Lane, Langley, Latimer, Leach, Leonard, Lewis, L'Hommedieu, Lindenberg, Littlefield, Lockwood, Long, Lyon, Lyons, McClintock, McCormick, *McDonald, McDonough, McIntosh, McKee,

McKesson, McKnight, MacLane, MacLean, Manierre, Mann, J. Marshall, Melcer, Metzger, Mills, Minor, Moffat, Moodie, C. A. Moore, Jr., F. W. Moore, Morgan, Motter, Moulton, Mullen, Nesmith, Newhall, Nichols, Nixon, Ogden, Oliver, O'Neill, Orthwein, Ostby, Parsons, Patterson, Payne, Peckham, Pierce, Plummer, Pomeroy, Porter, Potter, Pratt, J. O. Putnam, J. F. Putnam, Rankin, Rea, Reilly, Reynolds, Rhoads, Rhodes, Richards, Richardson, Rightmire, Roberts, Robinson, Rogers, Roraback, Rosenthal, Rowell, Sanford, Sargent, Sawyer, Sayre, Schley, Searles, Sheets, Skrable, B. M. Smith, G. A. Smith, R. S. Smith, W. B. W. Smith, Somers, Stauffer, Steele, Stern, Stevens, Stevenson, Stillman, Stoll, Strong, Stuart, Sturgis, J. B. Sullivan, *W. Sullivan, Sutphin, Sweet, Sykes, H. C. Taylor, W. H. Taylor, Terriberry, Terrill, Thacher, J. B. Thomas, Jr., D. Thompson, E. V. Thompson, G. J. Thomson, Thorstenberg, Tillson, Townsend, Trenholm, Tulin, Tyler, Updegraff, Utley, VanderPoel, Van Deventer, Van Dyke, Van Tassel, Vestling, Waddell, Wait, Wakefield, Waldron, R. W. Walker, W. B. Walker, H. M. Wallace, W. F. Wallace, A. A. Ward, F. Ward, S. D. Ward, Waring, A. W. Warner, I. H. Warner, Washington, B. Webster, E. F. Webster, Wenner, Westcott, Whitcomb, H. S. White, J. R. White, W. O. White, Whittlesey, Wickwire, Wilhelmi, Williams, Willis, Wing, Woodbine, Woodman, Woodward.—310.

1904. Barker, Broeksmit, Chapin, Ney, Woodruff.—5.

Acadia University.

1898. Dukeshire, Richardson.

1900. Cameron.

1901. Bishop.

1902. Patterson, Steele.

Baylor University, Waco, Texas.

1902. Payne.

Bethany College, Kansas.

1899. Anderson.

1900. Vestling.

1902. Thorstenberg.

Bethany College, West Virginia.

1902. J. Marshall.

Brown University.

1903. J. H. Jones, Jr.

Coe College.

1901. Broeksmit.

Earlham College.

1902. Rea.

- Harvard University.*
1904. Kimball, T. G. Thomas.
- Lebanon Valley College, Pa.*
1902. Cowling.
- Princeton University.*
1903. E. B. Mason.
- Taylor University.*
1900. Hofstead.
- University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.*
1903. Houghteling.
- Washburn College.*
1902. Henry, Sweet.
- Wesleyan University.*
1902. Baldwin.
- Western College.*
1901. A. A. Ward.
1902. Cramer, Skrable.
- Ph.B.
- Yale University.*
1903. Spencrr.
1904. Douglass.
- S.B.
- Mass. Institute of Technology.*
1905. R. K. Clark, Long.
- LL.B.
- Yale University.*
1903. Bloomer.
1905. Betts, Donohoe. Leach, Roraback.
1906. G. S. Arnold, Campbell, Howard.
- Cleveland Law School.*
1906. Searles.
- Columbia University.*
1906. Bushong, Gans, Schley, Stern.
- Harvard University.*
1906. C. C. Auchincloss, Black, H. T. Clark, Coleman, Ewell, Fairbanks, Ferguson, Fox, Hooker, Hull, N. R. Jones, Kent, Kingman, Littlefield, McClintock, Moulton, Peckham, Tulin, Van Dyke, Washington.

New York Law School.

1905. Brady, Cushman, Digney, Fitch, Furst, Hartjen, Hedges, Kilburn, Lane, Leonard, Waldron, W. B. Walker.
1906. Mackenzie, Strong.

New York University.

1906. Reilly.

St. Louis Law School.

1905. Orthwein.

University of Alabama.

1904. Blount.

University of Buffalo.

1905. Hamlin, Handel.

University of Cincinnati.

1906. Kinney.

University of Louisville.

1906. B. Webster.

University of Michigan.

1906. L'Hommedieu.

University of Pennsylvania.

1906. Eliason.

University of Virginia.

1903. Russell.

University of West Virginia.

1904. J. Marshall.

Washington University, St. Louis.

1905. Potter.

Western University, Pa.

1906. Frew.

B.D.

Yale University.

1906. Cowling, R. S. Smith.

Union Theological Seminary, N. Y.

1906. D. B. MacLane.

Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass.

1906. Fitzgerald.

M.A.

Yale University.

1904. Anderson, Bishop, Brereton, Cameron, Cowling, Hofstead, Moffat, Patterson, Rankin, Richardson, Steele, Thorstenberg, Van Deventer.

1905. Rea, R. S. Smith, Vestling.
 1906. Kennedy, Pomeroy, Sawyer, Terrill.
                                   Columbia University.
1906. Stern.
                                   Harvard University.
1904. Drury.
                                   Princeton University.
1906. Updegraff.
                                   University of Maine.
1904. Hofstead.
                                   M.E.
                                   Columbia University.
1905. S. N. Arnold.
                                   Cornell University.
1906. R. D. Day.
                                   M.F.
                                   Yale University.
1905. McDonough.
                                   M.D.
                                   Yale University.
1906. Irvine, J. B. Sullivan.
                                   Columbia University.
1906. Denno.
                                   McGill University.
1906. Hackett.
                                   Ph.D.
                                   Yale University.
1906. Bishop, Cameron, Hileman, Richardson, Thorstenberg.
                                   D.D.S.
                                   College of Dental and Oral Surgery, N. Y.
1903. McCulloch.

SUMMARY.

B.A. Yale 1903, . . . . .	310	M.E., . . . . .	2
Other B.A.'s, . . . . .	31	M.F., . . . . .	1
	— 341	M.D., . . . . .	4
Ph.B. and S.B., . . . . .	4	Ph.D., . . . . .	5
LL.B., . . . . .	60	D.D.S., . . . . .	1
B.D., . . . . .	4		—
M.A., . . . . .	24	Total, . . . . .	446

OCCUPATIONS.

- LAW—G. S. Arnold, Arvine, C. C. Auchincloss, Baker, Betts, Black, Bloomer, Blount, Bogue, Brady, Bragaw, Bushong, Campbell, Carter, H. T. Clark, S. C. Clark, Coleman, Cushman, Digney, Donohoe, Eliason, Evans, Ewell, Fairbanks, Ferguson, Ferry, Fitch, Fluhrer, Foster, Fox, Frew, Furst, Gans, Hamlin, Handel, Hartjen, Hartridge, Hedges, Hess, Hill, Hogan, Hooker, Howard, Hull, W. P. Johnston, N. R. Jones, Kent, Kilburn, Kimball, Kingman, Kinney, Lane, Leach, Leonard, Lewis, L'Hommedieu, Littlefield, Lockwood, McClintock, Mackenzie, J. Marshall, Melcer, Moffat, Moulton, Nichols, Orlady, Orthwein, Peckham, Perkins, Pitcher, Reilly, S. W. Rhoads, Richards, Rogers, Roraback, Rowell, Russell, Sawyer, Schley, Skrable, Stauffer, Stern, Strong, D. Thompson, G. J. Thomson, Tulin, Van Dyke, Wakefield, Waldron, W. B. Walker, Washington, B. Webster, Wenner, Wescott, Winch, Wing.
- MEDICINE—W. L. Barber, Jr., Bendell, E. R. Clark, Coffey, Corning, C. O. Day, Jr., Denno, G. B. Gilbert, Hackett, Irvine, H. James, Lamb, Lyons, Patterson, G. A. Smith, Stillman, J. B. Sullivan, Terriberry, Utley, Waring.
- TEACHING—Bishop, Brereton, Dodge, Dukeshire, Engelhardt, Goodhue, Harmount, Keep, Kelly, McIntosh, Parsons, Rea, Richardson, Somers, Steele, Vestling, A. A. Ward, F. Ward, Woodward.
- MINISTRY—T. Andrews, Atwill, Baldwin, Fitzgerald, Goddard, Hofstead, D. K. Johnston, D. B. MacLane, F. W. Moore, Roberts, R. S. Smith, Updegraff.
- STUDENTS—Anderson, Bill. Cameron, Cowling, Drury, Freeman, Hileman, Kennedy, Terrill, Thorstenberg, Van Deventer, Woodbine.
- ARMY OFFICERS—True, J. F. Walker.
- MECHANICAL ENGINEERS—S. N. Arnold, R. D. Day.
- MINING ENGINEERS—Archbald, Earnshaw.
- ORGANIST—Tillson.
- POLITICIAN—McCormick.
- DENTIST—McCulloch.
- ARTIST—Cobb.
- ARCHITECTURE—Mann.
- CHEMIST—Long.
- THEATRICAL MANAGER—F. A. Johnston.
- RANCHING AND IRRIGATION—Aldrich, Stoll.
- BREEDING AND STOCK RAISING—J. B. Thomas, Jr.
- FARMING—Sanford, L. W. Smith.
- RAILROADING—Hargis, Hewitt, Holt, Hooper, M. Mason, Potter, Searles, Sweet, Trenholm, Van Tassel, S. D. Ward, Whitcomb, Wood.

- INSURANCE—Burdett, Dunham, Everts, Farnum, Frisbie, Gaines, O'Neill, Sheets, Stuart, I. H. Warner.
- DRAUGHTSMEN—Bumstead, Nesmith, A. W. Warner.
- LUMBER—Hawley, McDonough, W. O. White, Wilhelmi.
- REAL ESTATE—Cronan, Goodwin, Granniss, Latimer, McKnight, E. B. Mason, Morgan, Ogden, Roome.
- TELEPHONE—H. G. Greene, J. O. Putnam, Thacher.
- BANKING AND BROKING—Alsop, Atwater, C. R. Auchincloss, Berman, Broeksmit, H. H. Clark, Clement, Craighead, DuVal, Fairbank, C. D. Green, Gruner, Henry, C. Hitchcock, Jr., Houghteling, Langley, Lyon, Plummer, Pomeroy, Reynolds, Rosenthal, Sayre, Stevens, W. H. Taylor, H. F. Thomas, Townsend, VanderPoel, Waddell, Weston.
- PUBLISHING—Gillespie, Hart, Williams.
- NEWSPAPERS AND MAGAZINES—Chapin, W. G. Collins, Davidson, Hurst, J. H. Jones, Jr., Kirtland, Oliver, Payne, Rankin, W. F. Wallace.
- MANUFACTURING—ALUMINUM: Hunt; BISCUITS: Bergen, H. C. Taylor; BRASS: Goss, H. M. Wallace, H. S. White; BRICKS: K. D. Clark, Robinson; CANDY: Bowers; CAR: Manierre; CAR WHEELS: Griffin; CARPETS: Cochran; CARRIAGES: Ellsworth, J. F. Putnam; COLLARS: Fowler; COTTON: B. M. Smith; ELECTRIC: Condict, H. M. Hitchcock, Stevenson; ELEVATORS: Beardsley; FLOUR: Brinkman, Holbrook; FURNITURE: LeVally; HARDWARE: Mullen, Sargent; HATS: Durant; JEWELRY: Ney, Ostby, Pierce; LEATHER SUPPLIES: P. E. Barbour; MACHINES: Bristol, Farel, Fulton, McAlarney, Woodruff; CHEMICALS: Rightmire, Whittlesey; OIL CLOTH: Woodman; PAPER: C. T. Andrews, Bond, Spencer; PIANOS: Bacon, Curtis, Lindenberg; PULP PLASTER: Sykes; RUBBER: DuPuy, Mulford, Work; SODA: Hazard; STEEL: Draper, Willis; STOVES: R. K. Clark; WHEELS: W. B. W. Smith; WIRE: Wickwire.
- MERCANTILE—ARMY UNIFORMS: Haas; CARPETS: Wait; CHINA: W. H. James; CLOTHIER: M. L. Marshall; COAL: J. R. White; COMMISSION MERCHANT: Coard; DECORATOR: Hyatt; DRY GOODS: Bennethum, Calmer, Motter, Nixon, Whittemore; DRUGS: McKesson; GLASS JARS: Benton; GROCERIES: Gleason, Minor, E. V. Thompson; HARDWARE: Becker, Chadwick, Conant, Cramer, Failing, G. P. Warner, E. F. Webster; IMPORTERS: Fachiri, Newhall; LADIES' CLOTHIER: Pratt; MACHINERY: Knox, McKee, C. A. Moore, Jr., Tyler; MILL SUPPLIES: Dreisbach, Munson; PAPER MAKERS' SUPPLIES: Sutphin; SIGNS: T. G. Thomas; SILK MERCHANT: Schroeder.
- MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS—ADVERTISING: Blaisdell, Crowe, R. W. Walker; COAL MINING: Metzger, Mills; CONTRACTORS: J. F. Rhodes, Truett; EXPRESS COMPANY: H. C. MacLean;

GOVERNMENT LAND COMMISSIONER: Wagar; HOTEL: Parr;
LAUNDRY: Partridge; MINING: Douglass; OIL PRODUCER:
Jennings; TRANSFER COMPANY: Porter; TREASURER'S OFFICE, METROPOLITAN MUSEUM: F. C. Gilbert; TRUSTEE: A. M.
Collens.

UNKNOWN AND NO OCCUPATION—Barker, T. M. H. Brown,
Hardy, Moodie, Parkhurst, Roach, Sturgis.

---

SUMMARY.

Law, . . . . .	96	Army Officers, . . . . .	2
Manufacturing, . . . . .	54	Mechanical Engineering, . . . . .	2
Mercantile, . . . . .	36	Mining Engineering, . . . . .	2
Banking and Broking, . . . . .	29	Farming, . . . . .	2
Medicine, . . . . .	20	Ranching and Irrigation, . . . . .	2
Teaching, . . . . .	19	Organist, . . . . .	1
Miscellaneous Business, . . . . .	16	Politician, . . . . .	1
Railroading, . . . . .	13	Dentist, . . . . .	1
Ministry, . . . . .	12	Artist, . . . . .	1
Students, . . . . .	12	Architecture, . . . . .	1
Insurance, . . . . .	10	Chemist, . . . . .	1
Newspapers and Magazines, . . . . .	10	Theatrical Manager, . . . . .	1
Real Estate, . . . . .	9	Breeding and Stock Raising, . . . . .	1
Lumber, . . . . .	5	Unknown and no occupation, . . . . .	7
Draughtsmen, . . . . .	3
Telephone, . . . . .	3	Total, . . . . .	374
Publishing, . . . . .	3

---

MARRIAGES.

Date	Name	Wife's Maiden Name	No. of Children
			Boys	Girls
Nov. 18, 1891	Terrill	Ada Thurman	0	0
?	Hofstead	*Mabel Marshall Higgins	0	1
Sept. 18, 1900	H. F. Thomas	Amanda Wallace Caskie	0	0
Oct. 14, 1901	P. E. Barbour	Mary Augusta Graham	0	0
Oct. 18, 1901	Whittemore	Elsie Maud Franklin	0	1
Nov. 4, 1901	Roome	Florence Louise Weed	2	0
Jan. 7, 1903	Gruner	Katharine Hayes Drake	0	0
June 27, 1903	Foster	Elizabeth Plummer Bowen	0	1
June 30, 1903	Bill	Florence Dorothy Reid	1	0
June 30, 1903	Kennedy	Elizabeth Florence Lord	1	0
Sept. 30, 1903	W. H. James	Aileen Stevens	0	1
Oct. 1, 1903	Wickwire	Sophie Bremner Hedge	0	0

Statistics.

339

Date	Name	Wife's Maiden Name	No. of Children
			Boys	Girls
Apr. 4, 1904	Hamlin	Emily Gray	1	1
Apr. 6, 1904	Sykes	Bernice Dean Heath	0	0
Apr. 14, 1904	G. P. Warner	Emma Pearl Letchworth	0	0
June 24, 1904	Dreisbach	Laura Claire Dartt	0	0
June 29, 1904	Chapin	Edith DeMaris Adams	0	0
June 29, 1904	Coard	Florence Edna Smith	0	0
Aug. 9, 1904	Payne	Mittie Royall Baker	0	0
Aug. 30, 1904	Steele	Charlotte Beatrice Fuller	0	1
Nov. 16, 1904	Gaines	Lucy Thorndyke Froment	1	0
Nov. 17, 1904	Whittlesey	Emily Henderson Craven	0	0
Nov. 24, 1904	Bacon	Grace Esther Felber	0	0
Dec. 1, 1904	Ellsworth	Juliet Inness	1	0
Feb. 18, 1905	Tyler	Mary Benham Woolverton	0	1
Apr. 25, 1905	Russell	Eleanor Letitia Brice	0	1
May 1, 1905	Lindenberg	Helen Tallmadge	0	1
May 25, 1905	C. R. Auchincloss	Helen Pickering Russell	0	0
May 26, 1905	Woodruff	Eugenie Gray Watson	0	1
June 1, 1905	Crowe	Katharine M'Clellan Higgins	0	0
June 14, 1905	Engelhardt	Bessie Edna Gardner	0	1
July 24, 1905	Calmer	Florence Briggs Terhune	0	0
Sept. 16, 1905	Townsend	Fanny Proddow Simpson	0	0
Sept. 16, 1905	VanderPoel	Mildred Moore Barclay	0	0
Sept. 27, 1905	Goddard	Gertrude Brashear Craik	0	0
Oct. 11, 1905	Whitcomb	Annis Louise Palmetier	0	0
Oct. 18, 1905	LeVally	Florence Dennis Pierce	0	0
Oct. 28, 1905	L. W. Smith	Alice Shearer	0	0
Dec. 13, 1905	J. H. Jones, Jr.	Helen Regina Courtney	0	0
Dec. 27, 1905	Orthwein	Nina Kent Baldwin	0	0
Jan. 10, 1906	Fulton	Rose Hinckley Hayden	0	0
Jan. 25, 1906	J. Marshall	Rebecca Cooper Paull	0	0
Feb. 14, 1906	Cochran	Mabel Heyward Taylor	0	0
Feb. 14, 1906	Rhodes	Louise Pierce Bond	0	0
May 17, 1906	Corning	Edith Harlan Child	0	0
June 2, 1906	F. A. Johnston	Daisy Bell Robinson	0	0
June 19, 1906	C. C. Auchincloss	Rosamond Saltonstall	0	0
June 21, 1906	Keep	Rose Anne Hardy Day	0	0
June 1906	Wagar	Deedie Sallee	0	0

49 Marriages; 7 Boys; 11 Girls.

LOCALITY INDEX

- |  |   |   |
|--|---|---|
| Alabama.Birmingham.Holt.   | Hartford.Bloomer.Burdett.Campbell.Dunham.Frisbie.Goodwin.Hackett.Hogan.Howard.Ney.O'Neill.Pratt.Tulin.   | Norwalk.Goodhue.Pine Orchard.Harmount.Rockville.Partridge.Sykes.Simsbury.Dodge.Thomas, J. B., Jr.Stamford.Gillespie.Waterbury.Bristol.Carter.Fulton.Goss.White, H. S.Watertown.McIntosh. |
| Arkansas.Warren.McDonough.   | Hebron.Fitzgerald.Manchester.Ferguson.Meriden.Hyatt.New Haven.Anderson.Arnold, G. S.Arvine.Bishop.Cameron.Coffey.Foster.Hooker.Hurst.Mullen.Richardson.Sargent.Vestling.Ward, F.Webster, E. F.Winch.Woodbine. | Delaware.Wilmington.Johnston, W. P.   |
| California.Corona.Wing.Los Angeles.Latimer.Oakland.Bumstead.Pasadena.Rhodes, J. F.San Francisco.Newhall.                             |   | Florida.Jacksonville.Hartridge.Pensacola.Blount.   |
| Colorado.Denver.Collins, W. G.Perkins.   |   | Illinois.Cairo.White, W. O.Chicago.Clark, R. K.Davidson.Gans.Houghteling.  |
| Connecticut.Ansonia.Farrel.Wallace, H. M.Bethel.Durant.Bridgeport.Everts.Smith, W. B. W.Bridgewater.Sanford.Canaan.Roraback. |   |   |

LeVally.
McCormick.
McKee.
Manierre.
Nixon.
Porter.
Wallace, W. F.
Willis.

Joliet.

Calmer.
Normal.
Woodward.
Springfield.
Coleman.
Jones, N. R.

Indiana.

Evansville.
Wood.
Princeton.
Hewitt.
Winchester.
Rea.

Iowa.

Cedar Rapids.
Broeksmit.
Elberon.
Skrable.
Osceola.
Becker.
Toledo.
Cramer.

Kansas.

Baldwin.
Cowling.
Topeka.
Sweet.

Kentucky.

Covington.
Minor.
Louisville.
Hargis.
Thompson, E. V.
Webster, B.
Owensboro.
Goddard.

Louisiana.

Lake Charles.
Henry.
New Orleans.
Clark, H. H.
Lyons.

Maine.

Bangor.
Hardy.
Portland.
Walker, J. F.
Sanford.
Hofstead.
Winthrop.
Woodman.

Maryland.

Baltimore.
Barber, W. L., Jr.
Clark, E. R.
Gilbert, G. B.
Smith, G. A.

Massachusetts.

Andover.
Keep.
Boston.
Alsop.
Bacon.
Chapin.
Day, C. O., Jr.
Fairbank.
Kimball.
Patterson.
Weston.
Cambridge.
Atwill.
Drury.
Ferry.
Kent.
Moffat.
Nichols.
Sawyer.
Chestnut Hill.
Kennedy.
Holyoke.
Bond.

Lynn.

Donohoe.
Stevenson.
Pittsfield.
Hull.
Quincy.
Barbour, P. E.
Salem.
Moulton.
Sharon.
Long.
Springfield.
Lewis.
McKnight.
Morgan.
West Tisbury.
Moodie.
Worcester.
Barker.

Michigan.

Detroit.
L'Hommedieu.

Minnesota.

Faribault.
Bill.
Minneapolis.
Kirtland.

Missouri.

Kansas City.
Brinkman.
James, W. H.
Mulford.
Putnam, J. O.
Whittemore.
St. Joseph.
Motter.
St. Louis.
Chadwick.
Conant.
Kelly.
Orthwein.
Potter.
Reynolds.
Rowell.

Montana.	Parkhurst.	Furst.
Butte	Updegraff.	Gaines.
Douglass.	Warner, G. P.	Gilbert, F. C.
	Cooperstown.	Gleason.
Nebraska.	Clark, S. C.	Green, C. D.
Omaha.	Cortland.	Gruner.
Van Tassel	Wickwire.	Haas.
	Flushing, L. I.	Hart.
New Jersey.	Lane.	Hartjen.
Englewood.	Glenmont, Albany	Hedges.
Roberts.	Co.	Hess.
Haddonfield.	Parr.	Hill.
Wescott.	Glens Falls.	Hitchcock, C., Jr.
Montclair.	Fowler.	James, H.
Tilson.	Gloversville.	Johnston, F. A.
Waldron.	McCulloch.	Kilburn.
Morris Plains.	Middletown.	Knox.
Granniss.	Lyon.	Lamb.
Plainfield.	New York City.	Leach.
Roome.	Andrews, T.	Leonard.
Tyler.	Archbald.	Littlefield.
Williams.	Atwater.	Lockwood.
	Auchincloss, C. C.	Mackenzie.
New Mexico.	Auchincloss, C. R.	McKesson.
Elmendorf.	Baldwin.	MacLane.
Stoll.	Beardsley.	MacLean.
	Benton.	Mason, E. B.
New York.	Bergen.	Melcer.
Albany.	Berman.	Moore, C. A., Jr.
Bendell.	Betts.	Ogden.
Corning.	Blaisdell.	Ostby.
Albion.	Bogue.	Parsons.
Smith, L. W.	Bowers.	Peckham.
Auburn.	Brady.	Plummer.
Engelhardt.	Bragaw.	Rankin.
Marshall, M. L.	Clement.	Reilly.
Moore, F. W.	Cochran.	Richards.
Wait.	Craighead.	Robinson.
Brooklyn.	Crowe.	Rosenthal.
Cushman.	Denno.	Sayre.
Greene, H. G.	Dukeshire.	Schley.
Langley.	DuVal.	Schroeder.
Pomeroy.	Ellsworth.	Stern.
Truett.	Ewell.	Stevens.
Buffalo.	Farnum.	Stillman.
Griffin.	Fitch.	Strong.
Hamlin.	Fluhrer.	Sturgis.
Handel.	Fox.	Taylor, H. C.

Terriberry.
 Thomas, H. F.
 Thomas, T. G.
 Thomson, G. J.
 Townsend.
 Trenholm.
 Utley.
 Waddell.
 Walker, W. B.
 Ward, S. D.
 Waring.
     Penn. Yan.
 Andrews, C. T.
     Syracuse.
 Hazard.
 Thacher.
 Woodruff.
     Utica.
 Munson.
     Watertown.
 Spencer.
     White Plains.
 Digney.
Woodmere, L. I.
 VanderPoel.
     Yonkers.
 Cronan.
 Stuart.
 Walker, R. W.
 Whittlesey.

North Dakota.
     Williston.
 Hooper.

Ohio.
     Akron.
 Work.
     Barberton.
 Arnold, S. N.
     Cincinnati.
 Baker.
 Black.
 Kinney.
 Sutphin.
     Cleveland.
 Clark, H. T.
 Hitchcock, H. M.

Searles.
 Van Deventer.
     Columbus.
 Curtis.
 Lindenberg.
 Mills.
 Putnam, J. F.
     Portsmouth.
 Clark, K. D.
     Youngstown.
 Draper.

Oklahoma.
     Norman.
 Thorstenberg.

Oregon.
     Portland.
 Failing.
 Holbrook.

Pennsylvania.
Clifton Heights,
     Delaware Co.
 Brown, T. M. H.
     Easton.
 Dreisbach.
     Harrisburg.
 Bennethum.
     Lebanon.
 McAlarney.
     McKeesport.
 Evans.
     Mercersburg.
 Brereton.
 Somers.
     Oakmont.
 Hunt.
     Philadelphia.
 Condict.
 Eliason.
 Hileman.
 Nesmith.
 Rightmire.
     Pittsburg.
 Collens, A. M.
 Day, R. D.
 DuPuy.

Frew.
 Jennings.
 McClintock.
 Oliver.
 Orlady.
 Wakefield.
     Reading.
 Bushong.
 Stauffer.
     St. Mary's.
 Warner, I. H.
     Scranton.
 Pitcher.
     Sewickley.
 Thompson, D.
 Warner, A. W.
South Bethlehem.
 Earnshaw.
     Wilkes-Barre.
 Rhoads, S. W.

Rhode Island.
     Providence.
 Irvine.
 Jones, J. H., Jr.
 Kingman.
 Pierce.
 Smith, B. M.
 Sullivan, J. B.
 White, J. R.
     Wakefield.
 Rogers.

South Carolina.
     Greenville.
 Steele.

South Dakota.
     Gregory.
 Wagar.

Tennessee.
     Wessyngton.
 Washington.

Texas.
     Crockett.
 Payne.

Dallas.
Terrill.
Elmina, Walker Co.
Wilhelmi.

Utah.
Linwood, Uintah
Co.

Aldrich.
Logan.
Johnston, D. K.

Vermont.
Clarendon.
Smith, R. S.
St. Johnsbury.
Fairbanks.

Washington.
Seattle.
Hawley.
Wenner.

West Virginia.

Fairmount.
Metzger.
Parkersburg.
Marshall, J.
Wheeling.
Russell.

Wisconsin.
Fond du Lac.
Whitcomb.
Milwaukee.
Van Dyke.

Philippine Islands.

Manila.
Taylor, W. H.
True.

Ceylon.
Vaddukkoddai.
Ward, A. A.

China.

Shanghai.
Coard.

Colombia, So. Am.

Buena Ventura.
Mason, M.

England.

London.
Fachiri.

France.

Paris.
Cobb.
Mann.

Portugal.

Lisbon.
Sheets.

Spain.

Madrid.
Freeman.

SUMMARY.

Alabama .....	1	Oklahoma .....	1
Arkansas .....	1	Oregon .....	2
California .....	5	Pennsylvania .....	30
Colorado .....	2	Rhode Island .....	8
Connecticut .....	53	South Carolina .....	1
Delaware .....	1	South Dakota .....	1
Florida .....	2	Tennessee .....	1
Illinois .....	17	Texas .....	3
Indiana .....	3	Vermont .....	2
Iowa .....	4	Utah .....	2
Kansas .....	2	Washington .....	2
Kentucky .....	5	West Virginia .....	3
Louisiana .....	3	Wisconsin .....	2
Maine .....	4	Philippine Islands .....	2
Maryland .....	4	Ceylon .....	1
Massachusetts .....	29	China .....	1
Michigan .....	1	Colombia, S. A. ....	1
Minnesota .....	2	England .....	1
Missouri .....	13	France .....	2
Montana .....	1	Portugal .....	1
Nebraska .....	1	Spain .....	1
New Jersey .....	8		—
New Mexico .....	1		373
New York .....	125	Unknown (Roach) .....	1
North Dakota .....	1		—
Ohio .....	16	Total .....	374

ADDENDA.

---

D. K. Johnston writes from St. John's Rectory, Logan, Utah, September 5, 1906: "If anyone is curious enough to know anything of me, say to him that I am doing clerical work among the Mormons, and am with Rev. Paul Jones, Yale '02. Last summer I was in England."

* * * * *

Melcer writes, September 4, 1906: "Any information contained in my last communication to you [see page 197] may as well be omitted from record—recent changes!"

* * * * *

Parsons writes, September 4, 1906: "I wrote you three or four weeks ago stating that I expected to be in New York this winter with Ralph Melcer and asking you to insert in the Triennial Record [see page 217] that my address after October 15th would be care Frank Hagny Company, 1133 Broadway. As my plans are now entirely changed I hope that this will reach you before the publication goes to press so that you can change it back as it was before. My permanent address should appear as care Carnegie Technical Schools, Pittsburg, Pa."

* * * * *

Stevens writes, September 9, 1906: "Unfortunately I cannot give any glowing accounts of myself; have been plugging along on a modest salary, yet getting good experience. After graduating I went with the Trust Company of America, staying there until July 1906. On leaving I entered the banking house of Wm. A. Read & Co. in the bond department. At present am on the outside, travelling."

His father, Nathaniel Stevens (deceased), was the son of John H. Stevens and Elizabeth (Emerson) Stevens. Stevens' mother was the daughter of George Goodell.

* * * * *

Stoll writes, September 3, 1906: "This blank had quite a journey around the country before it reached me in this jumping off place. Since leaving college I have not been in any one place more than two months at a time. I have spent most of the time in the south buying timber lands. From that I jumped into the wild west and am now at Elmendorf, New Mexico, with the Socorro Company, a company which is developing lands along the Rio Grande, and incidentally making a cow-puncher out of myself." He adds, "Don't 'go west and grow up with the country.'"

His father, Charles Henry Stoll (Kentucky University Law School 1876), is a lawyer of Lexington, Ky., and is also President of the Socorro Company. He was born April 22, 1856, the son of George Stoll and Mary Jane (Schrugham) Stoll. Stoll's mother, whose maiden name was Nellie Weathers, died August 21, 1904. She was the daughter of Coswell Weathers and Mary Ellen (True) Weathers.

—

1

YALE 1903 SENIOR CLASS BOOK.

---

A few copies of the Yale 1903 Senior Class Book remain unsold. They may be had at the regular price, five dollars ($5.00) per copy, expressage twenty-five cents extra. Apply to The Tuttle, Morehouse & Taylor Co., 123 Temple St., New Haven, Conn., or to Ziegler Sargent, Class Secretary, 247 Church St., New Haven, Conn.

---

SPECIAL NOTICE.

---

You will confer a great favor if you will at once notify the class secretary, Ziegler Sargent, 247 Church St., New Haven, Conn., of any and all errors, whether of omission or commission, in this book. It is only with the assistance of every member of the class that these records can approach accuracy and completeness.

1875

YALE 1903 CLASS ROLL AND ADDRESS LIST.

September 1906.

- Charles R. Aldrich, 618 Home Insurance Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
F. J. O. Alsop, 2 Brimmer St., or 71 Kilby St., Boston, Mass.
Luther Anderson, 254 Crown St., New Haven, Conn.
Charles T. Andrews, Penn Yan, N. Y.
Theodore Andrews, care General Theological Seminary, 175 9th Ave.,
New York City.
Hugh Archbald, 236 Monroe Ave., Scranton, Pa.
G. S. Arnold, 24 Dwight St., New Haven, Conn.
Stanfield N. Arnold, care Yale Club, 30 West 44th St., New York City.
William B. Arvine, 1169 Chapel St., New Haven, Conn.
Morton Atwater, care Shearson, Hammill & Co., 71 Broadway, New York City.
Douglass H. Atwill, 8 Lawrence Hall, Cambridge, Mass.
Charles C. Auchincloss, 24 East 48th St., New York City.
C. Russell Auchincloss, 20 Broad St., New York City.
Ernest F. Bacon, care Mason & Hamlin Co., Cambridgeport, Mass.
Thorne Baker, Reading Road & Oak St., Cincinnati, O.
Burton J. Baldwin, 700 Park Ave., New York City.
Walter L. Barber, Jr., 1705 Fairmount Ave., Baltimore, Md.
Perley E. Barbour, 8 Bigelow St., Quincy, Mass., or care Brockton, Rand Co., Brockton, Mass.
Will T. Barker, 42 Abbott St., Worcester, Mass.
Glover Beardsley, care Yale Club, 30 West 44th St., New York City.
Arthur C. Becker, Osceola, Ia.
J. L. Bendell, 178 State St., Albany, N. Y.
Claude G. Bennethum, 2009 North 3d St., Harrisburg, Pa.
Josiah H. Benton, care The Royale Glass Jar & Bottle Co., 11 Broadway,
New York City.
M. H. Bergen, 328 West 22d St., or care National Biscuit Co., 409
West 15th St., New York City.
Pemberton Berman, care Bowling Green Trust Co., 26 Broadway, New York City.
James M. Betts, care Marsh, Winslow & Wever, 111 Broadway, New York City.
Alfred H. Bill, Faribault, Minn.
Dr. A. L. Bishop, Yale Station, New Haven, Conn.
Robert L. Black, 1603 Union Trust Bldg., Cincinnati, O.
Arthur G. Blaisdell, Goffstown, N. H.
Howard J. Bloomer, 904 Main St., Hartford, Conn.

- William A. Blount, Jr., Pensacola, Fla.
S. R. Bogue, 440 West End Ave., or care Russell & Hartridge, 149
Broadway, New York City.
Robert E. Bond, care Essex Paper Co., Holyoke, Mass.
E. C. Bowers, care Huyler's, 508 Fifth Ave., New York City.
Charles A. Brady, 132 Nassau St., New York City, or P. O. Box 84, Norwich Town, Conn.
Allen C. Bragaw, 20 East 94th St., New York City.
Samuel M. Brereton, Box 25, Mercersburg, Pa.
Raymond P. Brinkman, 323 West Armour Boul., Kansas City, Mo.
Ralph Bristol, care Waterbury Farrel Foundry & Machine Co., Waterbury, Conn.
John S. Broeksmit, Cedar Rapids, Ia.
*Charles Tracy Brown, died July 21, 1900.
Thomas M. H. Brown, Burn Brae, Clifton Heights, Delaware Co., Pa.
Ralph W. Bumstead, 109 13th St., Oakland, Cal.
Ralph H. Burdett, care Factory Insurance Asso., Hartford, Conn.
Robert Grey Bushong, 232 North 5th St., Reading, Pa.
E. M. Calmer, Joliet, Ill.
Dr. E. H. Cameron, Yale Station, New Haven, Conn.
James N. H. Campbell, 2 Congress St., Hartford, Conn.
L. Russell Carter, 11 East Main St., Waterbury, Conn.
George B. Chadwick, care Simmons Hardware Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Carl M. Chapin, 293 Washington St., Boston, Mass., or 101 Elm St., Somerville, Mass.
Eliot R. Clark, care Johns Hopkins Medical School, Baltimore, Md.
Harold T. Clark, care Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, Cleveland, O.
Harry H. Clark, care Round Table Club, Jackson Ave., New Orleans, La.
Kilburn D. Clark, care Portsmouth Harbison-Walker Co., Portsmouth, O.
Robert Keep Clark, 460 Dearborn Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Stephen C. Clark, Cooperstown, N. Y.
Allen T. Clement, 143 West 71st St., New York City.
George F. Coard, care U. S. P. O., Shanghai, China.
Nathaniel H. Cobb, 122 Rue d'Assas, Paris, France.
Gifford A. Cochran, 12 East 55th St., New York City.
James R. Coffey, 17 Autumn St., New Haven, Conn.
Louis G. Coleman, care Brown, Wheeler, Brown & Hay, 309 South 6th
St., Springfield, Ill.
Arthur M. Collens, Bessemer Bldg., Pittsburg, Pa.
Walter G. Collins, 921 East 13th Ave., Denver, Col.
George K. Conant, 4479 Washington Ave., St. Louis, Mo.
Philip K. Condict, care Western Electric Co., 11th & York Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.
Erastus Corning, 355 State St., Albany, N. Y.
*David Uzal Cory, died August 28, 1905.
Prof. D. J. Cowling, Baker University, Baldwin, Kansas.
Alexander Craighead, care Cuyler, Morgan & Co., 44 Pine St., New York City.

- Hiram W. Cramer, Toledo, Ia.
James P. Cronan, care Yonkers & Nepperhan Realty Co., Nepperhan,
N. Y.
E. R. Crowe, care System, 1 Madison Ave., New York City.
*Thomas Henry Curran, died June 3, 1903.
Kenneth W. Curtis, care Columbus Piano Co., Columbus, O.
E. C. Cushman, 63 Linden St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
M. L. Davidson, care Madison Ave. Hotel, Madison Ave. & 92d St.,
New York City.
C. O. Day, Jr., 211 Technology Chambers, Boston, Mass.
Rodney D. Day, 814 Coal St., Wilksburg, Pa., or Catskill, N. Y.
Dr. Willard J. Denno, General Memorial Hospital, 106th St. & Central Park West, New York City.
R. Emmet Digney, White Plains, N. Y.
A. Douglas Dodge, Simsbury, Conn.
Edward A. Donohoe, 28 Johnston St., Lynn, Mass.
*Edward Warren Dorman, died September 27, 1901.
T. P. Draper, care Republic Iron & Steel Co., Youngstown, O.
Walter L. Douglass, 14 West Copper St., Butte, Mont.
John M. Dreisbach, 714 Cattell St., Easton, Pa.
Herbert L. Drury, Walter Hastings Hall, Cambridge, Mass.
Stanley C. Dukeshire, 241 West 77th St., or 23 West 70th St., New York City.
Donald A. Dunham, 830 Prospect Ave., Hartford, Conn.
H. Wilfred DuPuy, 646 Morewood Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.
George G. Durant, Jr., Bethel, Conn.
Clive L. DuVal, 709 Madison Ave., New York City.
Wilton A. Earnshaw, Lowville, N. Y.
John Eliason, 1222 Stephen Girard Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.
Bradford Ellsworth, care Brewster & Co., Broadway & 47th St., New York City.
Nickolaus L. Engelhardt, 71 Seymour St., Auburn, N. Y.
John K. Evans, S. Huey St., McKeesport, Pa.
George B. Everts, care Bridgeport Land & Title Co., or P. O. Box 675, Bridgeport, Conn.
Robert H. Ewell, care Merrill & Rogers, 31 Nassau St., New York City.
Antonio P. Fachiri, care Messrs. Ralli Bros., 25 Finsbury Circus, London, E. C., England.
Edward J. Failing, 243 11th St., Portland, Ore.
J. J. Mitchell Fairbank, care Hamlin, Thompson & Sheldon, 60 State
St., Boston, Mass.
Joseph Fairbanks, St. Johnsbury, Vt.
Peter E. Farnum, Jr., care Yale Club, 30 West 44th St., New York City.
Franklin Farrel, Jr., Ansonia, Conn.
William Ferguson, Box 251, Manchester, Conn.
Mansfield Ferry, Box 275, Santa Barbara, Cal.
Morton C. Fitch, 32 Nassau St., New York City.

- Rev. Edward H. Fitzgerald, Hebron, Conn.
Minton Fluhner, 604 West 114th St., New York City.
Pierpont B. Foster, Exchange Bldg., New Haven, Conn.
J. Irving Fowler, Glens Falls, N. Y.
Alan Fox, 63 Alfred St., Detroit, Mich.
John R. Freeman, care L. R. Freeman, Warren, Pa.
William Frew, Fifth Ave., East End, Pittsburg, Pa.
Leonard W. Frisbie, 690 Prospect Ave., Hartford, Conn.
W. S. Fulton, care Waterbury Machine Co., Waterbury, Conn.
Arnold S. Furst, 215 Montague St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
Thomas J. Gaines, Jr., 76 William St., New York City.
Julius Gans, care Burke, Jackson & Burke, 140 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.
Frank C. Gilbert, care Treas. Metropolitan Museum, 82d St. & Fifth Ave., New York City.
G. Burton Gilbert, 111 Jackson Place, Baltimore, Md.
Edward L. Gillespie, Stamford, Conn.
William W. Gleason, 350 West 71st St., New York City.
Rev. Irvine Goddard, The Rectory, Owensboro, Ky.
Willis E. Goodhue, High School, Norwalk, Conn.
F. Spencer Goodwin, 103 Woodland St., Hartford, Conn.
George A. Goss, care Scoville Mfg. Co., Waterbury, Conn.
R. A. Granniss, Jr., 49 Liberty St., New York City.
C. Douglass Green, 150 West 59th St., New York City.
Herbert G. Greene, 115 Willow St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
H. F. Griffin, 190 Summer St., Buffalo, N. Y.
O. H. Gruner, 20 Broad St., New York City.
John G. Haas, Jr., 256 Fifth Ave., New York City.
Dr. John F. Hackett, St. Francis Hospital, Hartford, Conn.
Chauncey J. Hamlin, 789 West Ferry St., Buffalo, N. Y.
Francis J. Handel, 317 Mutual Life Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y.
George Bradley Hardy, Bangor, Me.
Robert Richards Hargis, 430 West St. Catherine St., Louisville, Ky.
William L. Harmount, Pine Orchard, Conn.
Alfred L. Hart, care The Century Co., 33 East 17th St., New York City.
Henry F. Hartjen, 260 West 57th St., New York City.
Julian Hartridge, Jacksonville, Fla.
*Maurice Fitch Hawks, died March 29, 1900.
Bronson Hawley, 1111 Harvard Ave., Seattle, Wash.
Rowland Hazard, Peace Dale, R. I.
S. Frank Hedges, care Phelps, Evins & East, 30 Broad St., New York City.
Ell R. Henry, Lake Charles, La.
Jerome S. Hess, 50 Pine St., New York City.
Brower Hewitt, care Southern Railway Co., Princeton, Ind.
Albert Hileman, care Harrison Bros. & Co., 35th St. & Grays Ferry, Philadelphia, Pa.

- Theodore E. Hill, care Rufus Lewis Perry, 375 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
- Charles Hitchcock, Jr., 57 West 36th St., New York City.
- H. Morley Hitchcock, 861 Prospect St., Cleveland, O.
- Rev. Harry Oliver Hofstead, Sanford, Me.
- Thomas N. Hogan, 53 Grove St., Hartford, Conn.
- Charles S. Holbrook, care Portland Flouring Co., Portland, Ore.
- Henry C. Holt, "Roseland," Woodstock, Conn.
- Thomas Hooker, Jr., 233 Church St., New Haven, Conn.
- Sidney U. Hooper, care Great Northern Railway, Williston, N. D.
- F. S. Houghteling, Winnetka, Ill.
- Lawrence A. Howard, 218 Wethersfield Ave., Hartford, Conn.
- Norman C. Hull, 40 Appleton Ave., Pittsfield, Mass.
- Roy A. Hunt, "B" St., Oakmont, Pa.
- George S. Hurst, Box 175, New Haven, Conn.
- Roswell B. Hyatt, 177 Liberty St., Meriden, Conn.
- Dr. William L. Irvine, Rhode Island Hospital, Providence, R. I.
- Henry James, 527 Madison Ave., New York City.
- W. Heberd James, care T. M. James & Sons, Kansas City, Mo.
- Richard G. Jennings, care E. H. Jennings & Bros., Pittsburg, Pa.
- Rev. D. K. Johnston, St. John's Rectory, Logan, Utah.
- Franklin A. Johnston, 774 West End Ave., New York City.
- William Poyntell Johnston, 4 West 9th St., Wilmington, Del.
- Joshua Henry Jones, Jr., 270 Pine St., Providence, R. I.
- Nicholas R. Jones, 806 South 6th St., Springfield, Ill.
- Robert P. Keep, Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.
- Herbert C. Kelly, Smith Academy, St. Louis, Mo.
- Daniel Edwards Kennedy, 17 Devon Road, Chestnut Hill, Mass.
- F. S. Kent, 891 Massachusetts Ave., Cambridge, Mass.
- James B. Kilburn, 135 West 95th St., New York City.
- Douglas Brooks Kimball, 124 Sixth East St., Salt Lake City, Utah.
- Eugene A. Kingman, 519 Angell St., Providence, R. I.
- Joseph N. Kinney, 1423 East McMillan St., Cincinnati, O.
- Lucian S. Kirtland, care The Housekeeper, Minneapolis, Minn.
- Herman W. Knox, care Manning, Maxwell & Moore, 85 Liberty St., New York City.
- Albert R. Lamb, 527 Madison Ave., New York City.
- Theodore T. Lane, 25 Franklin Place, Flushing, L. I.
- William C. Langley, 127 Remsen St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
- Charles M. Latimer, care Edwards & Winters, Laughlin Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
- G. Sidney Leach, 2001 Fifth Ave., New York City.
- George E. Leonard, 42 Broadway, New York City.
- Howard R. LeVally, 4466 Lake Ave., Chicago, Ill.
- Dudley P. Lewis, 746 State St., Springfield, Mass.
- C. H. L'Hommedieu, 933 Jefferson Ave., Detroit, Mich.
- Paul Lindenberg, care Columbus Piano Co., Columbus, O.
- Charles W. Littlefield, care Hughes, Rounds & Schurmann, 96 Broadway, New York City.

- Franklin Lockwood, care Crane & Lockwood, 46 Wall St., New York City.
- Arthur C. Long, care Boston Dairy Co., Charlestown, Mass.
- Willard A. Lyon, 44 East Ave., Middletown, N. Y.
- Randolph Lyons, 2344 St. Charles Ave., New Orleans, La.
- John H. McAlarney, Lebanon, Pa.
- Harvey C. McClintock, Amberson Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.
- Robert R. McCormick, Security Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
- Dr. Earl C. McCulloch, 161 Bleecker St., Gloversville, N. Y.
- *Irving McDonald, died November 15, 1903.
- James P. McDonough, care Chicago Lumber & Coal Co., Warren, Ark.
- Andrew D. McIntosh, Taft School, Watertown, Conn.
- David R. McKee, Jr., care T. H. Symington Co., Railway Exchange Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
- Cameron Mackenzie, The Benedict, 80 Washington Sq. East, New York City.
- Donald McKesson, 91 Fulton St., New York City.
- Robert L. McKnight, Glen Road, Springfield, Mass.
- Rev. Donald B. MacLane, 33 Howe St., New Haven, Conn.
- H. Coit MacLean, 101 Park Ave., New York City.
- Arthur Manierre, 61 Bellevue Place, Chicago, Ill.
- Paul F. Mann, care American Express Co., Paris, France.
- John Marshall, Federal Bldg., Parkersburg, W. Va.
- Milton L. Marshall, 6 Westlake Ave., Auburn, N. Y.
- Elmer B. Mason, 53 Washington Sq., New York City.
- Macdonell Mason, care Ferrocavril del Causa, Buenaventura, Colombia, So. America.
- Ralph H. Melcer, 244 Spring St., New York City.
- William G. Metzger, Box 637, Fairmont, W. Va.
- H. Edmund Mills, 801 Wyandotte Bldg., Columbus, O.
- James B. Minor, 212 Vine St., Cincinnati, O.
- Douglas M. Moffat, Harvard Law School, Cambridge, Mass., or 306 Quincy Ave., Scranton, Pa.
- Walter C. Moodie, West Tisbury, Mass.
- Charles A. Moore, Jr., 85 Liberty St., New York City.
- Frank W. Moore, 214 Edgar Place, Elizabeth, N. J.
- Daniel H. Morgan, 53 Hillman St., Springfield, Mass.
- John Barrow Motter, 10th & Charles Sts., St. Joseph, Mo.
- John R. Moulton, 10 Mall St., Salem, Mass.
- Frank B. Mulford, care Goodyear Rubber Co., Kansas City, Mo.
- Arthur D. Mullen, 711 Howard Ave., New Haven, Conn.
- Walter S. Munson, 36 Brinckerhoff Ave., Utica, N. Y.
- Ralph H. Nesmith, Steam Engineering Dept., Navy Yard, League Island, Pa.
- Almer M. Newhall, 114 Battery St., San Francisco, Cal.
- Paul S. Ney, 265 Asylum St., Hartford, Conn.
- James K. Nichols, care Harvard Law School, Cambridge, Mass., or 95 Carroll St., Binghamton, N. Y.

- William P. Nixon, Jr., 177 Lake View Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Alfred T. Ogden, 41 Park Row, or 80 Washington Sq., New York City.
Augustus K. Oliver, care Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph, Pittsburg, Pa.
Daniel L. J. O'Neill, care Travelers Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn.
Frederick L. Orlady, 6016 Walnut St., Pittsburg, Pa., or Huntingdon, Pa.
William R. Orthwein, 15 Portland Place, St. Louis, Mo.
Erling C. Ostby, care Yale Club, 30 West 44th St., New York City.
George G. Parkhurst, 560 Delaware Ave., Buffalo, N. Y.
George H. Parr, Glenmont, Albany, N. Y.
Charles S. Parsons, care Carnegie Technical Schools, Pittsburg, Pa.
John H. Partridge, 69 Brooklyn St., Rockville, Conn.
William L. Patterson, Amherst, Nova Scotia.
Oscar C. Payne, care Baylor University, Waco, Texas, or Crockett, Texas.
Wheeler H. Peckham, care Mrs. W. G. Steel, "Cresheim," Mt. Airy, Philadelphia, Pa.
J. Deming Perkins, Jr., 1068 Pearl St., Denver, Col.
Byron A. Pierce, care Ostby & Barton Co., 118 Richmond St., Providence, R. I.
Claude M. Pitcher, 306 Commonwealth Bldg., or 1415 Price St., Scranton, Pa.
Howard A. Plummer, care Trust Company of America, 135 Broadway, New York City.
Horace B. Pomeroy, care Bankers Trust Co., 7 Wall St., New York City.
George F. Porter, 143 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.
Henry Potter, 5814 Cabanne Ave., St. Louis, Mo.
Charles F. Pratt, 466 Farmington Ave., Hartford, Conn.
James O. Putnam, care Missouri & Kansas Telephone Co., Kansas City, Mo.
John F. Putnam, 61 South 6th St., Columbus, O.
Hugh Rankin, care Railroad Gazette, 83 Fulton St., New York City, or Peekskill, N. Y.
John D. Rea, 538 Elm St., New Haven, Conn.
John J. Reilly, 129 Lexington Ave., New York City.
James W. Reynolds, 4239 Lindell Ave., St. Louis, Mo.
Samuel W. Rhoads, 24 Coal Exchange, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.
Joseph F. Rhodes, 336 Bellevue Drive, Pasadena, Cal.
George H. Richards, 14 East 37th St., New York City.
Dr. R. G. D. Richardson, 821 Yale Station, New Haven, Conn.
Harry A. Rightmire, 840 Salem Ave., Elizabeth, N. J., or Fairport, N. Y.
Stephen Garrett Roach, care Yale Station, New Haven, Conn.
Rev. George Roberts, Jr., Teaneck, Englewood, N. J.
J. Randolph Robinson, care Harbison-Walker Refractories Co., Life Bldg., New York City.
Cleveland Rogers, Wakefield, R. I.
William J. Roome, Jr., 11 West 34th St., New York City, or 41 Sycamore Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

*Henry Ide Root, died January 17, 1901.

Joseph C. Roraback, Canaan, Conn.

Arthur J. Rosenthal, 9 East 61st St., New York City.

Carleton F. Rowell, 4579 West Pine Boul., St. Louis, Mo.

Henry M. Russell, Jr., 1421 Chapline St., Wheeling, W. Va.

Henry C. Sanford, Bridgewater, Conn.

Ziegler Sargent, 247 Church St., New Haven, Conn.

Harold M. Sawyer, care Harvard Law School, Cambridge, Mass.

Lewis A. Sayre, 228 West 44th St., New York City.

Reeve Schley, 17 West 52d St., New York City.

William Schroeder, Jr., care Wm. Schroeder & Co., 469 Broome St.,
New York City.

William S. Searles, 10 The Manhattan, Cleveland, O.

Harold F. Sheets, care A New York Companhia de Seguros de Vida, 99
Rua d'El Rei, Lisbon, Portugal.

Joseph M. Skrable, Elberon, Ia.

Brockholst M. Smith, Box 1413, or 165 Hope St., Providence, R. I.

George A. Smith, 111 Jackson Place, Baltimore, Md., or 42 Seyms St., Hartford, Conn.

Lowell W. Smith, Albion, N. Y.

Robert S. Smith, Clarendon, Vt.

William B. W. Smith, P. O. Box 552, or 304 Beechwood Ave., Bridgeport, Conn.

Levings H. Somers, Lock Box 7, Mercersburg, Pa.

George P. Spencer, 59 Washington St., Watertown, N. Y.

F. Randolph Stauffer, 521 Court St., or 1513 Hill Road, Reading, Pa.

Prof. Warren M. Steele, 418 Choice Ave., Greenville, S. C.

Henry Root Stern, care Stern & Rushmore, 40 Wall St., New York City.

John H. Stevens, care Wm. A. Read & Co., Pine & Nassau Sts., New York City.

J. McAllister Stevenson, Jr., 28 Reed St., Pittsfield, Mass.

Ralph G. Stillman, Rahway, N. J.

Charles H. Stoll, Jr., care Socorro Co., Elmendorf, N. M.

Theron R. Strong, 29 East 65th St., New York City.

William R. Stuart, 108 Warburton Ave., or care Ætna Life Ins. Co.,
Yonkers, N. Y.

Thomas Sturgis, Jr., 138 East 36th St., New York City.

Dr. Jeremiah B. Sullivan, 245 Washington Ave., New Haven, Conn.
(After Nov. 1, 1906, Rhode Island Hospital, Providence, R. I.)

*Walter Sullivan, died July 12, 1905.

Stuart B. Sutphin, 935 West 5th St., Cincinnati, O.

Paul B. Sweet, 231 Topeka Ave., Topeka, Kansas.

George E. Sykes, Rockville, Conn.

Harlan C. Taylor, care National Biscuit Co., 10th Ave. & 15th St., New York City.

William H. Taylor, care International Banking Corp'n., Manila, P. I.

William K. Terriberly, Somerville, N. J.

- M. B. Terrill, Swiss Ave., Dallas, Texas.
Ralph H. Thacher, care Central N. Y. Telephone & Telegraph Co.,
Syracuse, N. Y.
Herbert F. Thomas, 71 Broadway, New York City.
Joseph B. Thomas, Jr., Simsbury, Conn., or 763 Fifth Ave., New York City.
Theodore G. Thomas, 103 East 125th St., or 363 East 135th St., New York City.
Donald Thompson, 1651 Frick Bldg. Annex, Pittsburg, Pa.
Edwin V. Thompson, 1407 Third Ave., Louisville, Ky.
George J. Thomson, care Bowers & Sands, 31 Nassau St., New York City.
Prof. Herman J. Thorstenberg, Norman, Okla.
George R. Tillson, care D. H. Rexford, 80 Broadway, New York City.
Edward P. Townsend, 306 West 80th St., New York City.
Arsene L. Trenholm, 137 East 39th St., New York City.
Lieut. John Marshall True, care Military Secretary, U. S. Army, Washington, D. C.
Edward P. Truett, 115 South Elliot Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Abraham Tulin, 34 Bellevue St., Hartford, Conn.
William B. Tyler, 126 East 9th St., Plainfield, N. J.
Rev. David B. Updegraff, Lafayette Ave. Presbyterian Church, Buffalo,
N. Y.
Fred B. Utley, Student's Club, 328 West 56th St., New York City.
S. Oakley VanderPoel, Jr., 30 Broad St., New York City.
Harry B. Van Deventer, 531 North Broad St., Elizabeth, N. J.
Douglass Van Dyke, 44 Prospect Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.
Ernest S. Van Tassel, care Union Pacific R. R., Omaha, Neb.
Axel E. Vestling, 130 Wall St., New Haven, Conn.
C. J. Waddell, care N. W. Harris & Co., Pine St. cor. William, New York City.
Anson Wagar, care Ziebach, Wagar & Russell, Gregory, S. D.
J. R. Wait, 77 Genesee St., Auburn, N. Y.
Ralph B. Wakefield, 1102 Frick Bldg., Pittsburg, Pa., or Greenville, Mercer Co., Pa.
W. Durrie Waldron, 79 North Mountain Ave., Montclair, N. J.
Lieut. James Frederick Walker, Fort Williams, Portland, Me.
Raymond W. Walker, care Knickerbocker Syndicate, 320 Fifth Ave.,
New York City.
Walter B. Walker, 42 Broadway, New York City.
H. Mitchell Wallace, 76 North Cliff St., Ansonia, Conn.
Walter F. Wallace, 87 Astor St., Chicago, Ill.
Arthur A. Ward, Odon, Ind.
Freeman Ward, 569 Yale Station, New Haven, Conn.
S. Dwight Ward, Room 9, N. Y. Central R. R., Grand Central Station,
New York City.
Antonio J. Waring, 527 Madison Ave., New York City.
Arthur W. Warner, care Riter-Conley Mfg. Co., 55 Water St., Pittsburg, Pa.

- George P. Warner, 605 Niagara St., Buffalo, N. Y.
Irving H. Warner, P. O. Box 122, St. Mary's, Pa., or Fairport, N. Y.,
R. F. D. No. 8.
George A. Washington, Wessyngton, Tenn.
Bradford Webster, 900 Fifth St., Louisville, Ky.
Edward F. Webster, care Bronson & Townsend Co., New Haven, Conn.
George U. Wenner, care Alaska Club, Seattle, Wash.
Ethan P. Wescott, 125 South 5th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
William B. Weston, 60 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.
Edwin R. Whitcomb, care Wisconsin Central Railway, Fond du Lac, Wis.
Howard S. White, 21 Cliff St., Waterbury, Conn.
J. Richards White, St. Mark's School, Southboro, Mass., or 150 George St., Providence, R. I.
W. O. White, 513 Ohio St., Cairo, Ill.
Everett M. Whittemore, care Burnham, Hanna, Munger Dry Goods Co.,
Kansas City, Mo.
Willis S. Whittlesey, 164 Front St., New York City.
Theodore H. Wickwire, Jr., Cortland, N. Y.
*Thomas Edward Wilde, died February 23, 1901.
Frederick W. Wilhelmi, care Walker County Lumber Co., Elmina, Texas.
Lewis A. Williams, Jr., care The Publishing Society, 41 Lafayette Place,
New York City.
Orion J. Willis, care American Sheet & Tin Plate Co., or 30 Walton Place, Chicago, Ill.
William L. Winch, 114 High St., New Haven, Conn.
Wilson G. Wing, Bangor, Me.
William B. Wood, 1054 South First St., Evansville, Ind.
George E. Woodbine, 245 York St., New Haven, Conn.
Harris S. Woodman, Winthrop, Me.
John E. Woodruff, 716 James St., Syracuse, N. Y.
Howard S. Woodward, Box 62, Normal, Ill.
Gerald S. Work, Warkwolde, Perkins Hill, Akron, O.

History of the class of 1891
Stanford University Libraries

3 6105 030 846 922

CUBBERLEY LIBRARY

DATE DUE

CUBBERLEY LIBRARY

STANFORD UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES
STANFORD, CALIFORNIA 94305-6004

